WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk met Saturday with representatives of four Western Allies to assess a puzzling change in Russian disarmament tactics which has emerged in recent Soviet-American meetings here.

Rusk sought Allied reaction to the Soviet effort to force the United States into hard bargaining on disarmament without any of its Western partners present.

Ambassadors Sir Harold Caccia of Britain, Herve Alphand of France and Sergio Fenoaltea of Italy and Charge d'Affaires S. F. Rae of Canada attended the session at the State Department. Also present was President Kennedy's chief disarmament adviser, John J. McCloy.

RUSK AND McCloy told the Allied envoys that Russia, which previously insisted that disarmament bargaining must take place only in multinational conferences, now is seeking "substantive" negotiations on the subject with the United States alone.

McCloy explained that this new Soviet attitude had come to light the past week in discussions he has had with Valerian Zorin, Russia's chief delegate to the United Nations.

McCloy and Zorin, who began meeting last Monday, were charged with setting up the ground rules for resumption of full-scale East-West disarmament talks. These were broken off a year ago when the Communist side walked out of the 10-nation Geneva conference.

THE UNITED STATES understood the McCloy-Zorin talks would be limited to deciding which countries should attend the talks, which are tentatively scheduled to resume July 31, and what the agenda should be.

However, Zorin on Thursday told McCloy he was "surprised" that the United States was not prepared to negotiate right now on a bilateral basis about some of the points of disagreement between Moscow and Washington.

The Russian representative argued that the general talks had little chance of success unless Russia and the United States had previously eliminated some of their differences.

This was the direct oppo-

Ship-Strike Decision by JFK Monday

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy Saturday initiated steps toward invoking the Taft-Hartley Law to halt the crippling maritime strike. A decision is expected Monday.

Kennedy assigned Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg to survey strike effects over the weekend in order to make a determination whether the nation's health or safety is in peril.

That is a judgment which the law says the President must reach before invoking Taft-Hartley emergency provisions allowing an 80-day court injunction against continuation of the strike, now in its ninth day. It would be late this week, in any case, before an injunction could be obtained.

GOLDBERG, in charge of the strike situation for Kennedy, told reporters he was naturally disappointed that the maritime unions had rejected his earlier plan for a 60-day strike truce during which a White House panel would recommend a solution. But he said he was not criticizing anybody.

The labor secretary, counsel for the steelworkers' union in fighting former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's 1959 Taft-Hartley-law injunction that ended a 116-day steel strike, said the administration will have no hesitancy in invoking the law now.

MAKING it clear he isn't sympathetic with the law's provisions, Goldberg said, however that it is the law and will be enforced if national health or safety is endangered. Kennedy voted against the law in Congress.

"Whether we like it or not,

Cooley Suffers Another Attack

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS
Staff Writer

BAKERSFIELD—Donnell (Spade) Cooley has suffered his third heart attack in nine weeks, his defense counsel disclosed Saturday night.

In an exclusive interview with The Independent, Press-Telegram, Attorney P. Basil Lambros of Los Angeles also revealed that the onetime King of Western Swing is recovering from that seizure in Kern County Jail here.

DESPITE THE third attack since the night of April 9, the date on which Cooley is accused of torturing and beating his wife to death, Lambros said Cooley wants no delay with the trial scheduled to start July 10.

"Let's get this over with," Cooley told Lambros Saturday. "Whatever is going to be has got to be."

Lambros said Cooley suffered the previous undisclosed heart attack Tuesday in jail, was transferred to Bakersfield County Hospital for treatment, and was returned to his jail cell Thursday night.

Lambros also said Cooley's illness, and problems with his memory—combined with a determination to keep his two youngest children out of the trial as much as possible—are handicapping the famed fiddler's defense.

"LET'S KEEP the children out of this," Cooley said Saturday, according to Lambros.

This is despite the fact that daughter Melody, 14, and son, Donnell Jr., 12, are expected to be key witnesses against

Governor Inks Top Budget

SACRAMENTO (AP)—After cutting only $170,000 from the amount voted by the legislature, Gov. Brown Saturday signed a 1961-62 state budget totalling $2,599,533, 019.

It's a record high total, but the smallest annual percentage increase in state spending since 1943.

"IT REQUIRES no new taxes," said Brown, "and, indeed, permits a direct reduction of taxes totalling $8.3 million."

Shortly afterward Brown left by air for Honolulu, where he will attend the national governors' conference.

If state finance experts are right in their predictions of tax collections, the budget will leave a surplus in the general fund of about $1 million on June 30, 1962.

Noting that the budget closely followed his recommendations, Brown commended the lawmakers for "hard work and long hours" devoted to reviewing them.

The governor can eliminate or reduce items in the budget as approved by the legislature, but cannot increase or add them.

BROWN CUT only two appropriations, both from the Water Fund:

$100,000 for investigation of a dam on Fish Slough in Inyo County, and $70,000 for a loan to the June Lake Public Utility District, Mono County.

The governor said the Water Fund was created to build the $1.75-billion water plan, and "other means of financing" are available for such projects as the Fish Slough study and the June Lake loan.

The budget includes $1.03 billion for education, $250 million for welfare programs and $424.7 million for capital outlay.

More than $100 million of the capital outlay funds will come from bonds, approved by voters in 1958.

10 Acres Blackened

LOS ANGELES (CNS)—A brush fire blackened 10 acres in the vicinity of Benedict Canyon and Yonakum Drives Saturday afternoon before it was brought under control.

U.S. Committee Has Disbanded

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI)—A 10-man delegation of invasion prisoners arrived by boat late Saturday to attempt reopening the prisoners-for-tractors negotiations.

The Costa Rican steamer Arenal docked at the Coast Guard pier at 5:52 p. m. EST. Approximately 200 Cuban exiles ran from the Coast Guard pier to nearby Gulf pier when the Arenal made its approach swing before entering the Coast Guard docks.

THE INVASION prisoners stood on the topside of the steamer and waved to friends and relatives as the boat passed through the channel.

The Coast Guard Station was closed to the public and immigration authorities immediately took the 10 prisoners into custody.

Late Saturday night, it was announced the Cubans would stay overnight in a Key West hotel without talking to American newsmen and would issue a joint statement later.

The 10 men were paroled after their interrogation by the immigration authorities, and conferred with Antonio de Barona, member of the Revolutionary Council which sponsored the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion.

THERE WAS NO indication of what will become of the Cubans, but their parole indicates their temporary stay in this country has been sanctioned by U. S. authorities.

Approximately 300 Cubans, mostly women, braved a tropical rain storm to remain near the Coast Guard headquarters in hopes of catching a glimpse of their sons or relatives.

One woman suffered an attack of nerves and fell screaming to the pavement. She was picked up by an ambulance which had been stationed nearby.

The prisoners-for-tractors negotiations broke down Friday night with an American expression of despair over Fidel Castro's "cynical brutality."

But the same 10-prisoner commission which journeyed to the United States three weeks ago came back again for another attempt to buy freedom for 1,214 prisoners of the April invasion.

The unpredictable Castro sent them back to the United States although the American Tractors for Freedom committee broke off negotiations, and accused the bearded Cuban of "playing with the lives" of the men by reneging on his original offer to trade two Chinas in the United Nations for 500 tractors.

The committee officially disbanded.

THERE WAS no clue as to whom the prisoner delegation would talk with in the United States. Officially, there was not a committee to deal with admission of Soviet-supported and the members of the former committee were scattered in many places. They had expressed belief Castro might try it again but indicated there was no hope.

OFFICIALS emphasized that no firm decision has been taken on any strategy. They acknowledged, however, that the United States has little hope this year of being able to prevent the U. N. Assembly from at least considering the question of Red China's admission.

With only about three months remaining before the assembly will consider the question, the United States must decide how to proceed if its annual request for a moratorium is turned down.

The search for a softer formula on Red China, plus indications that the United States is going to agree to the admission of Soviet-supported Outer Mongolia to the U. N., has brought about rather strained relations between Washington and Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek.

$450,000 Project to Add to I, P-T Press Capacity

A $450,000 program to expand the printing facilities of The Independent, Press-Telegram was announced Saturday by Werner W. Sell, mechanical superintendent.

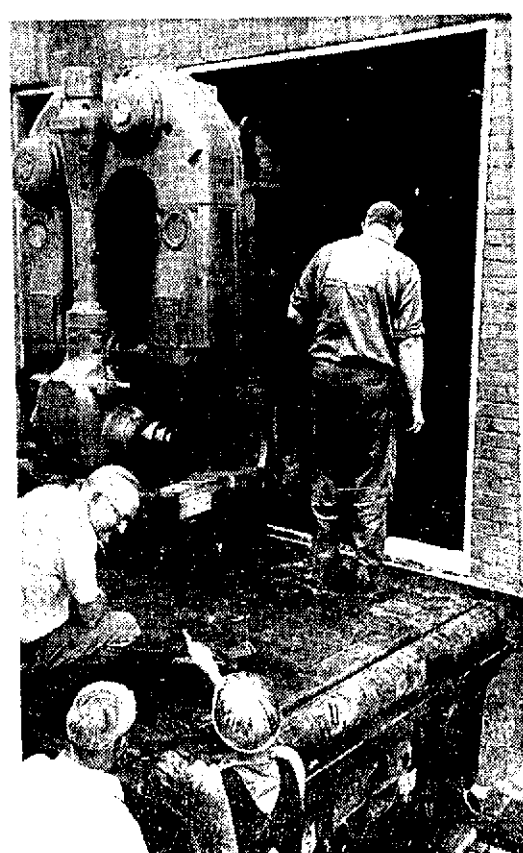

When completed, expanded press facilities will increase the production capacity of the newspapers by approximately 20 per cent. Particular emphasis is being placed, Sell said, on expanding the newspapers' capacity to print color, and to increase the quality of its color reproductions.

TWO Goss Headliner press units and three Goss Headliner half-decks for color printing are being added to the pressroom facilities. When the expansion program is completed, about Sept. 1, the pressroom will contain 12 Headliner units and seven half-decks for color printing.

To illustrate the increase in newspaper printing capacity, Sell made these comparisons:

1.—At the present time, Independent, Press-Telegram presses can produce 80-page black and white, or 64-page multiple color papers at the rate of 50,000 an hour. In the future, they will be able to produce 96 pages in black and white, or 80 pages in multiple color, at the same speed.

2.—At present, the I, P-T presses can produce eight four-color and eight single

L.A.C. Says: Far-Reaching Issue

The strike by unions to force American owned ships operated under other countries laws and flags raises some far reaching issues. The Marine unions say American shipowners are unfair because they have some ships under foreign registry and employ foreign crews and therefore do not pay the high wages that the unions have gained for American operated ships.

First—there is the realistic fact that many American ships are registered under the Panama, Liberia and other flags. In most cases shipowners were forced to take such action to stay in business. American wage scales have priced American ships out of many markets. The frequent strikes have caused disastrous losses to many shipping companies. This is the main reason why American owned ships are registered under other flags.

One may not approve of this system. But if it is to be an issue involving our entire overseas transportation, it opens up far reaching consequences. The same principal could be applied to virtually every industry we have where they have subsidiary plants in foreign countries. Under the Marine union theory all these plants would have to operate under American laws rather than the laws of the countries where they were located.

For example General Motors and Ford operate plants in Canada, Britain and other countries in these plants are employed the people of their countries and they are subject to the labor laws and other regulations of the countries. It is quite evident that their branch plants are located abroad to meet the competition of competitors in these countries where we previously shipped large numbers of American made automobiles. Our U. S. made cars were priced out of these European markets by our high wage and fringe benefits rates.

If the Marine unions demand that all U. S. owned ships operated under foreign flags must be subject to U. S. Unions then why does this principal not apply to all other U. S. enterprises operated under foreign flags. We have hundreds of such industries scattered all over Europe and the Orient.

It is another complex example of what is happening to U. S. investments abroad. We may be sure these other nations will not permit U. S. unions to represent workers in these nations. It may be argued that the shipping industry is different than automobiles, chemicals, IBM or tires. But all of these industries are fighting foreign competition by operating under conditions prevailing where that competition is located. The unions have made it necessary for such conditions. They have raised the cost of production in this country to a point where to survive, industries have to operate under wage rates and working conditions of its competitors. It is not a healthy situation but rather one that calls for a realistic solution by unions and management if U. S. workers are to have any real job security.—L.A.C.

site of the Russian position in recent years. The Soviet Union has argued that disarmament discussions should be carried on only with a number of countries present, including representatives of the neutralist bloc.

U. S. officials tended to view the changed Russian tactic as a propaganda move rather than a sincere effort to seek a new way to approach the problem of arms limitation and control.

AGAINST THE background of the new Soviet-inspired Berlin crisis and Russia's refusal to negotiate a nuclear-test ban on workable terms, U. S. officials see the new approach as simply a device to try to blame the United States for holding up progress.

Melody previously testified at a coroner's inquest that her father forced her to watch as he beat and tortured her mother to death. Cooley strongly has insisted, Lambros said, that his defense counsel not even cross-examine Melody.

"If she has to testify," Cooley told him, Lambros said, "let her get off the stand and out of the public eye as quickly as possible."

Lambros reported to readers of The Independent Press-Telegram Cooley's thanks for "several hundred" letters they wrote him following the publication of his amazing life story in these newspapers.

THE LETTERS contained a considerable amount of money, Lambros reported. One check, from a Long Beach automobile firm executive, was for $100.

U.S. Official Raps HST View of Freedom Riders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Assistant secretary of state for public affairs, criticized Truman in a speech to the Catholic Interracial Council in Washington. Rowan is a Negro and a former Minneapolis Tribune reporter.

A Kennedy administration appointee, Rowan indulged in some admittedly plain speaking because he said "these new frontiers of race relations are no place for namby-pamby... I don't intend to give a namby-pamby speech."

Saying that violence against the Freedom Riders in the South is evidence of a mass emotional sickness, Rowan said some Americans have criticized individuals who deliberately test constitutional rights and others "justify their softness" on the race issue by referring to action-takers as extremists.

He continued:

"The third bit of nonsense — and an extremely dangerous bit of nonsense it is — finds as its chief purveyor none other than former President Truman.

"In his usually brash tones, he has referred to those ministers, students and others who are challenging racial segregation in airports and railway stations as 'meddlers'.

"Let me make it clear that I have the highest regard for Mr. Truman's actions as president. I think that on many occasions he showed great courage, and not infrequently in the field of civil rights.

"So I am doubly saddened that he, most of all, should help to create the impression that bigotry and racial injustice in Jackson, Miss., is not the business of a citizen of Washington, or New York, or Minneapolis..."

this is our plain duty," Goldberg said.

At the same time, the secretary said it has been obvious for a long time the Taft-Hartley Law emergency provisions need an overhaul. He said they fail to arm the President "with a sufficient arsenal of weapons to deal with a problem of this character."

KENNEDY ACTED to initiate the strike-effects survey after conferring with his labor secretary at the White House and later by telephone. They had the benefit of a report from Director William E. Simkin of the Federal Mediation Service, who had been in New York presiding over the stalemated maritime negotiations.

The strike, although taking a toll of millions in lost revenues daily, has not hit yet with full impact. Over 150 transports and passenger vessels are tied up in docks, but the remaining 800 ships of the U. S. merchant marine are plying the high seas. This is the height of the shipping season.

Parley Monday on Russ Threat

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Representatives of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany will hold a high-level meeting here Monday to consider military plans to meet the intensified Soviet threat to Berlin.

Ambassadors Sir Harold Caccia of Britain, Herve Alphand of France, and Wilhelm Grewe of West Germany will confer with Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs Foy D. Kohler. The subject will be Allied steps to deal with any Communist blockade of the Western sector of the Red-circled city if Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev carries out his threat to turn the access routes over to Communist East Germany.

Kohler is chairman of the U. S. Interdepartmental Group studying contingency planning on Berlin. At the same time, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson is acting for the White House in efforts to formulate a tougher U. S. defense posture to meet Khrushchev's new pressure on the Berlin and German issues.

Officials said no final decisions have been taken on the question of a possible increase in American military strength in Europe to meet the new threat. Such an increase, along with the possibility of increasing U. S. strength by partial mobilization of reserve units, is reported to be under consideration here.

E. Germans Protest U.S. Combat Test

BERLIN (UPI)—The East German Communist government tried Saturday — and failed — to protest to the United States against the surprise combat alert staged Thursday by the 5,000-man U. S. Army garrison to test its ability to defend the city.

East German Deputy Foreign Minister Otto Winzer sent a note to Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II, Berlin's American commandant, containing the protest. Watson refused to receive it, since the West does not recognize East Germany and pays no attention to such protests.

The protest, made public by the Communist East German News Agency, said American soldiers "illegally" occupied Communist railway installations in West Berlin, heated up the cold war in Berlin and increased international tension. It demanded such "encroachments" stop.

problems may slow production of these newspapers on certain peak days, Sell declared.

"It is our hope," he said, "that the reading public will understand that some temporary inconveniences during the summer months will mean, in the long run, better service and a better product for them in the future."

Fred Bauer, chief mechanic for the I, P-T, and T. D. (Mike) Caustic, chief electrician, are in charge of the installation, assisted by Jack Porter, pressroom foreman.

The present expansion program is the fourth major step taken by these newspapers in recent years to meet the expanding circulation and advertising demands of the Southern California market area.

The basic press units now being used were installed in 1947 and 1948. A unit was added in 1950, and two more units in 1956.

Eying the future, the newspapers are making provisions to handle two additional units when they will be needed.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

One Body Taken From Mine Tomb

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) — Rescue workers late Saturday dragged the body of Charlie Kennedy, 28, from a collapsed mine shaft where he and two other men were trapped Friday afternoon.

The other two men, presumed dead, were still pinned behind the massive heap of debris and rock.

Gentry D. Hunt, a miner who found Kennedy, said his crushed body was doubled up, on his knees, as if he were praying. Hunt crawled through a 22-inch high opening to reach Kennedy's body. He dug him out from beneath tons of earth and rock with small hand tools.

The other men trapped in the collapse of the mine shaft high in the Cumberland mountains of east Tennessee are Charles Seiber, 23, and Herley Carroll, 18.

Man, 79, Survives 6-Day Ordeal

AYERILL PARK, N.Y. (UPI)—What does a horned toad taste like raw?

"Awful, but I had to eat it," said Jay Kendall, a 79-year-old fisherman who was lost for six days in rugged Adirondack mountain country near here.

Kendall, the object of an intensive air-ground search, was found Friday in an unoccupied cabin near Schroon Lake. He and a companion had gone fishing at the lake June 18, but they became separated and Kendall spent the next six days and five nights struggling to survive against insects, wild animals and lack of food. All he had to eat during his ordeal was the toad and a few pieces of candy.

New Crisis Feared

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The Syrian-Israeli frontier threatened to explode into a new Middle East crisis Saturday.

A series of gun clashes over the last five days has sent the strongest wave of tension this year sweeping along the 70-mile long Syrian-Israeli frontier.

A U.A.R. (Syrian) army spokesman said the fighting had begun June 19 when an Israeli tractor entered Arab lands in the demilitarized zone. Fighting continued through June 20 and 21 until the Israeli tractor was "forced to pull out," he said.

Cars, Buses Crash; 38 Hurt

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Thirty-eight people were injured Saturday when two buses and two cars were involved in a collision over the Passaic River on the New Jersey turnpike. Nine of the injured were admitted to hospitals.

The wreck occurred about three miles north of Newark Airport, backing up traffic for three miles on the busy highway.

Ohio Air Wreck Kills 4

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—A private plane exploded over nearby rural land Saturday, plunged to earth and its four occupants from Muncie, Ind., were killed.

Dr. Anson Hurley, flying his new Beechcraft Bonanza from Muncie to Teterboro, N.J., to attend an American Medical Association convention in New York, was one victim. The others were members of his family.

3,000 Flee Forest Fires

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (UPI)—Villagers aided by Canadian and American servicemen Saturday battled wide-ranging forest fires that raged within sight of Gander International Airport and forced some 3,000 women and children to flee their homes.

At least seven communities, most of them bordering Bonavista Bay on this island province's east coast, were turned temporarily into ghost towns by the flames that covered an area estimated at more than 300 square miles.

Blue Chip Witnesses Due at Stock Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Alvin F. Fust, president of the New York Stock Exchange, is the first scheduled witness.

Edward T. McCormick, president of the American Stock Exchange; William H. Claflin, chairman of the board of the National Association of Securities Dealers; and chairman William L. Cary of the Securities & Exchange Commission are scheduled to follow.

Rep. Peter F. Mack, D-Ill., who heads the investigating subcommittee, said the group was concerned over what he called "widespread evidence of speculation and apparent manipulations."

"I'M BEGINNING to wonder whether stock prices are not definitely out of line with the dividends being paid," he told a UPI reporter.

Mack said that G. Keith

Why Does Mr. K Press for Berlin Now? To Satisfy Soviet Allies?

By WALTER T. RIDDER

Chief, U. S. T. Capitol Bureau

WASHINGTON—The question bothering Washington experts—if there are any—on Soviet affairs is precisely why Chairman Nikita S. Khrushchev has taken this moment to precipitate a major crisis over the city of Berlin. These experts reason that Khrushchev is deliberately going to the brink of a world war over an issue which is, or should be, of only relatively minor interest to him. The existence of West Berlin does not threaten Russian security and the driving out of the West is a trivial result compared with the result of the nuclear war which might erupt from the Berlin crisis. Why then so great a risk for so little result?

Speculation here revolves around four main issues—

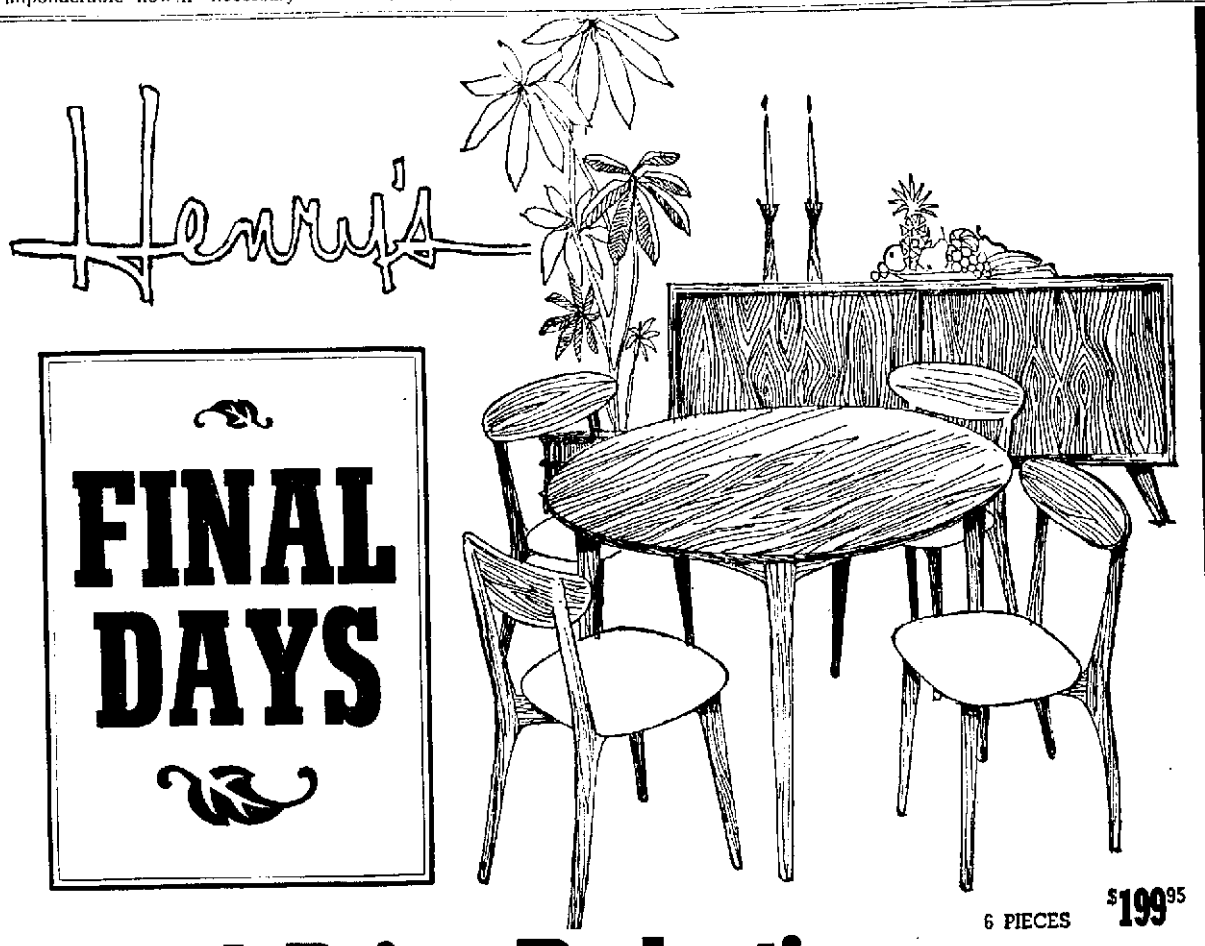

1. Khrushchev is merely continuing classic Soviet strategy of keeping the West strained to the utmost, financially, politically and nervously. He is pressing as hard as he can to see how hard a deal he can make without pushing to actual war. He wants, too, to test the new American President and see what, if any leadership, he can give to the Western alliance.

2. Khrushchev is having troubles with his allies; in particular with East Germany on the Berlin issue. While Khrushchev, as a Russian, probably has very little interest in Berlin, it is a psychological and physical factor of enormous importance to Walter Ulbricht and the other leaders of Communist East Germany. The contrast of living between the two zones of Berlin is a constant irritant to East Germans. Then, too, Berlin offers a harbor for the countless East German refugees and the East German regime is all but powerless to prevent a constant and never-ending drain of manpower. For these reasons, Ulbricht, for a long time, has been pressing Khrushchev to do something about the Berlin situation. He is, therefore, doing it for his allies, not himself.

3. It is speculated here that Red China has given its support to the complaints of the East Germans. Mao Tse Tung and his associates have long argued that Khrushchev is "too soft" on capitalism and that peaceful coexistence is for the birds. They want world revolution by force and if it is necessary to achieve that purpose by taking West Berlin by force, well then it should be so taken.

4. With both of his major allies pressing for action on Berlin, Khrushchev may well believe that he cannot afford to ignore their desires. He is, after all, emperor of the Communist empire—or at least he thinks he is—and possibly he feels that he has to act like one. The external stakes for Khrushchev on the Berlin problem are not high, but he may well be fighting a vast internal struggle within the Communist empire in his collision course on Berlin. Whether he will veer off that course at the last minute (he has left himself plenty of loopholes to do so) or whether he will continue the head-on plunge to the bitter end is, of course, the great imponderable now facing President Kennedy and his advisers. What the administration is now seeking to do is to alert the world in general and Khrushchev in particular that it intends to go to war if necessary over the free world's right to be in West Berlin. A spate of speeches, statements, and press-conference remarks already has been issued and more are certain to come as the free world girds its loins for the struggle ahead.

Republicans Push Vote on Medical Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Ten Republican senators planned Saturday to press for a show-down this week on the controversial issue of federally subsidized medical benefits for the aged.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., announced he will join with nine other Republicans in offering a medical-care amendment to a House-passed Social Security bill which the Senate takes up Monday.

Javits said in a prepared statement that the administration has shown "a disposition to put off legislative action on medical care for the aged until next year." He added that a test vote on the GOP plan "may give us the only opportunity to consider this measure at this session."

THE DEMOCRATIC leadership is anxious to avoid a dispute now over the issue of providing paid-up hospitalization and other benefits for the nation's estimated 14.2 million elder citizens.

President Kennedy's plan to finance benefits for persons 65 and over through the Social Security system has been tucked away in a congressional pigeonhole since it was introduced last February.

Some Eichmann Excuses Sound Pretty Lame

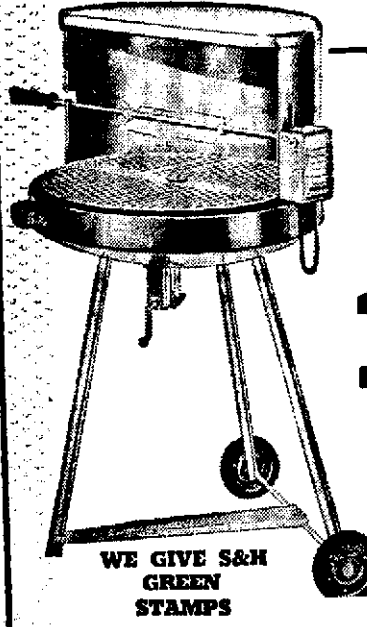

By JOHN A. CALLCOTT
JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI) — Adolf Eichmann already has thrown a small monkey-wrench into his "who, me?" defense that he was just a "small cog in the big machine" of Nazi mass murder. After 20 hours of testimony in his own defense — and more than twice that still to go — Eichmann is having trouble sounding convincing. As the man charged with engineering the Nazi murder of six million Jews, Eichmann's Reich security headquarters, is agreeable to these methods. Eichmann's defense attorney, Dr. Robert Servatius, asked the former S.S. officer how his name appeared in such a context. "My name was put in incorrectly and most unfairly," was Eichmann's explanation. "I can only say the man who wrote this letter did not know his real partner in the discussions." Eichmann failed to add just why his name should have gone by since then. He not forgotten the functions on a conference held to discuss the "final solution" of down — or the title of every story occupied by Nazi soldiers in 1940. This sort of hemming and hawing does not jibe with week. Then Israeli Attorney General Gideon Hausner will when asked to clarify the cross-examine for three or four days. Invariably his replies begin bureaucratic set-up of the Nazi security ministry where. But everyone here expects Eichmann to continue to use "I cannot recall that today." He remembers every little his now familiar "who, me?" "Twenty-one years have detail of that set-up and has approach to the end.

'Ironpants' LeMay Venerated as Man Who Gets Things Done

By REM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — S. McNamara is also a perfectionist. Wherever he goes the leg-ger type and this LeMay-McNamsa affinity for getting things done reportedly led here, always precede LeMay. McNamara to recommend LeMay the man.

He is "old ironpants," the job. Unafraid, unsmiling perfectionist.

He is the man who de- clined an invitation to dinner from his subordinates on the grounds that a commanding officer should dine only with friends and "a commanding officer has no friends."

And he is the man just picked by President Kennedy to move up from vice chief of staff for the Air Force to chief on July 1, succeeding Gen. Thomas White.

THERE WERE those in Washington who said—some in print — that the blunt, abrupt LeMay would never adjust to the niceties of the current state political life here where am- biguous language is often more highly regarded than plain talk.

At times the legends—and they are legion—about the 5-foot-10½-inch, 188-pound LeMay have almost obscured the fact that LeMay is really a first rate military manager. Indeed, LeMay pioneered the use of management controls in the Air Force to produce a high quality product—the Strategic Air Command.

Defense Secretary Robert McNamara is also a perfectionist. Wherever he goes the leg-ger type and this LeMay-McNamsa affinity for getting things done reportedly led here, always precede LeMay. McNamara to recommend LeMay the man.

He is "old ironpants," the job. Unafraid, unsmiling perfectionist.

He is the man who de- clined an invitation to dinner from his subordinates on the grounds that a commanding officer should dine only with friends and "a commanding officer has no friends."

And he is the man just picked by President Kennedy to move up from vice chief of staff for the Air Force to chief on July 1, succeeding Gen. Thomas White.

THERE IS no doubt that LeMay gets things done. When he assumed command of SAC in 1948, LeMay found his bomber force manned mostly by World War II pilots still suffering from a form of post-war let down.

From his headquarters at Omaha, Neb., LeMay set about reorganizing SAC with a zeal akin to the religious fervor of a missionary to ward heathen.

Until LeMay came along, the Air Force simply counted the number of bombers on the line and the number of bombs dropped. The fact that the Soviet Union has thermonuclear weapons and the means to deliver them has raised the question of strategic stalemate. It has forced a re-examination of the probability of non-nuclear wars in which the role of the Air Force will be limited to team membership with the Army and Navy on an equal footing.

In this connection, it may be worth noting that LeMay is not a graduate of a service academy, that most of his service career has been concerned with strategic bombers. There are some in the Army and Navy who doubt that LeMay has a real understanding of the role of the infantry and the Navy in warfare.

LeMay is taking over top Air Force job at a time when his ranks are split between (1) those who insist the manned bomber is a dead pigeon and that the nation's future security lies in space and missiles, and (2) those who argue that the manned bomber is, and will remain, the nation's chief deterrent weapon.

LeMay has described himself as a mixed force man, that is, he believes in a strategic deterrent force of both bombers and missiles. He once said the guided missile would never replace the manned aircraft because "it can't think."

LeMay would not win any kind of popularity contest with the generals and admirals of the Army and Navy and these antagonisms may well carry over into the meetings of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Adlai Warns of Red Hemispheric Threat

NEW YORK (UPI)—U.N. "decisive" contribution to Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson stability, Stevenson urged, son warned Saturday that the Congress to come up quickly. United States may be facing with a long-term foreign-aid program for the South American continent.

Stevenson, recently returned from a 10-nation Latin tour, said he believed the situation had "actually deteriorated" from when he made a similar trip about a year ago.

HE DESCRIBED the country he visited, particularly Bolivia, as being "in a critical to Europe early next month period. . . where rising discontent and agitation and the sometimes unpopular measures to stop inflation, etc., and Social Council meeting have made for difficulties."

Calling American foreign aid a "minor" but possibly a particularly "difficult case."

Italian Song Writer Dies

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—Giorgio Gaeta, a popular song writer and poet, died in his home here Saturday.

Gaeta, who signed his work "F. A. Mario," was best known for "Legenda del Piave." This song described the Piave River battle between Italian and Austrian soldiers in World War I.

IN JUNE 1959 LeMay told a senate subcommittee: "As our weapons systems improve it is becoming more and more apparent that the function of individual services are beginning to overlap. . . I firmly believe we will need a modification of our military structure. I believe we must eventually progress toward a single service with a single chief of staff and one staff to operate the armed services."

The Navy and Army oppose a single staff system—especially if the chief is going to be from the air force.

During an interview early this month, 12 questions were submitted to LeMay, all designed to develop some pattern of thought and to clarify aspects of previous public statements.

LeMay answered none. He pointed out that he was not yet chief of staff and that to answer the questions prior to interrogation by Congress on his fitness for the job would be improper.

THE INTERVIEW produced only the information that he was three pounds overweight, smoked eight to 10 cigars a day, and earned his way through Ohio State University in part by working a 5 p.m. to 2 a.m. shift in a foundry before making 9 a.m. classes.

He also reported that while he was reared as a Methodist, he was essentially a non-church goer.

LeMay's basic training was as a civil engineer. He is a tinkerer with motors and radios—and a good one, too.

If he is a widely read man, his associates don't know it. He likes to hunt, fish and play poker. In 1954 he told

Army Air Unit Gets Quarters

The Army's own local air force will move into new quarters Monday at Long Beach Municipal Airport.

Four helicopters and a light fixed-wing aircraft assigned to the Aviation Detachment of the 47th Artillery Brigade, Fort MacArthur, will move into a new maintenance hangar on the south side of Spring Street adjacent to the Long Beach Nike site.

The five aircraft, together with seven pilots and several maintenance personnel under Maj. D. L. Platt, have been located in buildings on the Long Beach Air Force Base strip north of Spring Street.

These structures were assigned to the detachment by the Air Force, but are no longer available since deactivation of the flying units at the base.

THE ARMY aircraft service and support operations of the 16 Nike guided missile sites in the Los Angeles area. The sites are scattered from the mountains near Chatsworth to near sea-level locations at Long Beach and Garden Grove.

The Army's aircraft includes two H21 cargo helicopters and two H23 reconnaissance helicopters. The fixed-wing craft is an L20 single engine utility model.

Personnel of the unit will use a temporary structure separate from the new hangar as an administration headquarters.

Long Beach's "globe-trotting printer" is packing his suitcase again!

Russia and Spain are the only major countries he has not seen. Steidley of 345 E. Eighth St., ex-Ozarks farm boy, was bitten by the travel bug early. When he set stories about far-away places, he said "I'm going there someday."

In 1950 he went to Europe, with visits in England, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and France—20,000 miles.

Since retirement his record: 1952 — Four and one-half months world cruise—35,000 miles.

YOUTH FOUNDATION TO OPEN

Boys 6-18 to Get Free Use of 'Saint's' Gym

By VERA WILLIAMS

The "Saint with the Brooklyn accent" is coming to Long Beach.

As a matter of fact, he already is here part of the time.

Sammy Aaronson, New York fight manager, gymnasium manager, but even better known for his never-ending, tireless efforts in behalf of underprivileged children, and the poor, the homeless, and the friendless, will be a Long Beach resident.

He has taken over the fourth floor of Morgan Hall, 835 Locust Ave. and July 1 he will open it as the Sammy Aaronson Youth Foundation Gymnasium and Boys' Club. It will be free to boys 6 to 18 years old. "Keep the kids off the streets," he believes. Boys will be taught self defense — boxing, wrestling, judo and krate (a combination of judo, boxing and wrestling.) Boys will have free use of his mats, boxing gloves, weight lifting devices, pulleys. Beginning July 18, Tuesdays will be Amateur and Pro Nights.

MAX PROVIDOR, Los Angeles sport shirt manufacturer, is underwriting the project.

HELPED HER FAMILY Girl, 13, Wins Praise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 13-year-old daughter on an unemployed Pennsylvania worker has won the praise of Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy for pitching in to help her family out of its financial troubles.

Noreen Campman, whose family lives in a house trailer near Irvine, Pa., wrote the attorney general asking him to do something about the electric bill which she thought was too high. As a result, a representative of the Rural Electrification Administration visited the trailer and found a short circuit which was running up the bill.

"Every boy and girl in America should follow your example," Kennedy wrote Noreen. "You are to be congratulated on your efforts to help your family when you thought that there was something wrong."

A PENNED NOTE at the bottom of Kennedy's letter invited Noreen to "come and visit me sometime."

from lives of crime. He did this through the medium of healthy and healthful physical activity, mainly boxing, the sport he naturally knows best. His work was with all kids, regardless of race, color or creed.

Phillip Heimlich, head of New York City's Youth Council Bureau said: "Five thousand Sammy Aaronsons could all but wipe out juvenile delinquency in the city of New York. He is the most effective single influence for good among adolescents I ever heard of."

For a quarter of a century, Sammy spent his Sunday afternoons visiting patients in a Brooklyn hospital for incurables.

His story is told grippingly in "As High as My Heart; the Sammy Aaronson Story" by Al Hirschberg and Sammy Aaronson. It is due to be made into a movie this year.

A COUPLE of years ago Sammy and his wife Lillian moved to Los Angeles where Sammy has been in the physical health department of the Los Angeles YMCA.

He is sports director for the City of Hope. He runs the "Keep the Kids Off the Streets" sports program at the Olympic Auditorium, he works on the Episcopal diocese of Los Angeles Narcotics and Drug committee.

In his spare time, Sammy runs boxing shows for charity, raises money for churches and synagogues and finds jobs for ex-convicts.

College Not for Elite Alone

WHEN HE PROMISED a group of youngsters in Sacramento this week that "there'll always be an open door and a desk for you in our colleges," Gov. Brown reaffirmed a policy which at one time in U. S. history was rarely questioned but which has drawn fire in recent years.

Not out of snobbishness, but for economic reasons, some persons contend that only the cream of the high school crop should enjoy the advantages of advanced education.

This theory is, of course, unacceptable to the majority of citizens, and in the long run is not even good economics. Human resources are the basis of a nation's wealth; you do not increase your wealth by curtailing the development of your resources.

THE THEORY OF PICKING the elite from the high schools and barring the college door to all others ignores a couple of important truths about human beings.

In the first place, they develop both mentally and physically at different rates of speed. Some of them are mature and settled and capable of making good grades during their high school years. Others don't hit their scholastic stride until sometime during their college years. Some drop out of college because they aren't ready for college, but return later to do brilliant work.

The theory also overlooks those who may not be geniuses but who possess drive and a special ability which deserves encouragement and which may carry them far beyond their intellectual superiors.

SINCE SO MANY JOBS TODAY require a college diploma, it would be a terrible injustice to rob a young man of his chance to go to college. It would be the same as telling him that he must not aspire to a standard of living above a certain point. Beyond that practical consideration, the opportunity of advanced education is the opportunity to enjoy the richer, fuller life which intellectual accomplishment and exercise make possible.

The average as well as the superior child should get his chance in the college classroom. California with its vast state college system has followed this policy up to now, and must continue to do so against the efforts of those who would bring up a master race in our colleges and keep four-fifths of the population in ignorance.

Color Money Idea Loses Favor; It's Too Easy to Copy

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE AND WILLIAM BROOM

WASHINGTON—The suggestion of U. S. Treasurer Elizabeth Smith that currency go on a multi-colored standard—that is different colored bills for each denomination—has excited popular interest, but currency experts take a dim view of the change.

The reason? Counterfeiting would be made easier. Treasury law enforcement officials say that if a ten dollar bill were blue, for instance, people would tend to read the color rather than the numerals on the bills, and thus pay less attention, making it easier for counterfeiters.

In addition, several devices are known to exist which can change the color of ink. Thus, counterfeiters could pass a green one dollar bill through an electronic device which would change it to blue, making a nice nine bucks on the deal.

Another reason: some money computing machines count the number of lines in the oval at the center of the bill, the number of lines varying with the denomination. If color and type of currency were changed, the present counting machines would become useless.

All in all, better hang on to the old green stuff. It's likely to be good for a long time yet.

STATE DEPARTMENT Russian experts are evaluating the significance of a new campaign vilifying the late Marshall Stalin in the Soviet Union. Khrushchev has begun taking cracks at his former chief again, a new anti-Stalin film is being circulated and there are series of new anti-Stalin magazine articles and radio broadcasts.

Many Western observers think the revived attacks are designed to lay the groundwork for the annual Communist Party congress this fall and demonstrate Khrushchev's consistency and efficiency. The main line of the new attacks is that Stalin was a poor leader in World War II, responsible for the heavy losses in men and equipment to the Germans. It is also being said that he was taken in by the non-aggression pact with Germany which Hitler dishonored.

IF IT'S AN EXOTIC job you're looking for, the Peace Corps has it. In announcing that the first contingent will soon go into training for service in Tanganyika, the Peace Corps also reported deadpan that each work party will be accompanied by a hunter to keep Peace Corpsmen supplied with fresh game.

NOW IT TURNS OUT that one of the heavy users of "junk" mail service is the White House itself. Friend of ours asked the White House to mail him a copy of an old report. He was told that it might be a trifle slow arriving because non-urgent mail from 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue is sent out third-class.

Big Bluffing Match but No War Crisis on Berlin Issue

WASHINGTON — Artificiality over the Berlin issue prevails on both sides.

When Nikita Khrushchev dresses himself up in a soldier suit of the rank of lieutenant-general and makes a speech full of hints of war, Secretary of State Rusk calls it "sabre-rattling," which it probably is.

Similarly, when the West carries out a military demonstration by its troops in Berlin that's called a routine "alert," the Soviets know this is done for effect, too.

Basically, neither side really believes that the other is going to war as a consequence of the Berlin issue.

But the Soviet Premier knows that, if he signs a peace treaty with East Germany, the initiative afterward in a military action will have to come from the Western allies. The mere signing of a treaty between the Soviet Union and East Germany's so-called "republic" isn't an act of war or a threat of war. But if the East German government, at the behest of Moscow, starts interfering some day with the routes of access to West Berlin, military force could be used by the Western allies to protect the transportation of any supplies or the movements of their forces to and from the city.

So a huge bluffing match is going on. Each side wants to impress the other that it means business. President Kennedy comes back from his talks with the Soviet Premier in Vienna and uses the word "somber." The briefings here to the press are characterized by words that convey a feeling of gravity and deep concern. But Secretary Rusk then tells his news conference that, while Khrushchev's latest speech is a "keen disappointment," he would hardly regard the Communist utterance as the most serious threat since World War II.

Somehow the idea that any shooting war will come of it all seems at this moment to be somewhat illusory. There isn't the mobilization for war on either side that would naturally precede the kind of crisis being envisaged in so many press dispatches and in television commentaries today.

THE REAL debate is in the court of world opinion. The Soviet Premier knows this and is trying to make his proposed program with respect to Berlin seem a part of an effort merely to bring about a "reunification" of Germany—something he really doesn't want. What he does want is to embarrass the West and divert attention from other areas of the world where the Communists are infiltrating.

The Western allies, on the other hand, feel firmly grounded in their contention that the Berlin issue involves a matter of good faith and the honoring of agreements made when World War II came to an end.

IN COLD war or hot, when things are going badly, it's well to pause and consider what a terrible time

Dems-GOP Bite Political Dog — Birch Bark Still to Come

YOUNG DEMOCRATS monitored a meeting of the John Birch Society here a few weeks ago and exercised their disfavor with that group in a series of questions directed at its leaders.

Birch-type people returned the courtesy this week by staffing the Young Democrats debate on merits of the House Un-American Activities Committee. I say "Birch-type" only because they did not identify themselves as Birch Society members. But their game is more familiar than their name.

They protested Young Democrats' use of the Dana Branch library for their debate meeting through a number of phone calls. And one of them said he would attempt to prevent a tape recording of the debate from being aired over Long Beach station KGER.

YD President Kenneth Campbell said he also was phoned by the city manager's office asking him to "confirm or deny" whether the meeting would include a mock HUAC hearing, but not saying whether pressures would be exercised against the meeting if a mock hearing were scheduled. Such a hearing was not on the program, although one had been considered.

THE PHENOMENON of Young Democrats and conservatives sharing meeting quarters is interesting, even when they reach no greater rapport than a glare.

But more interesting, and perhaps a hopeful sign that despite diverse political philosophies our young citizens recognize there is a vastly more important common ground on which they can agree—the saving of our country—is the character of two meetings held here within the week. One of Young Democrats, one of Young Republicans.

In the Democrats' debate, Del Huserik, representative of the Friends Committee on Legislation, Pasadena, spoke against HUAC. Speaking for HUAC was Bill Peake, 18th Congressional District director of the California Democratic Council.

In the Republican meeting, members debated whether to adopt a resolution opposing cultural exchange programs and submit meetings with Russia on the grounds they were being used by the USSR as a weapon of war. The resolution was defeated by a sound majority.

SO HERE we have a leading representative of CDC, an organization branded worse than left-wing during the 1960 political campaigns, defending the House committee. And a conservative young GOP group failing to reject cultural exchanges with our mortal cold war enemy.

We've not yet received the rash of letters commencing, "I'm not a member of the Birch Society, BUT..."

They will certainly depict both these developments as frauds or empathy with communism.

Bill Peake, admittedly in a bad light with some Democrats for his pro-HUAC position, defends his stand and the debate as being representative of the true liberalism which he espouses: "Liberal means flexible and tolerates differences of opinion. I thought I made a strong case for both the constitutionality of HUAC and for a legitimate purpose of HUAC."

One Young Republican summed up his club's action, "We believe you can go to the Moiseyev Ballet without endorsing the Soviet Union's ideology."

TO BIRCHERS who disagree with either or both positions, consider Congressman John Rousselot, R-California, and a Birch member himself. Rep. Rousselot admitted he has voted the Communist line if by that you mean voting for some measure which Communists also approve. He added that he tries not to do it any more than is necessary.

I do not think John Birch John Rousselot is a Communist, nor a Communist dupe, nor an agent, nor a "Comsymp," nor treasonous. I wonder if Birchers do.

Liberalism Gaining

EDITOR:

In the June 18 edition of your newspaper, one of your columnists, L.A.C., states that President Kennedy's victory last November was evidence that there is a swing against "liberalism." He further states that he can prove this. How? Just by looking at the results. Because the Democratic Party received eight million more votes in 1960 than in 1956 and that anyone can see that an increase of only eight million is distinctly a sign of growing sentiment towards Republican conservatism. What kind of thinking goes on inside of L.A.C.'s mind? With a Democratic House and Senate and with a Democratic president, the people seem to have made their choice—and not for conservatism.

Interested in Navy Hospital

EDITOR:

One again may I urge everyone who has ever been connected with the U. S. Armed Services whether reserve, active, inactive or retired personnel to write U. S. Sen. Clair Engle, Democrat of California in Washington, D.C., expressing their views and feelings why a Naval hospital in Long Beach is essential. We have them interested in Washington so let's push this issue a little harder.

Censures Those Who Dumped Dog

An open letter to the people who dumped a small female mixed Dachshund dog near Third and Redondo last Saturday:

Two people saw you open your car door, push the little dog out and drive away. She sat all day at the service station, waiting, frightened, alone. If anyone approached her, she cowered and ran. The kind man at the station put out a pan of water and some food for her but she did not touch them. Several people tried to coax her to them to help her, but she was too afraid.

Finally, after waiting hopelessly all day and all night, she started to wander, desperately trying to find her way back to a home where she was unloved and unwanted. At 7th and Ximeno she darted into the path of a speeding car. It would have been a blessing if she had been killed instantly, but her leg was injured and she limped away—still too swiftly for anyone to catch her.

Next time she may be hurt more seriously and die an agonizing death at the side of the road—perhaps after days of fear and misery. Abandoned by the humans to whom she had given all her love and devotion.

You who did this to one of God's helpless creatures are totally undeserving of the love and loyalty of a dog.

EDITOR:

Why all this horse-play about how many and what size tractors to send Castro? Why not the biggest and best, and how many depends on how many it takes loaded with soldiers to put this Communist bandit in his proper place. If we're not big enough to stop him, why do we keep telling the world we will defend all who wish to be free? What would we defend with—more tractors?

The Communists have promised to bury us and dominate the world. If it takes 28 million dollars worth of tractors to free 1,200 Cubans, what would it cost to keep the world free from now on?

While Castro takes over Cuba, Mr. K tells us to get out of Berlin and the way I hear it we might do it. Now I can see why we must beat the Communists to the moon. Where else can we go when they tell us to get out of here?

I read May 28 that a Navy veteran is getting $846.70 per month. Being a veteran myself and having a 50 per cent service disability and totally disabled from other causes, I cannot get the pension and keep my compensation. # Custer's Last Stand Made 85 Years Ago Today, 231 Died

HARDIN, Mont. (UPI)—Eighty-five years ago today one of the most controversial military figures in the history of the United States fell mortally wounded in combat on a barren, sun-dried hill in eastern Montana.

There has been little physical change in the hill in the valley of the Little Big Horn where Lt. Col. George A. Custer and the Seventh Cavalry made their famous "last stand" against odds of at least 13-1.

But the battlefield is different in many ways today. Instead of warring Indians, the sound of gunfire and cries of the dying in the worst annihilation of a U. S. Army force in this country, there are groups of tourists walking through the Custer Battlefield Museum, curiously staring at white grave markers that show where 231 officers, enlisted men, civilians and Indian Scouts were killed to a man by a force of 3,000-4,000 Cheyenne and Sioux warriors.

LOCATED 15 MILES south of here, the Custer Battlefield Monument attracts about 140,000 visitors each year. They come to look for Indian arrowheads or cartridge shells. Many are disappointed that Custer's grave is not on the battlefield with the enlisted men. His body and those of several of his officers lie at rest in West Point, N.Y.

All visitors are fascinated by the history of the battle. George Armstrong Custer, Civil War hero and veteran of numerous Indian campaigns was riding with the Seventh Cavalry to crush an Indian uprising. The uprising was led by Chiefs Sitting Bull, Rain-in-the-Face, Black Moon, Wooden Leg and Two Moon. The Indians had been ordered to return to their reservations. They had refused and war was declared.

It was 85 years ago today, trying to round up the Indians, that Custer and his men made their last stand. He and his forces were attempting to strike a blow at a camp of Indians when the main body of Sioux and Cheyenne sliced them to ribbons.

The massacre was complete. Many claim Custer's body was shot full of arrows, scalped and otherwise mutilated. The Indians hated Custer and referred to him as "Yellow Hair."

Chief Rain-in-the-Face in 1893 at the World's Fair in Chicago claimed he had killed George Custer's brother Tom in the battle—climaxing a feud that began two years pony and cut out his heart before when Tom arrested him at an Indian agency store.

"WHEN I GOT near enough to him (Tom Custer in the battle) I shot him with my revolver, jumped from my back in his face," Rain-in-the-Face bragged.

Custer's last stand marked the end of open Indian warfare in the Northwest and West.

STILL ROMANTIC

Earl Walks MM Home--at 4 p.m.

By EARL WILSON

BEVERLY HILLS—Before a lot of gossips distort the story, I'd better confess how I was seen taking Marilyn Monroe home at a most unusual hour.

The home I refer to was a bungalow deep in the dark, shadowy grounds of the Beverly Hills Hotel. At night it's spooky and, of course, with MM around, romantic.

This was at the time MM had flown to Las Vegas to hear Frank Sinatra at the Sands, and had sat at the ringside applauding. I galloped breathlessly to the phone to dictate a story about their friendship—after seeing them lete-a-tete in the lounge following the show—and I even hinted at some dramatic developments.

And after I rushed back to the lounge, there were some dramatic developments already in evidence—

MM had toddled off to bed. Frankie was still sitting there talking with some other friends. I fear I was more romantic than they were.

But let's talk about us—MM and me.

Looking sleepy and wearing dark glasses, as well as a dress, Marilyn got off a plane at L.A. International Airport which had just brought her from Las Vegas—and I waited at the ramp for her.

As I helped Marilyn across the street toward a taxi, several young fellows must have recognized me, for they began yelling and whistling. I hadn't known I was so popular in California.

MARILYN AND I were soon rolling back to Beverly Hills in the cab—just she and I and the driver—and her press agent, Pat Newcomb.

The cab driver was on the earle and I tried to keep the conversation discreet. The dialogue went like this:

MM: Oh, but I'm sleepy.

ME: You should be. It's your bedtime.

MM: My sinuses are bothering me.

ME: Do you have beautiful sinuses, too?

MM (ignoring that): Wasn't Frank wonderful? YOU must be a Sinatra fan, too!

ME: One of the first. Joey Bishop was good, too.

MM: He's so much more attractive alive than on TV. I've only seen him on the Jack Paar show.

ME: What's your recollection of the picture you did with Jack Paar and your impression of Jack?

MM (smiling): We did a love scene on a piano bench. My impression is that he took up most of the piano bench.

PAT NEWCOMB: Where is this cab driver taking us?

MM: Maybe he doesn't know the way.

CAB DRIVER: Well, here we are.

MM: I don't know why I'm so sleepy.

ME: Like I said, because 4 o'clock is your bedtime.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Doctors Hit Razor Report

(Prepared in collaboration with George X. Trimble, M.D., medical education director, Memorial Hospital of Long Beach)

By BEN ZINSER

A recent medical report recommending electric shavers in preference to blade razors is meeting with severe criticism in the medical profession.

The report, which appeared here several weeks ago, originally was published in GP, publication of the American Academy of General Practice.

Dr. H. Jack Geiger, Brighton, Mass., tells GP editors the razor report is misleading and grossly unscientific.

Dr. J. Herbert Nagler, Philadelphia, says he objects to the commercialism of the GP article. (The report mentions the brand name of the preferred electric shaver.)

Dr. Jeff Davis, New York City, denounces the report chiefly because its authors say a skin cancer of the ear resulted as a consequence of a razor cut.

Such a statement, he says, is contrary to existing scientific knowledge and medicolegal opinion.

"Numerous court proceedings, expert medical testimony and authoritative medical literature refute the erroneous implication that cancer can be produced by a single trauma (injury)," he says.

"There has never been a research experiment that proved cancer could be produced in such a fashion," Dr. Davis adds.

One of the authors of the original report, Dr. E. P. Finnerty Jr., Boston, is sticking by his guns.

Says he: "In our study, all electric razors were a marked improvement over blade shaving, and those with adjustable roller combs appeared to be a slight improvement over the others."

"The intention of the article was to point out the obvious fact that all electric razors are much more gentle on the skin than blade shaving, whether the skin is diseased or normal. Blade shaving will obviously aggravate any skin disease."

AN EMINENT cancer researcher suggests a possible means of reducing the cancer risk faced by cigarette smokers.

Dr. Ernest L. Wynder of Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research in New York says that anticancer-causing substances have been found in cigarette smoke condensate. These substances, he says, appear to inhibit the action of the suspected cancer-causing agents found in cigarette smoke.

Perhaps, he says, added amounts of the anti-substances could be placed in cigarettes.

FLUORIDATED WATER not only confers protection against tooth decay but it also appears to contribute to the development of straight teeth in children, says a researcher.

Among 160 children, 13 to 14, in Newburgh, N. Y., where water has been fluoridated since 1945, 35 per cent had nearly ideally straight teeth. But in nearby Kingston, where the water is lacking in fluoride, children with straight teeth numbered only 13 per cent.

The report is that of Dr. David B. Ast, director of the Dental Health Bureau of the New York State Department of Health.

THERE ARE NO shortcuts if you want to build up your muscular strength, says Dr. Helen J. Hislop, physiology instructor at the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine.

"Nothing can replace hard work and hard effort to improve physical fitness," she says.

She's critical of the popular "six-second exercises" recently publicized.

In most persons, she says, these exercises do not improve muscular strength to any great extent.

The six-second exercises, so called because you perform them only six seconds a day, are technically known as isometric exercises. They're exerted against an immovable object so that the muscle does not shorten. Some advocates of the abbreviated exercises contend they're as effective as prolonged calisthenics in strengthening muscles. Not so, says Dr. Hislop.

$100,000 Fire Hits Motel, 50 Guests Flee

FRESNO (AP)—A $100,000 fire caused about 50 guests to move out of Fresno's motel El Rancho Saturday.

Fire swept through 15 rooms and smoke billowed into another 15 through an air duct.

Two firefighters were injured when they fell off the slippery Spanish tile roof. Several suffered smoke inhalation.

Officials said the blaze apparently started in a linen closet.

The guests were moved to another motel.

Paddy Wagon Up for Auction

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—For that second car, how about a nice, roomy patrol wagon?

The police department said Saturday it will auction off a paddy wagon along with 59 other used or abandoned vehicles July 10.

Killed in Crash

SAUGUS (UPI)—Walter Edward Dietz, 56, a Palmdale radio-TV repairman, was killed Saturday when his pickup truck collided with a truck-trailer rig here.

'Cuckoo' Doesn't Flame But Smokes With Style

An unusually capable and well-balanced cast of players in secondary roles and a set which includes a fountain with a real spray of water provide an almost perfect background for the principals, in "The Time of the Cuckoo," which opened this weekend at the Community Theater.

Against this background, one of the two principals performs in a thoroughly convincing way. The other, unfortunately for the play, is not so good, and that makes all the difference.

"The Time of the Cuckoo" chronicles the abortive romance between a married Italian shopkeeper and an unmarried American tourist, a sensitive and sensible woman almost desperately eager for love. The setting is Venice, where, if we are to believe the lines of the play, all the time is the time of the cuckoo, a bird whose arrival heralds the season of love.

AT ANY RATE, the central conflict of the play is between the American spinster's view of life and love and the Venetian's view. The triumph of the play ought to be the victory of love over all obstacles, and the point ought to be that love is worth whatever it costs.

In the local production, however, despite its general excellence in details, the point doesn't entirely get across, because Di Rossi, as played by Frank Rugell, never does transmit a compelling illusion of desirability. He does not carry with him the aura of sexuality necessary to cause the spinster to act against all of her better judgment and inherited moral principles. The world well lost? Never.

BETTY KIMBER as Leona Samish, the spinster greatly moved by the charm of Venice and predisposed to a romantic fling, does a magnificent job of pretending that she is really interested in the shopkeeper. As far as she can go alone she is persuasive.

She can almost convince the audience that she could and would abandon everything for a moment of romance, but the audience has already seen her paramour, and, instead of sympathetically sharing her surrender, wonder what she can possibly see in him. That response rather destroys the relationship—and the play.

Working skillfully to save it are some fine performers in lesser roles. Helen Chapman as the pensione keeper speaks for the Italian point of view. She is completely natural and completely believable. Ann Dohnert plays her servant charmingly.

BILL ROBERTS and Tam Lipson as an American artist and his wife are always likeable and interesting, but not interesting enough to interfere with the major action. Reggie Bannister is good as Vito DiRossi.

Stephen Dohnert as the urchin Mauro almost runs off with a scene now and then, as a good child actor is likely to do. Luckily he is off stage at the most strategic moments.

Alveta Kay and Gil Reeves do steal their scenes. American tourists who are "doing" Europe in a few weeks, they carry with him the aura of inspire laughter at every line. If their parts had been a little larger they might have owned the play.

MAY AFFECT LBSC College Parking Fee Test Slated

Fees charged faculty members and employees for on-campus parking at Humboldt State College in Eureka were halted today by a Humboldt County Superior Court injunction.

The matter was brought before the court by a professor at the northern California institution. Parking fees have met with opposition at state college campuses throughout California.

The State College Board of Trustees' policy of charging fees will not affect Long Beach State College or other campuses. The Humboldt County ruling, however, is expected to be appealed to a higher tribunal and might ultimately affect the statewide policy.

DODGERS ROCK REDS; ANGELS CLIP BIRDS

9-7 Win Narrows Gap to 2

Gilliam, Howard
2-Out Homers in 9th
Climax Hectic Clash

By GEORGE LEDERER
L. P-T Staff Writer

CINCINNATI—Jim Gilliam doesn't hit many home runs, but when he does he makes them count.

The 32-year-old handyman connected with two out in the ninth inning Saturday for a 9-7 victory over Cincinnati that injected revitalizing bubbles into the Dodger spirits.

Gilliam's third homer of the year was the third to win a game. All three came against the first place club at the time. He defeated the Giants twice with home runs off Mike McCormick and Billy Loes on May 20 and 21, respectively.

GILLIAM'S feat Saturday was made possible by a first-pitch, pinch-hit homer by Frank Howard that tied the score at 7-7 after Bill Henry had retired the first two Dodgers in the ninth.

The Dodgers hit five homers during the afternoon and outthit the Reds 15-9, but had to come from behind three times to cut Cincy's league-leading margin to two games.

Duke Snider (4th), Tommy Davis (13th) and Charlie Neal (6th) homered with the bases empty. But Maury Wills, a little guy who never has hit a major league homer, was as much a factor with five singles, two RBI and a stolen base.

AND WHAT could be more just than to have Gilliam and reliever Ron Perranoski emerge among the heroes after reverse roles less than 24 hours earlier?

Gilliam struck out as a pinch-hitter with two out and the potential winning run on third in the ninth inning Friday. Perranoski was Friday's loser, although Larry Sherry yielded the winning hit.

Saturday, Sherry blew a 6-5 Dodger lead by filling the bases with one out in the seventh. In came Perranoski, only to walk Gus Bell on five pitches and have Gordy Coleman single home the lead run.

NEAL MADE a great play on Coleman's hit, diving for the ball and preventing another run. Perranoski then induced Bob Schmidt to hit (Continued Page C-2, Col. 1)

Four-And-Twenty Redeems Self in 'Best Race of Life'

By MAC McGUIRE

The "king" is back on the throne today but in true American tradition, he is getting an argument from the "queen."

Alberta Ranches' Four-And-Twenty, one of the fastest, but most temperamental, in the Cinema last summer by three-year-olds ever to race New Policy, took some of the in the West, redeemed himself and then some after a miserable showing in the Argonaut Stakes two weeks ago by running the best race of Peck.

His life to win the second division of the $54,675 Cinema Handicap Saturday at Hollywood Park.

The victory, a four and one-quarter length win over Mr. America in 1:47 flat, pushed Four-And-Twenty back to the top of the heap in the sophomore division. After Mr. America had jumped up as "king of the hill" in winning the Argonaut while Four-And-Twenty finished a dismal last as the odds-on choice.

JOHNNY LONGDEN took the snn of Blue Prince on his fleet junket, carrying out a blistering pace which left his closest rivals wanting when he asked Four-And-Twenty to turn it on in mid-stretch. Mr. America, carrying 122 pounds and getting a four-pound edge from the winner, closed gamely to nip We're Hoping for the place award while Olden Times finished fourth. The other four starters trailed badly throughout and were never in the hunt.

Four-And-Twenty returned $4.80, $3.60 and $3, as the crowd of 48,009 established him as the 7-5 choice, despite his poor race in the mile and one-sixteenth Argonaut. And his brilliant win, which was

Villanova Star Cracks 100-Yd. Dash Barrier

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank (Rocket) Budd of Villanova smashed another "impossible" barrier when he ran a world record 9.2 100-yard dash and Bobby Avant of the Southern California Striders shocked John Thomas in the high jump Saturday at the National AAU track and field championships started a 2-day run in Downing Stadium, Randall's Island.

A crowd of 9,456 turned out on a cloudy day to watch the 73rd edition of the event. A heavy rain had fallen most of the morning, but by the time Budd got on the track, it had dried out.

Budd, a 20-year-old junior who never had done much before this year, warmed up to his task by winning his two heats in 9.4, tying the meet record.

Then, in the final, he edged teammate Paul Drayton by about a yard going away.

Avant and Thomas each hit 7 feet on the third and final try in the high jump. But Avant won by clearing 6-10 on his first shot at the height. Thomas missed once at 6-10 and in the case of ties, the fewest number of misses down the line decides the title.

Eight finals were held on the first day and the first two finishers in each were rewarded with spots on the team that will take on Russia, West Germany, England and Poland in Olympic-style meets next month.

Ralph Boston of Tennessee A&I, who has a world record of 27-1/2 pending, won the broad jump easily with a 26-11/4 effort, tying his recognized world record.

HAYES JONES OF PONTIAC, MICH., captured the 120-yard high hurdles title for the second year in a row in 13.6, barely beating out Fran Washington of the Santa Clara Youth Village, who also was clocked in 13.6.

Dallas Long of the Southern California Striders downed old master Parry O'Brien in the shotput with a heave of 62-2. The best O'Brien could do in second place was 61-3/4.

John Fromm of Seattle won the javelin throw with a flip of 249-11/2. Defending champion Al Cantello of Philadelphia scratched at the last minute. Bill Alley of Lawrence, Kan., the favorite in Cantello's absence, was second with a 239-1/2 effort.

Dyrol Burleson and Jim Beatty took their final warm-ups for the "mile of the year" today by qualifying in the trials. Burleson won his heat in 4:13.2 and Beatty got home in 4:13.1.

PREP SENSATION ULIS WILLIAMS of Compton, Calif., led all 440 qualifiers with a sizzling 46.4.

Dixon Farmer, competing for Occidental College, Calif., finished second to Clifton Cushman, Grand Fork, N.D., in the 440 hurdles. Cushman's winning time was 50.9 while Dixon was clocked in 51.2.

Southern Cal Striders, seeking their fifth straight team title, held a commanding first-day lead with 54 points. Villanova ranks second with 19 points.

Ironically, Budd was not off to his usual bullet-like start. He opened up at 25 yards and there was no catching him.

The wind was at 0.2 meters, well within allowable limit of 2.0.

Two-Run Homer by Pearson

Moeller, Fowler
Muffle Baltimore
Cannonading, 4-1

By ROSS NEWHAN

Another scintillating relief performance by 38-year-old Art Fowler saved a 4-1 victory over Baltimore for Ron Moeller and the Angels Saturday night before 7,882 fans.

It was the Angels' sixth victory over the Orioles—the team they vowed to keep from the pennant—in 10 meetings, but only their second win in five games at Wrigley.

The series winds up this afternoon at 1:30 when Eli Grba (5-7) faces Hal (Skinny) Brown (6-3).

FOWLER came on to rescue Moeller with two out, two on and one run across in the seventh. He forced Gus Triandos to tap back to the mound to end that threat and then retired the side in order in the eighth and ninth innings, fanning three to register his second save of the year.

In his last 12 and two-thirds innings on the mound, Fowler has been absolutely brilliant. In that time, he has not been scored upon, has fanned 12 men, allowed just three walks and given up just three hits. And he's lowered his ERA to 3.00.

MOELLER (3-5), getting his first start after some 10 days spent in the bullpen, was fighting himself for most of the six and one-third innings he worked.

The 22-year-old youngster allowed six hits and four walks in that space—although three of the hits didn't come until the seventh inning.

He pitched himself into and out of a big jam in the fourth when Triandos' single and walks to Dick Williams and (Continued Page C-2, Col. 7)

It was all the way back in 1948 that Mel Patton ran the 100-yards in 9.3. Since then, the mark has been equaled by eight other sprinters—Budd included.

There have been many coaches who thought no one ever would break 9.3, but Budd's coach, jumbo Jim Elliott, said:

"I knew he could do it all along."

Two of the three watches on Budd caught him in 9.2, the third in 9.4. All three watches on Drayton had him in 9.3.

"I wasn't trying to set any world records," said Budd. "But I knew I would have to step to beat a strong field like this. I couldn't have done it without this kind of competition."

Once Over Lightly

Only One Solution to Bonus Problem

Baseball men continue to cry that the current signing of youngsters at a record bonus pace is "ridiculous." All declare something must be done.

In fact, the bonus question undoubtedly will top the agenda at the winter meetings in Florida. One of the suggestions will be to place a maximum ceiling of $15,000 on bonuses.

That, of course, is laughable because it won't stop the "gold rush." In fact, all the acceptable plans will have loopholes. The problem could have been licked long ago if baseball men really had wanted to end it. But none want their own hands tied in the event they decide to go after a promising prospect.

DAVE LEWIS

There is only one logical answer to baseball's biggest problem and that is to adopt a draft system comparable to that used by pro football.

Each June, the various major league clubs would be allowed to draft kids graduating from high school or from college. Any boy not taken in the draft could be signed as a free agent. However, the cream would be scooped up in the top rounds of the draft... just as in pro football.

The tail-end clubs would get first picks in each round and so on with the pennant-winners getting last grabs.

This would tend to balance the major leagues and would help the perennial "have nots" who cannot now compete for talent against the wealthier clubs.

Under this system there would be no need for bonus payments and the boys would be allowed to develop naturally in the various farm systems.

ANY CEILINGS ON BONUS PAYMENTS as currently suggested would be silly. Such a rule would only bring back the "cloak and dagger" under-the-table dealings that were so prevalent a few years ago under the old bonus rule.

That rule stipulated the players who signed in excess of $4,000 was a "bonus player" and as such had to be kept on the major league roster for a period of two years before he could be shipped to the minors for further development.

The clubs quickly got around this in most cases. A classic example of such dealings under that rule is how one team signed a boy for the maximum $4,000 to a minor league contract.

Everyone knew that the boy had been offered huge bonuses by several clubs. Where did the payoff come? Well, the story goes, the club purchased a piece of property owned by the boy for a sum in excess of $40,000 even though it was valued at only a couple of hundred dollars.

ADDITIONAL "BENEFITS" CAN BE slipped to kids in many other ways. For example, new cars, a wardrobe, all-expense-paid vacations, honeymoon trips when the boy gets married, well-paying winter jobs, mortgages on their home paid off, a job for the father, college educations, etc.

Only the draft could stop all this. But it is doubtful if the baseball moguls will vote for it. Right now they don't want it because it will restrict their activities.

The way bonus payments are made, it is difficult to pinpoint the actual sum a boy has been paid.

Take the case of Wilson High's Bob Bailey, who recently signed with the Pittsburgh Pirates for what was described as the largest bonus in the history of baseball.

Official announcement merely stated a "substantial bonus." Educated guesses fingered the sum at $175,000. Digging deeper, it is concluded that Bailey got $178,000. A spokesman for the Houston Colts said that they offered Bailey $22,000 more than the Pirates. Another member of the organization revealed that Houston's bid was $200,000.

WHY DIDN'T BAILEY TAKE THE largest offer, especially from a club with which he possibly could be a regular next season?

There are many reasons. First of all, bonus arrangements made the Pittsburgh offer just as attractive, if not more so than Houston's. There was no actual "net loss" in the offers due to taxes. Secondly, the bonus will be paid over a period of years to lessen the tax bite. Third, Pittsburgh figures to be a pennant contender for the next several years, which means more recognition for its players and a chance to share in the World Series' prize fund.

In the meantime, it likely will take Houston some 10 years to reach the status that Pittsburgh now enjoys and will continue to enjoy during Bailey's prime years.

Wimbledon on Monday

Pit Billie Jean Against Mexican

LONDON (AP) — American tennis players, so often among the favorites, go into the opening of the 75th Wimbledon championships Monday as the underdogs—with every chance of pulling off a few upsets.

Defections by leading amateurs to the professional ranks have left the men's singles wide open.

The withdrawals of defending champion Maria Bueno of Brazil and Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., from the women's singles means that any of the eight seeds could grab the title.

Charles (Chuck) McKinley, the 20-year-old Davis Cupper from St. Louis, sneaked into the last spot of the men's seedings. He's the only one of 17 Americans given a seedling in what could be the last all-amateur Wimbledon. The All-England club, organizer of this unofficial world championship for amateurs, wants to run an open championship for pros and amateurs next year.

KAREN HANTZE, the 18-year-old from Chula Vista, Calif., just made the seedings for the women's singles. She is in eighth position and the only American girl out of the 11 entered to get a place among the elite.

Miss Hantze is the brightest hope among the American women. But some of the other American girls could pull off a few upsets, including Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif. Miss Moffitt drew Yola Ramirez of Mexico in first-round play Tuesday.

McKinley is out to reestablish himself after being suspended for a racket-throwing incident in Australia last winter.

Doubles Win for Karen-BJ

LONDON (AP)—The women's doubles team of Karen Hantze and Billie Jean Moffitt was the only American winner as the London Grass Courts Tennis Championships concluded Saturday.

Australians Bob Hewitt and Margaret Smith won the singles titles in this tourney, the last before the classic Wimbledon Championships get under way Monday.

Miss Moffitt, Long Beach, Calif., and Miss Hantze, from Chula Vista, Calif., defeated Margaret Hunt and Lynn Hutchings of South Africa, 6-2, 13-15, 6-2 for the women's title.

Hewitt, tall, fifth-rated Australian, outclassed Chuck McKinley of St. Louis, 6-2, 6-3 and Miss Smith ousted Nancy Richey, 18-year-old from San Angelo, Tex., 6-0, 4-6, 6-2.

McKINLEY had defeated Roy Emerson, fourth seeded for Wimbledon, early in the week but couldn't handle Hewitt on this occasion. McKINLEY is seeded eighth and Hewitt is unseeded at Wimbledon. Miss Smith is second seeded in women's singles for the upcoming tourney.

Miss Richey aggravated a back injury in losing to Miss Smith but the young American lass gave the Australian "wonder girl" plenty to worry about.

Aleya Defeated

Duff Lawrence, Sepulveda, defeated Ben Aleya of Fox night and won a lopsided 6-3-1; judge Frank Forbes, decision in their nationally 8-2; and judge Joe Arm, televised fight at Madison strong, 8-1-1. The United Golf championship, Aleya is Square Garden.

"Personally, I thought I was off to a very good start." After Thomas missed twice at 7 feet, his coach, Ed Flanagan, called him over to the stands and bawled him out. It must have helped because he sailed over the bar with space to spare.

"He told me I was lazy," Thomas said. "I guess he was right. But I don't think there is anything to panic about. I have been beating myself."

"I was just plain lucky," said Avant, who starts graduate study at SC next fall. "I hurt my back slightly on the third try at 7 feet. But it is nothing to worry about."

Avant actually took only two jumps at 7-2. When Thomas missed on his last try, Avant, who jumps over the bar head first (and lands on his head) called it quits.

U.S. PUBLIX TRIALS... STATE AMATEUR... 54-HOLE CHAMPIONSHIP

BOOMING GOLF WEEK FOR L. B. ACES

By JERRY WYNN

The year's most intensive week of championship amateur golf is at hand with many Long Beach area players fingering title hopes.

It starts today at Brookside Park with qualifying for the National Public Links Championship, shifts north to Pebble Beach for the 50th California State Championship Monday through Sunday, and comes back home to Meadowlark for the 54-Hole Medal Play Championship Saturday.

day, Sunday and Tuesday, July 4.

Larry Griggs Jr. and Bob Clark of Lakewood and Tom Hickman of Meadowlark are Long Beach's top hopes in the 36-hole Publix test. They are included in a field of 64 shooting for only four berths in the U. S. championship to be played at Royal Oak, Mich., July 10-15.

The Long Beach area will be represented appropriately by about 50 players in the Golden Anniversary golfst at beautiful Pebble Beach.

Defending champion is Larry Bouchey of Alondra Park, but the favorite's role falls in former National Amateur champion Harry Ward of San Francisco.

A total entry of 250 is expected for the 16th annual Meadowlark summer classic. The championship flight lineup will be contingent on the fate of some players at Pebble Beach, but even with a few scratches, an all-star field is insured.

Those playing at Pebble Beach who will return if possible are Clover, Richardson, Ferentz, Bouchey and Dr. Don Keith of San Diego.

Definitely set for the $2,000 Meadowlark action are defending champion Steve Swain of Rancho, 1959 champion John Manville of Inglewood, former pro Bob Boughner of Rin Honda, Bob Lewis and Dick Smith of Recreation Park and a strong host club contingent that includes Craig Olson, Jack Augsbarger and Hickman.

Play will be in flights with starting times assigned from both first and 10th tees. Bob Meyers is tournament chairman, and entries still may be obtained by calling him at HA 9-2333.

Albacore Fever Strikes Again!

This is the time of year when albacore becomes the topic of conversation in tackle shops, fishing landings and wherever anglers get together. Then, when the first longfin is hooked and landed, the conversation turns rapidly into a fever. It doesn't matter much where the fish was caught, just as long as the place was on this side of the Pacific.

The Sportfisher IV, of San Diego, radioed Thursday that three passengers aboard had caught longfins 70 miles southwest of Point Loma. The Sportfisher was en route to Guadalupe Island, off the Mexican coast, on a special charter.

The Sportfisher's skipper added that there were other hookups and that a good-sized school was around the boat. Later in the day, radio reports came from a commercial boat 110 miles out that its crew had picked up a dozen albacore.

All of this doesn't add up to a school of longfins off Long Beach today, or even a week from today, but it does make interesting conversation.

JUST MENTION ALBACORE where ocean fishermen congregate and you'll find ready listeners and talkers. In fact, the albacore probably is the most-talked-about fish in the world. It doesn't matter if the local fleets are catching thousands of other edible fish—even barracuda and yellowtail—the longfin immediately becomes the central subject.

There's a reason for this. The albacore is one of the world's greatest game fish and to catch even one is a rare privilege. And to catch a limit one must have muscles of steel if he is fishing with light tackle.

Every one who has a connection with the sportfishing fleet here has a different idea about albacore. One will tell you that this is the year for the fish to run between here and Catalina Island. Another will say, "No, they'll run outside of San Clemente Island."

No one—I repeat, NO ONE—knows what the albacore will do. If the schools run in San Pedro Channel (between here and Catalina), it will, as always, be a rare occasion.

The best fisheries experts in California, federal and state, watch for signs of where the albacore will go, but most of them avoid any direct prediction. Only the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries has gone out on a limb; it says that this year's catch will be one-third less for the commercials than for an average year, and that the fish will be caught farther south.

IF A TRIP INTO ONE of America's great wilderness areas fits into your vacation plans this summer, the Wilderness Society may provide just that kind of opportunity.

This national conservation organization, with headquarters in Washington, D. C., has a program called "A Way to the Wilderness," directed by Don Clauser from the society's field office in Santa Fe, N. M.

Several trips are scheduled by the society into some of the finest wild and primitive areas that are left in the nation. They offer a chance to see unsurpassed scenery, wildlife, Indian artifacts and cliff dwellings, fishing, hiking, photography and even canoeing.

The trips range in length from 11 to 13 days in the months of June, July, August and September. One, into the Gila Wilderness of New Mexico, started last week. Another, into the Rio Grande and San Juan Wilderness of Colorado, starts tomorrow.

Teton and Yellowstone Park Wilderness of Wyoming, July 24-Aug. 4; Bob Marshall Wilderness of Montana, July 24-Aug. 4; Idaho's Salmon River Wilderness, Aug. 14-25; Flat Tops Wilderness, Colorado, Aug. 15-25; Pecos Wilderness of New Mexico, Sept. 18-28; Quetico-Superior Wilderness of Minnesota and Canada, July 17-26.

Travel will be by horse, except the Quetico canoe trip and the opportunity to finish the Salmon pack trip in river boats on the Middle Fork of the Salmon River.

The trips are designed for the novice as well as the more experienced travelers. Prices range from $210 to $310 per person.

Those interested may obtain brochures by writing Don Clauser, director, "A Way to the Wilderness," P. O. Box 1229, Santa Fe, N. M.

There's a lot of humor, pathos and high adventure in "The Old Man and the Sea" by Ernest Hemingway. The book is published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc., 383 Madison Ave., New York 17, N. Y.

A book just published this month, "Weather, Water and Boating," by Donald A. Wheeler, provides a lot of information on the weather and rapidly taking over the waters of this country.

Whoever is well qualified as the author of such a book, having spent many years as a heavy weatherman in all parts of the world.

He is a professional meteorologist who has spent thousands of hours teaching U. S. Power Squadron classes. Yet, his book is not so technical that it becomes uninteresting.

A person reading the book thoroughly would be in a far better position to "get the feel of the weather" when he started a trip, and it certainly would help him to make the best of his time while away.

The book is published by Cornell Maritime Press, Inc., of Cambridge, Maryland.

"The most dramatic offer ever made about an oil product for your car's engine,"

SAYS TOM McCaHILL,

AMERICA'S NUMBER ONE AUTOMOTIVE AUTHORITY

IT COSTS YOU NOTHING IF RISLONE DOESN'T HELP CURE THESE COMMON ENGINE AILMENTS!

HERE'S WHAT TOM McCaHILL—AUTOMOTIVE ENGINEER, TEST DRIVER, CRITIC, AND THE MOST WIDELY-READ AUTOMOTIVE WRITER IN THE WORLD—HAS TO SAY ABOUT SHALER RISLONE...

"Take it from me, there's nothing like Rislone. I've made this test myself: I added a quart of Rislone to the crankcase of a cranky Detroit Chariot. Then I drove this lumbering monster for 10 miles... and gave a listen. Brother, I could actually feel the difference. The engine had suddenly regained that old 'get-up-and-go' it had when there were all those goose eggs on the mileage indicator. The old ticker started a lot quicker and easier, and it ran more quietly and smoothly than it had a few minutes before. "Rislone really works—what more could anyone ask? This stuff is great for today's high compression engines, especially those that develop tremendous horsepower. You see, even the new high detergent motor oils leave gum and sludge deposits in the engine that gradually cut down power and compression. Rislone actually absorbs and eliminates gum and sludge deposits as they form... keeps your engine slick as a whizzer. "Have your service man put a quart of Rislone in the old bus today... and always include Rislone when the oil is changed. You'll discover the difference in 10 miles, too!"

GUARANTEED to free sticky valves, eliminate noisy hydraulic valve lifters.

GUARANTEED to absorb power-robbing gums and sludge, restore lost compression and power.

GUARANTEED to keep oil free-flowing, even in sub-zero weather.

GUARANTEED to facilitate break-in of new or reconditioned engines; permit normal driving speed immediately.

GUARANTEED to keep your car engine running at peak efficiency... can save up to $50 a year on your gasoline, maintenance and repair bills.

You must be satisfied that RISLONE does the job—or your dealer will refund the full purchase price!

Shaler Rislone, the original oil alloy, has stood the test of over 30 years of constant use by motorists throughout the world. Car owners, fleet owners, farm machinery operators—more than 50 million in all—add Rislone with every oil change. This is why Shaler can guarantee improved engine performance or your money back. Ask your service man to add Rislone to the crankcase motor oil today... only $1.50 a quart everywhere.

CARL TERZIAN
Speaker at NOMA Meet

Noma Sets Last Meet of Season

The National Office Management Association will honor its past presidents at its final dinner meeting for the summer Tuesday evening in the Panorama Room of the Lafayette Hotel.

Past President O. Merle Brown of Richfield Oil, will be presented with the Merit Award Key and Scroll, the highest honor a NOMA Chapter can bestow upon an individual member. It is earned through long and active service to the Chapter.

Herbert M. Vaughn, of Commercial Business Service, the new president of the Long Beach Chapter, announced that Carl Terzian will speak on: "Business Looks at American Leadership," touching on Pro-Americanism and our youth and Communism.

Terzian graduated Magna Cum Laude in political science from the University of Southern California in 1957, writing one of the most impressive scholastic and leadership records ever credited to an undergraduate.

In 1958, at the request of the U. S. Department of State he traveled 40,000 miles in Australia, Southeast Asia, and parts of the Middle East and Europe explaining the American Way of life to young and old. In four months his warmth, understanding and straight-forwardness earned him the admiration and confidence of all of America's friends and foes alike.

Currently successful in the public and church relations field, Terzian is also a popular speaker before conventions and conferences, public forums, women's clubs and service groups, youth meetings and radio and television audiences.

Golden West Estates Large Home Appeals

Buyers of the new Plan 400 at Golden West Estates, near Westminster and Huntington Beach, are impressed by the fact that it includes four big bedrooms plus a spacious family room, reports Jim McCarthy, vice president of McCarthy Co., builder-developers. Recent purchaser Warren C. Underwood of Point Mugu reports that his family is pleased with the spaciousness and convenience of the floor plan.

Here is one of the models of the large homes offered in Golden West Estates near Westminster. Some of the models have four bedrooms and a large family room.

"We like the breakfast bar especially," Underwood says. "And it's going to be nice having meals beside our glass doors in the family room. Another thing," he adds, "the price range is excellent for a Southern California beach neighborhood. Cooling ocean breezes keep the air at close by are the Long Beach and Balboa marinas, fine golf courses, beautiful parks, and free from smog. McCarthy says.

Offered with three or four bedrooms, two baths, large family rooms and oversized two-car garages, the new Golden West homes are priced as low as $16,700. Buyers may take advantage of GI no down-payment terms, $700 down FHA terms, or $395 down conventional terms.

LEADING all sales is a unique new double-patio plan, with both patios giving access to an enormous kitchen-dining-family room complex. The front patio serves as an impressive enclosed entryway. From Long Beach, the homes may be reached by driving east on Seventh Street

New, Easier Terms for Talbert Plaza

Outstanding new terms with homes may be reached via no second trust deeds, no balloon payments and no due dates, are helping to interest crowds of home buyers in the new family-designed homes at Talbert Plaza, reports officials of the Mills Construction Co., builder-developers.

Included in each kitchen of the new homes is a built-in deluxe dishwasher, a feature unusual in the moderate Talbert Plaza price range. The work-saving dishwasher takes its place along with such features as a Waste King disposal and a range and oven in color with built-in hood by Bel Aire.

Elsewhere in the new Talbert Plaza homes, immense sliding glass doors and decorative brick or stone fireplaces add interest-accent to the bright, modern styling. As much as 1200 square feet of family living area is included in the spacious interiors, which incorporate three or four bedrooms and two full baths. Every home is served by a large double garage.

PRICED FROM $15,750 to $16,450, the outstanding Talbert Plaza homes are situated in a superb valley-view locale studded with mature shade trees. The homes are offered with low $425 total move-in costs.

Talbert Plaza's easy 48-hour trade-in plan permits the buyer to use his present home as equity or give it over for a cash return, thus avoiding all problems of refinancing and selling the home.

Just one block from the homes is an elementary school. Two minutes away is the new Broadway shopping center, and four minutes away are the beaches. Also close at hand are five complete golf courses, plus the Huntington Beach and Long Beach Marinas.

Arthur C. Allyn, who recently purchased control of the Chicago White Sox baseball team, is president of Arnell.

Westmont Homes 'Bonus Room' Small Home Unit Opens Proves Big Appeal to Buyers

SPACIOUS EXTRA ROOM

New sales sensation, the versatile Westmont "Bonus Room" appeals to visitors at the new Huntington Beach location. Free room can be used for rumpus or play room, den or two complete bedrooms and is included without charge at the Westmont homes. A total of 1728 square feet is offered for as little as $16,995.

Already being hailed as a rock or wood shake roof, THE BUILDERS, George M. Holstein and Sons pointed out that the new "Bonus Room" feature makes the Westmont homes one of the nation's best buys.

"Now buyers can purchase at less than $10 per square foot—unheard of since pre-war times," Holstein explained.

Big Stardust Home Asks $99 of Vets

Veterans' total $99 move-in costs are offered at Stardust Homes' new Huntington Beach location, where genuine hardwood floors add lustrous beauty throughout the family-styled residences, states Robert H. Grant, Orange County builder. According to Grant, Stardust Homes is one of the few builders in their price class to offer this quality feature.

Grant and Stardust Homes were recently honored by Grant being named to serve on LIFE Magazine's Merchandising Committee, a group dedicated to promoting a free exchange of ideas for the improvement of building standards throughout America.

The new Stardust Homes are available with four big bedrooms, making them easily adaptable to the changing needs of growing families. Furthering this advantage is an expandable "Jack and Jill" room which closes off into separate sleeping quarters, or opens up for easier cleaning and larger play space.

PRICED WELL below the market, as low as $14,900, the new Stardust-Huntington Beach homes may be purchased with low $99 GI total move-in costs or with outstanding non-vet terms which include $299 total move-in costs.

Among the quality features of the new homes are rich mahogany kitchen cabinets, mahogany doors and panels.

Device Cleans Dirty Coins

CHICAGO (UPI)—An ultrasonically activated cleaning solution has been introduced here to remove dirt, grime, grease and even germs from coins at a rate of 5,000 every 12 minutes.

Into a tank that looks like a French-fry basket go old and dull money, regardless of denomination. The coins are subjected to vibrations up to 20,000 cycles per second while millions of ultrasonic bubbles are exploded against their metallic surfaces, freeing them of dirt and adhering chemical deposits.

A dip in a "drying bath" of alcohol completes the process.

Small Cars Now Use Footbridge

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—The Small Car Era has created new problems for city officials.

Despite a clearance of only eight feet and some sharp turns, a new footbridge is being used as a shortcut by drivers of small sports cars.

A grand opening will be held this weekend for the second unit of Village Green, (left) in Palm, then east a development of two-bedroom homes in the City. The sales office at 709 W. of Orange stressing sensible Palm Ave. is open daily from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. for families and retirees.

Homes are offered from $12,250, with orange trees, grapestake or split rail fencing on pleasant lots. They include wall-to-wall carpeting, fireplaces with convenient log lighters, private patios, doors, attached garages and modern kitchens.

This is only the beginning of a plan to have 36 Zody's throughout the state. These are complete discount department stores, modern and of considerable size. For example, the new Zody's in Long Beach will cover approximately 79,000 sq. ft., on a 7 1/2-acre site in Los Altos. Unlike most discount operations, all departments are owned and operated by Zody's.

MRS. PEGGY LANDGREN has been appointed escrow officer and assistant secretary of Aetna Savings and Loan Association, according to Robert N. Bickett, executive vice president and managing officer of the Long Beach association.

To her new position Mrs. Landgren brings the knowledge and experience gained in a nine-year career in escrow work with savings and loan institutions.

Her Aetna Savings appointment follows a very short-term "retirement" from professional life which Mrs. Landgren had planned to be permanent. Since her marriage, she has worked for five years in Long Beach and Belmont Shore associations. She and her husband, Elton Landgren, live in Belmont Shore.

The association office is at 2137 Bellflower Blvd.

Haiti Apt to Swing to Reds

By CHARLES KEELY
Copy News Service

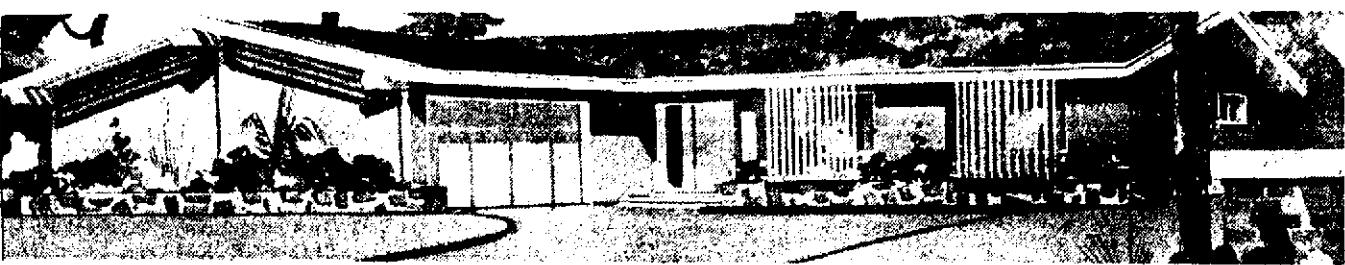

The United States has another "dictatorship" to worry about in the Caribbean.

At a time when attention is centered on Premier Fidel Castro in Cuba and "Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff" Ramfis Trujillo in the Dominican Republic, the tiny republic of Haiti has emerged with almost a one-man rule.

Although President Francois Duvalier's first six-year term does not expire until 1963, the cold-eyed ruler of the world's oldest Negro republic recently had himself elected to a second term which will not begin until the present one ends.

VOTERS, ASKED TO ELECT a unicameral assembly—after Duvalier dissolved the previous bicameral body—went to the polls to rubberstamp the 58 hand-picked candidates and found the president's name at the top of the list. There was no choice save to approve the whole list or not vote at all. Surprised Haitians learned a few days later that they had unanimously continued their 52-year-old president in office until 1969.

If, in the aftermath of the death of Trujillo, the Dominican Republic falls to a leftist coup, revolution, or invasion by exiles or Castro, Haiti would be next in line of the Communist sweep. And with acquisition of that poverty-plagued nation, the Reds would control the whole northern tier of the Caribbean islands.

ONE OF MANY SOL VISTA HOMES OFFERED

Strikingly individual in design, Sol Vista Homes in the Huntington Beach Westminster area offer many models, including this large home. The large homes are priced from $17,650.

House 'n Horses Keep Her Galloping

Cute Karen Patterson, One-Time Beauty Queen, Shapes Up as Housekeeper and Horsekeeper

Karen and new colt

Mary
Ellis

When beauty queen Karen Krancus (now Mrs. Harris Patterson) set out down the bridal path, she ended up on a horse ranch.

Which is exactly where she was headed in the first place.

"At one time, I thought I'd go into the field of animal husbandry," says hazel-eyed, blonde Karen, who won the Miss Welcome to Long Beach title here in 1959.

"Then, I decided maybe it would be simpler to become a movie star and buy my own horse ranch.

"But along came Harris and I fell right off my horses-horses-horses kick. I decided to corral him, instead."

LUCKILY, Harris Patterson (her hubby of a year and a half) had a penchant for solid-hoofed mammals, too. So with her trek down the bridal path, Karen "altared" her future to include Harris, housekeeping AND horses.

In fact, the equestrian-minded couple now lives on the ranch where they first met, located at 12427 Ball Road, one of the few undeveloped tracts left in the Los Alamitos area.

"I used to ride horses at the ranch quite often"—it's owned by Harris' uncle, L. E. Patterson—but, at the time, Harris was off in the Dominican Republic taking care of cattle and horses on a sugar plantation," recalls Karen.

"But one day, when I was looking for a horse to buy, I went out to the Patterson ranch—and there he was. I forgot all about buying the horse..."

BACK IN her beauty title days, Karen had considered becoming a professional dancer, like her one-time-trouping mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Krancus, 350 Claremont Ave.

In fact, while a part-time drama student at Long Beach City and State colleges, she danced with the Long Beach Civic Light Opera, also did a lead part or two at the Off-Broadway Theatre.

"But I soon found that I enjoyed prancing horses more than dancing courses," says Karen. "Now, I wouldn't trade roles with Marilyn Monroe."

RIGHT AFTER their Palm Springs honeymoon, the newlyweds moved to the ranch. (Harris manages it for his uncle.)

"I was thrilled to death we did," says Karen. "At first, I was afraid to mention living there because I was afraid Harris'd think I married him for his horses."

"And he thought I wouldn't want to live there because it was pretty run down. But we finally discovered it was what we both wanted."

So, "Guestward Ho" fashion, they slapped on some paint, had a battle or two over how to re-do the fireplace, refinished the floors, pasted on some new wallpaper and moved in.

OF COURSE, life on a horse ranch isn't ALL clover. City-girl-turned-country lass Karen found there were a few hurdles to clear before the going was smooth.

Things like preparing early breakfasts and late dinners (7 a.m. and 9 p.m.), getting up nights with soon-to-foal mares, exercising race horses before breakfast, cleaning out stalls, grooming colts for horse shows and a "few odd-jobs like that."

Of course, there have been a few minor crises—like the time Karen had a mishap with the tractor.

"I'd just learned to drive the contraption," laughs Karen. "I was helping feed the horses one morning, driving while Harris baled out feed from the trailer I was pulling."

"I made too sharp a turn and ran smack through the fence. He barked 'What did you do THAT for?' I thought he was being cross and burst into tears."

AND THERE have been a few minor conflicts like Harris tracking mud through the house (he leaves his boots on the front porch now) and whether to have pets in the house.

"I love animals," says Karen, who in her spare life has owned a menagerie of cats, dogs, horses, rabbits and chickens. "But Harris is allergic."

When they moved to the ranch, Karen's aristocratic white poodle didn't get along with the horses OR Harris. So she gave her favorite canine to a girl friend.

Now they're down to eight cats and a fox terrier—all outdoor variety.

BUT THERE are plenty of equestrian types around to keep Karen interested. The Pattersons, who raise thoroughbreds and quarter horses, have 90 horses and 20 colts (this week's count).

They also have a few race horses stationed at nearby tracks, including five at Caliente. One Patterson horse, "Dr. Rand Z," holds a world record at the Los Alamitos track.

LATEST ADDITION at the ranch (except for several new colts) is the Pattersons' 4-month-old daughter, Erin Marie, a lively young lady who's already taken her first ride on a horse.

About Erin's prowess at crawling, Karen comments typically: "She's already up on all-fours!"

But even more typical is her breathless remark: "Boy, this being mother, housekeeper and horsekeeper really keeps me galloping!"

Here Are Some of the Hurdles...

GETTING UP with chickens (or horses) has been one of most difficult chores Linda's encountered with ranch life. Here Harris gives it's-time-to-get-up alarm. He's already been out to feed horses.

MUDDY boots are off limits in the Patterson ranch house these days. "We had an awful time at first with Harris tracking mud across the rug," says city-girl-turned-country-lass Karen. "But now we've come to understanding—he leaves them on the front porch."

TRACTORS AND race tracks are part of Karen's new country-style life. She's learned to drive contraption above to help Harris with feeding chores. One day she ran tractor through fence.

FASHION FOOTNOTES

Tip-To-Toe Look for Fall

By MARY ELLIS
I. P. T. Fashion Editor

Three toe shapes—pointed, squared and crescent—are gaining a fashion foothold for fall.

So said spokesmen for the Los Angeles Shoe Retailers' Association during a luncheon meeting for the press at LA's swank Statler Hilton Hotel.

"You buy the shape of shoe that fits your dress silhouette—AND your foot," said Irving F. Grossman, former executive head of I. Miller's manufacturing operation in New York, now owner of a retail store in Los Angeles.

AS COMFORTING news for those women who have felt the pinch of pointed toes, he said the slender styles for fall "will be comfortable on almost any foot if properly fitted."

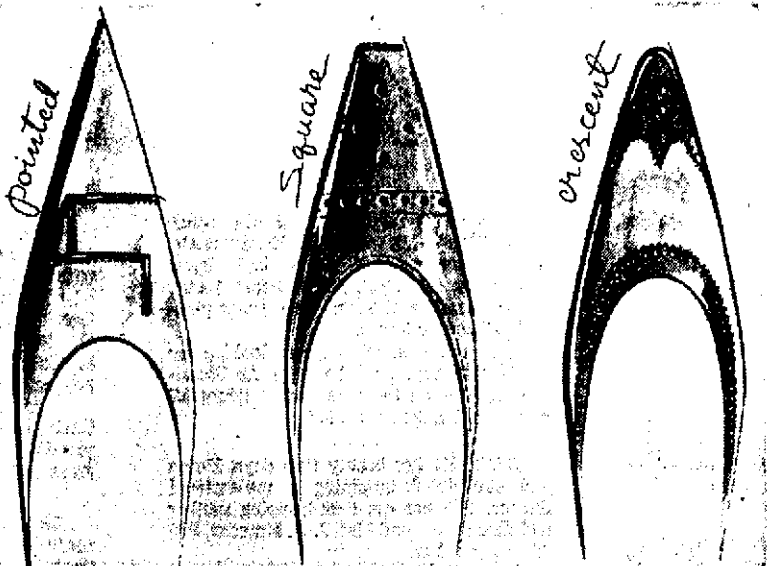

He noted that the pointed toe, available in varying degrees of pointedness, is still out front for dress. Perched on high or mid-high heels, the needle is unparalleled for elegance and grace.

The squared toe (actually a snipped-off point), which was launched in Paris, marks the new semi-tailored shoe with a young, chic look.

"It is perfect with non-chalant easy-dress silhouettes," he pointed out. In the squared toe shoe, the line from the throat to toe lowers gradually, lengthening and flattening softly to a squared off end.

The crescent toe adds still another look to milady's shoe wardrobe. It is the tailored or walking-type shoe with a gently ovalled toe, long and tapered to a narrow-down curve.

"The crescent is completely new and should not be confused with the rounder baby-doll toe of several years ago," Grossman noted.

THE SHOE industry also foresees these added trends:

—Less emphasis for daytime on the spike heel and more on a "plumper" heel of one and one-half to two inches; the highest heel for evening, to measure two and five-eighths inches.

—More emphasis on color, with a pale gray tone called Camellia overtaking the popular bone shades; a whole range of electric and turquoise blues, bright oranges, strawberry and raspberry tones, yellow-greens and browns by next year; —And a new look in soles, with the section under the arch decorated with jewels or nailheads in dressy footwear.

HEAD MGM movie designer Helen Rose, who is constantly on pins and needles dressing such stars as Lana Turner, Ava Gardner and Liz Taylor, was on hand to comment on the importance of coordinating clothes and shoes.

"In the movie industry you have to be a tip-toe designer," said this California couturier with enough creative energy to have garnered 25 designer awards and two Oscars.

As an example, she described the recent head-to-toe look created for Lana Turner in her forthcoming picture, "Bachelor in Paradise."

"Lana plays the part of a lady executive in Southern California—and she had to look the part," said Miss Rose. "After a good deal of thought and energy (it isn't easy to make Lana look like an executive), we came up with a pale gray and white pin-striped suit, a tailored white straw hat by Mr. Rex and pale gray kid shoes—just the finishing touch to complete her costume."

"Studio executives said Lana had never looked more chic."

TO MISS ROSE, the art of being chic should be compared to creating the background for a beautiful gem.

"You put the jewel in an elegant, simple setting," she said. "You don't gawk it up so that the setting and not the jewel draws the eye."

"I believe in a woman knock 'em dead with simplicity."

"And that goes for shoes, too. The simple, classic lines that look elegant and complete the over-all look are most effective."

She noted that Cyd Charisse is a natural with clothes because she has wonderful fashion know-how.

"She has a lovely, graceful foot and wears shoes beautifully," said Miss Rose. "Besides that, she walks like a dream."

COST OF MILK—

More in Cents; Less in Hours

"No wonder the farmers are getting rich!"

That's the frequent complaint made by Mr. Supermarket Shopper when he reaches for his wallet at the checkout stand.

But what did he buy for his money?

Suppose the bill were for $12.91 and purchases included such items as six bottles of soft drink, three pair of hose, two long-playing records, 50 pounds of softener salt, one mop, one egg beater, one quart of milk and one box of dry cereal.

The food items came to 52 cents. The farmer's share—13 cents.

WITH supermarkets merchandising many hundreds of non-food items, it's easy to forget that food really is a bargain.

What's the real price of a food? In the first place it's determined by the amount of work a consumer has to do to earn enough money to buy it.

When one looks at some of the facts about one food, milk, it's easier to appreciate the part American farmers have in supplying high quality at low prices.

A recent pamphlet released by the University of California Consumer Marketing Information makes use of United States Bureau of Labor Statistics data going back to 1890 to point up the progress made in delivering milk to market at less cost for the consumer.

THE FACTORY worker's average hourly wage was 16 cents in those days. Milk was 6.8 cents a quart, so it required 25.5 minutes of work to buy one quart.

In 1914 the average wage-earner worked 22.9 minutes to earn enough for a quart of milk. He worked 15.3 minutes in 1929, 9.5 minutes in 1947, and only 6.8 minutes in 1959, to earn the price of the same amount.

Milk has increased in price during this time—but wages have gone up at a faster rate, with the result that it now takes less time to earn the cost of one quart of milk.

TODAY'S real price of milk to the consumer can be explained simply: the farm price for milk has changed very little during the last 10 years. But the retail price is higher because it costs more to market it. But incomes are even higher than that . . . so it takes a smaller part of one's income to buy one quart of milk.

There are three steps in milk's trip from farm to consumer . . . collecting, processing and bottling, and distributing.

The shopper in the supermarket would be surprised to learn that the dairy farmer would receive only 10.9 cents of the $12.91 bill.

Here is what happens. When you buy a quart of milk, the farmer gets 10.9 cents. The marketing system gets about 13 cents for assembling, processing, retailing, delivery and other expenses: that leaves one cent profit before taxes.

There is practically no waste in the use of dairy products. The homemaker gets a full pound of usable product for each pound she buys. Milk is a real food bargain.

The host couples include Mr. and Mrs. Everett E. Gaffey, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Long Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Neer.

Setting for the 2 to 4 p.m. event will be Ferndale Wedding Chapel, Santa Ana.

European Honeymoon Trip

Slated to sail yesterday aboard the S. S. United States for a honeymoon trip through Europe were newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. C. Standlee Martin Jr.

last Tuesday in St. Francis of Assisi Chapel of Mission Inn, Riverside.

The lovely dark-haired bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Drumm of Orange, was escorted by her father to the altar where Dr. Thomas F. Hudson of Riverside officiated.

Her white silk peau de soie gown trimmed with deep Venice lace was designed with basque bodice and bouffant skirt which fell into a sweeping train. A queen's crown of pearls held her veil of illusion, and lilies of the valley surrounding an orchid formed her bouquet.

Hyacinth silk organza was worn by the attendants, Marcia Gail Drumm, her sister's maid of honor; Misses Jill Kinney of Los Angeles and Gretchen Wagner of Whittier, Kappa Alpha Theta sorority sisters of the bride at USC.

THE BRIDEGROOM, son of well-known Long Beach residents, the C. Standlee Martins of 4243 Country Club Dr., chose as best man Stephen Conley of Santa Ana. Ushering were Volney McCutchan of Riverside, bridegroom's brother-in-law; and David Winkler of Newport Beach.

Floating arrangements of pink and white water lilies adorned the Atrio of the Inn where a reception for the 150 guests took place. Following return from their honeymoon in September the bride will re-enter USC for her senior year. The bridegroom was graduated in June from USC where he was a member of Phi Delta Theta.

Married in San Jose

Alum Rock Methodist Church, San Jose, was the setting for the recent marriage of Karen June Brubaker to Theodore C. Nagel.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Grace Brubaker and Lester Brubaker of San Jose, wore a silk organza gown and carried a cascade bouquet of flowers.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin W. Nagel, 4336 Elm Ave., asked Roger Phillips to serve as best man.

Both bride and bridegroom were graduated from San Jose State College. She was a member of Kappa Phi Sorority and he of Epsilon Phi Tau Fraternity. He also attended Long Beach City College and was graduated from Poly High School here.

Maxine Katz Wed to Berkeley Senior

Newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Earl Averbuck are now at home in Berkeley following their honeymoon trip to Carmel and Lake Tahoe.

A ceremony uniting them was held at Temple Israel here. The bride, the former Maxine Joan Katz, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Milton A. Katz, Lakewood, wore a pink silk street-length dress and was attended by Elsie Levin as maid of honor.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Averbuck, San Francisco, chose Bill McClintock as best man. Ushers were Treuman P. Katz, the bride's brother, and David Averbuck, the bridegroom's brother.

THE NEWLYWEDS will continue studies at UC of

Mrs. Nathan Averbuck

Berkeley, where both are seniors.

She was graduated from Poly High School and is a member of Alpha Epsilon Phi Sorority and was chairman of University Day on the Berkeley campus.

He is a varsity basketball player, a member of the NCAA championship team and was crowned king of the campus on University Women's Day.

The Wild Waves Say . .

By IOLA MASTERSON
I, P-T Women's Editor

AFTER A thorough, delightful tour of the Orient, Nancy and Lyman Lough returned the other day. First thing old Lyman did was hasten to a pictorial emporium to have their color pictures processed. This, in itself, was no small chore because he had taken a grand total of 800 pix. 800! However, if you get an invitation to their home, don't panic. The sad, sad truth of the matter is, every last one of them turned out blank. Lyman, a real camera addict, had spent endless hours getting what he had hoped would be some really doozers.

What happened, according to a usually reliable source (!) is that while skiing in Switzerland earlier in their travels Lyman, camera slung over his shoulder, had taken a tumble. His fancy equipment appeared unharmed. Oh, bitter truth.

NEVER THOUGHT I'd live to see the day when Dan Farnham would have the swelled head—but he's got it now, the hard way. Diagnosis: mumps. He found out why he felt so gosh-awful last Monday. And you know where he got 'em? From law partner, Bill Begon. Don't suppose it would stand up in court but that's the way the germ bounces. Now the man on the tight-rope is the other partner, Jim Baker. However, he thinks he had them once. How's that for whistling in the dark?

WHEN Oma and Slim

Fowler were shopping around for a dude ranch for the family to go to on vacation they discovered the Silver Spur in Denning, N.M. "We'll take it," they said. It took a little longer to convince the ranch owner they meant lock, stock and barrel for a week. Local family members involved in the king-sized reunion are Gloria and Earl Wallace, Judy and Don Fowler, Margaret and Cleron Henderson and Barbara and Bill Goldsmith. Others of the Fowler clan will be there from Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico.

SEVERAL years ago Ruth and Dr. Fred Jensen had car trouble while traveling in Mexico and, to make a long story short, subsequently became acquainted with some charming people in the process of getting it repaired. They invited the son of their new found friends, Sergio Balmori, to spend the summer here with them so he could practice his English. Well, he's been doing just that for several summers.

This year the parents and other friends were invited for a visit on the Jensen's own, private foreign exchange program, Senor and Senora Edouardo Gonzales (Sergio's parents) are houseguesting with Fred and Ruth. The Gonzales' friends, Senor y Senora Jorge Salido and daughters, Lucy and Lourdes, were invited to houseguest with Nan and Roger Williams at their home in Downey. The girls plan to remain for six weeks to study in summer school here.

Thursday night the Jensons entertained at a fiesta for all the visitors and there was enough fun generated to cover both South and North of the border.

DOWNRIGHT sneaky of our food editor, Millie Flanary. She's overseeing our annual I, P-T cook book contest which is now open to you all to enter. HOWEVER, it isn't open to employees. Professional jealousy, is all. She's afraid I'd win with my favorite recipe for Heavenly Chocolate Coated Clams. Oh, well. Win a few, lose a few.

Representatives from the various women's clubs of town who will judge the recipes sent in (grand prize is a handsome new stove, y'know) met at the Ridder home Wednesday for a tea and briefing session. A few of those on hand, from left to right, were Pat Brennan, Carolyn Raney, Betty Hardesty, Beryl Kuster, Agnes Blehm and Vi Dovey.

IT WAS LOVE at first sight between Dick Donovan and Hawaii. He went over just to get acquainted and then, wham! Dick, who was on a reconnoitering journey, leaves mid-July for Honolulu to make it his home. He will take over as office manager for a concrete pipe firm. Although his folks, Florence and Neil, will hate to see him go just think what a delightful excuse they'll have for a trip to Polynesia!

WHEN I was young it was always the old ones who were the smart ones to be looked up to. I'm constantly amazed to find myself looking through the other end of the telescope anymore. Hardly seems fair for one of my advanced years to feel necessary to call some young whippersnapper "distinguished." However: — Distinguished guests in town, beginning Tuesday, will be Dr. James and Jannie Hester and their daughters, Jim (president of the class of '42 at Wilson) and family are here to visit his parents, Chaplain and Mrs. James Hester, 2105 E. Ocean Blvd., and his sister, Virginia Ladney. The young whippersnapper, illustrious guest, is dean of the Graduate School of Liberal Arts and Sciences, New York University. (Bet he can't cook Heavenly Chocolate Coated Clams!)

INSPECTING latest in wirephoto receivers on visit to Independent, Press-Telegram city room, Inji Roushdi of Egypt comments that they, as yet, do not have one of this type on Cairo newspaper where she is a feature editor. She is on brief visit to Southland.—(Staff photo.)

Richey-Spafford Troth Announced

Sandra Thomas Richey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamilton Richey, will become the Sept. 1 bride of Richard Alan Spafford, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harold Spafford.

Announcement was made at a cocktail buffet in the home of the bride's parents. A basket of flowers at the front door heralded the event with ribbon streamers announcing "Sandy and Dick."

THE BRIDE-ELECT was graduated this spring from Long Beach State College with a major in art. She is a charter member of the local Delta Gamma sorority chapter.

Her prospective bridegroom, an accounting major at LBSC, is a member of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity.

Sandra Richey

Miss Richey is granddaughter of Mrs. Ralph R. Richey, Long Beach, and Mrs. Daniel G. Thomas, Colton.

Egyptian Newspaperwoman Unveils Views on America

By BETTY WENTWORTH

Egypt! A name that conjures visions of mysterious veiled beauties, regal pharaohs, the green Nile (with or without Cleopatra's barge), Sheppard's Hotel, controversial Nasser and the Suez Canal, Lawrence Durrell's books—

Wake up, and snap out of your daydreams, my friends, because this is NOT Egypt. And we have an excellent source for our information. Inji Roushdi, a tall, attractive and forthright modern Egyptian newspaperwoman from Cairo, had lunch with us and we covered a lot of territory, geographically and figuratively.

Veils? They started to fold those away back in 1919. The pyramids and inscrutable sphinx? They're for tourists mostly, because present day Egyptians are too busy living in the present, working toward their country's development and raising its standard of living.

THE LOVELY, superior lot of the lucky American housewife? "I feel I cannot agree with this," says our visitor. "In Egypt people with middle-class incomes can afford a young servant, and in the next higher bracket they employ a cook and manservant. Here your women do all the household chores, look after the children, and give volunteer time in addition."

Hmmmm. And here we thought things were pretty slick.

A bit of background on Inji. She is a graduate of law school at the University of Cairo, and is now feature editor covering public and political affairs, on Al-Ahram (Arabian for pyramids), one of the leading daily newspapers in the East.

She has traveled widely, having gone on assignments all over Europe, covered the coup d'etat last August in Turkey and crises throughout the Middle East, as well as having been invited to Russia and China.

MRS. ROUSHDI is married but it is the custom in her country to retain the maiden name both socially and legally. She is now the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Adli Roushdi of San Pedro. Her brother was a member of the 1948 Egyptian Olympic team. He came here to UC at Berkeley and now has three local swimming schools.

At the invitation of the U. S. Committee of Women Correspondents, Mrs. Roushdi has spent five weeks in New York attending a press and radio seminar comprised of five correspondents each from Asia, the Middle East, Europe and Latin America.

They were guests of women's organizations ("I admire very much the work of the League of Women Voters—one of the best women's organizations I encountered—as well as that of the Junior League"); met politicians ("We're really internationally minded in Cairo—we like to discuss politics almost too much"); and inspected industries, including a Hollywood studio ("We love movies.")

MORE QUESTIONS. American men? "I think each woman should judge for herself." Our foods? "I'm sad to say that I think your cooking is the worst possible. However, I'm accustomed to more spices. How about Nasser? "We approve of what he's doing. We're an evolving country and have much to catch up on. Women just began voting in 1956. We are not a Communist country, despite the fact that we accept aid from Russia. We need it, and accept it elsewhere as well."

And then the 64 dollar question. How do you feel about America and Americans? "A bit self-satisfied. You think all people should know your language, although you're beginning to feel the necessity of better communication. On the other hand the people I've met were eager to know about other countries and discuss problems. I've made some wonderful friends."

"Most of the thinking Egyptians agree that America doesn't understand us, our position and what we're trying to do. But sitting down as you and I are doing in person to person contact and with exchange of ideas will be the ultimate answer."

ARTISTS, ATTENTION!

Mid-July Deadlines Told

ANNOUNCEMENT has just been made of the names of the jurors for the 1961 annual exhibition of artists of Los Angeles and vicinity, at the Los Angeles County Museum beginning August 30, as well as of the deadline for entries.

According to Ebra Feinblatt, curator of prints and drawings, the final date on which entries will be accepted is July 14, at 5 p.m. Prospectuses and entry blanks have been mailed to over 4,000 artists, dealers and schools in the Southland.

Three distinguished figures in the art world will be jurors for the exhibition: Una E. Johnson, curator of prints, Brooklyn Museum; Misch Kohn, one of the leading contemporary American printmakers; William Seitz, associate curator of painting and sculpture exhibitions, Museum of Modern Art, New York. Judging of the entries will begin shortly after the July 14 deadline.

Miss Feinblatt also reminded Southland artists of the change of policy with regard to entries inaugurated last year. Since 1961 is an odd-numbered year, the acceptable media are water-colors, gouaches, prints, drawings, pastels and sculpture (including reliefs, constructions and mobiles).

On even-numbered years artists will be invited to submit paintings done in oil, casein, ducco, egg tempera and related media. Collages will be accepted each year according to the predominant media.

SOUTHERN California artists in various media who have depicted seascapes or undersea subjects have been invited to display their works at the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium in August. It has been announced by Marjorie Dudley, president of the Santa Monica Art Association.

The unique marine art exhibit will be held in connection with the 1961 Pacific Coast Skindiving Show, August 4, 5, and 6.

Artists who have depicted realistic marines, seascapes, and undersea subjects in paintings, pastels or sculpture are eligible. A small handling fee is required but no commission will be charged on items offered for sale, she said.

Entries must be received by July 15 for selection by a committee of the Santa Monica Art Association. Interested artists may contact Exhibit Director Grace Dudley Warrington, 560 Moreno, Los Angeles 49.

OIL PAINTINGS by Geoffrey Holt are now on view in the auditorium of Dana Branch Library, 3680 Atlantic Ave.

Mr. Holt's great versatility as an artist is evidenced by the wide range of his subject matter, which includes portraits, seascapes, landscapes, and European scenes. His particular talent lies in his portrayals of the western scene, ghost towns, canyons, adobe ranch houses, desert flowers, and turbulent coastal waters.

Holt, born in Aston, England, attended art schools in London, has traveled over the world and exhibited widely. He and his wife, Ruth, live at 2270 Walnut Ave.

At the end of June this one-man show of 34 works will move to the auditorium of the North Long Beach Branch Library, 5571 Orange Ave.

Violist Will Play at Carmel Bach Festival

If you are planning to attend the Bach Festival in Carmel in July you may see a familiar face in the small chamber orchestra which will be playing every day. And, if it's a pretty violist, you've definitely seen her before, since it will be Margaret Main, who also plays in the Long Beach Philharmonic viola section as well as in numerous quartet groups.

Margaret is Mrs. Lewis Main Jr., 1971 Snowden Ave., and is looking forward enthusiastically to this unique musical opportunity to play with carefully-selected musicians from all over the state. Sandor Salgo, conductor of the orchestra, held auditions in Hollywood and Margaret was one of the lucky ones to be selected.

The Bach Festival opens July 14 and continues through July 23. Appearing on July 19 in solo recital will be Joanna Hodges, well-known Long Beach pianist. Also familiar to Long Beach concert goers will be Gabor Rejto of Los Angeles, cellist who has been soloist with the Long Beach Philharmonic.

other students," says Margaret. She now studies with Milton Thomas of Los Angeles, who is currently appearing as soloist with Pablo Casals. She is a teacher of piano, violin and viola.

Mrs. Main started piano lessons at seven, and now her eight-year-old son, Philip already plays cello and piano, having been started when he was three.

WHEN WE talked with Margaret she modestly said that she wasn't to be a soloist at the festival, but we, knowing that only top hand-picked musicians appear in each capacity at this painstakingly arranged series, felt it was a distinct honor.

It took many years of preparation to be one of the chosen few selected, and it all started back at Franklin Junior High. Fred Ohlendorf, now supervisor of music in local schools but then in his first year of teaching, singled out the talented 12-year old Margaret and started her off on her career.

"Although I later studied at the Eastman School of Music, I think it was Mr. Ohlendorf who was the real inspiration. He was the greatest influence that ever directed me and many of the

"PRACTICE PROBLEM with Phillip?" mused Margaret. "When a thing is as natural as brushing your teeth, there's no problem."

Considering the fact that Margaret's husband is a violinist at 20th Century Fox, we picture a future family trio, and are told that Philip is about ready.

Margaret goes to Carmel on July 5 for intensive practice until opening day. Among things to be performed are the Bach B Minor Mass, Brandenburg concerto, cantatas and a large body of J. S. Bach's works. Additional works include the Handel Oratorio Cycle 2 and Haydn's Symphono No. 60.

For information on the Bach Festival which has 400 season tickets available, Mrs. Main suggests mailing requests to "Bach Festival, P. O. Box 503, Carmel-by-the-Sea, or to call her.

Cay Drachnik Show at New 'Y'

As part of the continuing YMCA 100th anniversary celebration of service to the military, drawings and paintings of Cay Drachnik, wife of Cmdr. J. B. Drachnik, commanding officer of the USS Benner, will be on display at the new Armed Services YMCA, 520 W. Seaside Blvd., opening today and continuing through July 15.

Among new projects planned at the "Y" will be a film series featuring vintage films of bygone years, and a Sunday afternoon concert program presenting outstanding performers of the Los Angeles area.

Mrs. Drachnik has won numerous awards, has studied art wherever her husband is stationed, and is currently working on her master of fine arts degree at Long Beach State College.

Music Academy Sets Sessions

Twenty-six noted artist-teachers comprise the faculty of the 1961 summer season of the Music Academy of the West in Santa Barbara. Maurice Abravanel is music director for this 15th annual season which opens July 3 and closes Aug. 26. The academy specializes in training for performance.

Enrollment is limited to musicians of sufficient background and training to participate in the master classes and ensemble groups.

Major & Minor Notes

LYRICS IN FOREIGN TONGUE NOT INSPIRING

By RACHEL MORTON

In listening to a beautiful song recital recently, composed mostly of German Lieder sung in German, the thought came to me how wonderful it would be if everyone in the audience understood what the singer was saying. Speaking German myself, I knew the tragedy, the bitter-sweet love, the joyous impetus of spring, the beautiful ode to music which were being expressed. But how many beside myself knew? True, there were printed translations, but they gave only the general idea of the songs' contents.

I have expressed myself many times on the absurdity of singing in a language which almost no one understands. But, because of a certain snobbery among many American listeners, an audience feels it is not getting its money's worth, unless the words are in a foreign tongue.

AN ARTICLE I read recently by Will Garroway has this to say, in part, on this very subject: "Music is the one language understood by all peoples. Music composed for poetry often causes unknown poems and lyrics to become celebrated, bringing the author immortality, besides imbuing the text with lustre and significance. Notwithstanding these qualities, music in itself does not translate the poetry of one language into others. Therefore it follows that lyrics, adequately translated, can add clarity, beauty and glamor to the original intent of the music."

"It would be an impossibility for a Brahms or a Debussy to be inspired by a poem not in his native tongue. It is just as unreasonable to expect a listener who, at best, only comprehends colloquial English, to wax enthusiastic over singing which he cannot comprehend. Only a few members of our audiences are conversant with the languages sung on the average American program. To me, this is the most amusing of the many poses of the American concert and opera going public."

"MORE AND MORE there is manifest a definite agitation of sentiment among singers and teachers to foster English in song. However, offsetting these occasional ripples of encouragement, is the argument put forward by the foreign coach and conductor that English (even in speech) is uncouth, clumsy and impossible to sing. These people have a definite hold on general public opinion because of their outstanding accomplishments as musicians and artists. Yet their opinions in this matter should be ignored because of their prejudices against and lack of knowledge of our tongue."

"In America today we need more than ever to keep the riches of European music before us. But to obtain a more comprehensive conception of this literature, it, for its own sake, should be sung in English. Our language is the most beautiful, flexible, expressive, compact and descriptive in the world. Therefore, with renewed effort in producing better translations and more astuteness and perspicacity in the study of it, we can, and must, achieve perfection in every kind of song presentation."

Greco Troupe to Appear at Greek Theater

Jose Greco, the dynamic Spanish dancer who has added a vivid new page to the history of Spanish dance art, returns to the Greek Theater of Los Angeles at the head of his colorful dance company for a week of performances, including an American premiere, Monday through Saturday nights, July 3-8, at 8:30 p.m.

The premiere is "Tiempos de Goya," or "Times of Goya," choreographed by Greco himself to a motif suggested by the paintings of the renowned artist. The story is one of jealousy, violence and unrequited love, and is danced to the characteristically Spanish music of Granados and Torroba.

Greco will dance solos and will be partner to seductive Lola de Ronda in romantic duos. Carmen Mora, Jose Molina, Curro Rodriguez, Maria del Rocio, Rosario Caro and other perennial favorites dance in solos and with the ensemble.

Fiery flamencos and tempestuous traditional dances of Spain comprise the program of the beautifully costumed troupe.

The appealing voice of Norina will be augmented by the flamenco singing of Manuela de Jerez, the guitars of Miguel Garcia and Emilio de Diego and the piano of Lyria del Mar, all under the musical direction of Roger Machado.

Victor Borge completes his hilarious new aspect of "Comedy in Music," now at the Greek Theater, on Saturday night, July 1.

Atkinson-Clarke Say Vows

An all pink theme provided a delicate touch for the recent wedding uniting Linda Lee Clarke and Gordon Campbell Atkinson Jr. at St. Joseph's Episcopal Church.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Lowell Clarke of Garden Grove, was escorted to the altar by her father, prompter, Long Beach business man. The Rev. E. C. Benson, priest, performed the formal evening ceremony.

For her attire, the bride chose a sheath gown of blush pink peau de soie with a bouffant overskirt which swept into a chapel train. Alencon lace edged the neckline and circled the skirt. A pink lace crown held her veil of illusion and she carried a cascade of pink phalaenopsis and hyacinths.

Pinky Stevenson, matron of honor, Misses Pat Bostrom, Melvina Atkinson, Nancy Krasner and Joan McDougall, bridesmaids, and Edie Ann Goring, flower girl.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Campbell Atkinson of South Pasadena, chose Leopold Peterson as best man, with John Brummelkamp, Jack Reynolds, David Congo and Steve Farrell as ushers. Howard Atkinson was ringbearer to his brother.

The newlyweds were seated in pink champagne at a reception at the Virginia Country Club after which they left for a honeymoon in Hawaii. The bride attended USC, where she was a member of Delta Gamma sorority.

ATTENDANTS, wearing tiered pink linen, were Mrs.

Test That Broom

Never buy a broom without testing the quality of the straw. Press the edge of the broom firmly against the floor. If the straw stays in a solid mass, buy it, but if the straw bends and pushes out, leave it for a less wary shopper.

Palatable Pills

Small children often find it difficult to swallow pills or capsules. If the pills are dropped into a small quantity of gelatine before it is completely set, the children will not notice the taste and the tiny circles will go down easily.

THE NEW Mrs. Herbertson is a senior elementary education major and will be graduated in February from Long Beach State College. Her husband, a graduate of LBSC, is director of youth at Atlantic Avenue Methodist Church and will enter Southern California School of Theology at Claremont this fall for work on his master's degree preliminary to becoming a minister. Both young persons were active in the Wesley Foundation on the State campus.

Herbertson arrived in the Belgian Congo in 1960 as a member of a work team of Methodist ministers and laymen on the day that nation received its independence.

Free of Grease

A painted wall next to a stove can be kept free from grease spots if the wall is waxed with a liquid self-polishing wax. A clean, dry cloth can wipe off grease spots on such a finish.

Wine Stains

Fruit or wine stains on a tablecloth are easier to remove if salt is used to cover the spot when it is fresh and later boiling water is poured through the stained area.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

They Seek to Give

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband and I took a good look at ourselves and were sad to see that we are so typical of many, many couples who marry, live from year to year and never contribute anything to our country.

We have two small children and we feel that by bettering ourselves we can set an example for them and at the same time make our community and country a better place to live in.

We want as much education as possible and we want to put it to use. My husband is 25 and I am 22. We want to know if there are scholarships we could apply for or someone we could talk to who would give us some ideas as to how we could attend college.—SINCERE TWOSOME.

Your letter particularly interests me because I have noticed how very widespread the awakened interest in adult education has become.

I notice that your letter is postmarked from a fairly large city. I'm quite sure there are adult education courses on your very doorstep. Look into them first of all. Perhaps there are studies your husband could pursue on one schedule, others for you on another so you could split the baby-sitting.

As for scholarships, well, there is a book, "You Can Win a Scholarship" by Brownstein, Weiner, and Kaplan, available at most bookstores which might help you. Cheers, and good luck.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: I am 14; he is 25. He is a high school teacher, unmarried.

He has been going with me for almost five months. No one knows about our seeing each other because we keep it secret for fear of being talked about.

Sometimes he goes with an older girl, but I happen to know she doesn't really care about him—just somebody to go out with. To me, he is my whole life.

Once some kids saw us together and the huzz was terrible. He said then for us to let things sort of coast along and they'd work out for us eventually. Right now I haven't seen him for six weeks and it worries me.

What to do now?—RUTH.

DEAR RUTH:

What else is there to do but take his advice . . . and let things coast along? You ought to know that if word got around he was dating a 14-year-old student his job would be in jeopardy. Oh, he might be warned at first—and there's a black mark against him, right there. Or, he might be summarily sacked.

I have a very strong feeling, Ruth, that the young man sees things a lot more realistically than you do, and that coasting along means to him a nice, politic way of writing finis to your duet.—M. M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: I'm in love with a man who is single, and four years younger than I am. He is 29; I'm 33. I've been a widow for five years, have three boys: 11, 10 and 8.

This man says the difference in our ages means nothing to him, and he promises to love me always, look after me, and treat the boys as his own.

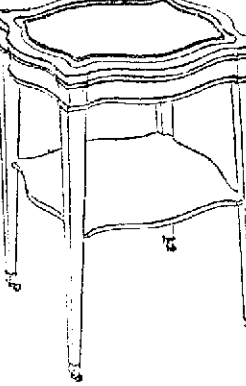

But I'm so worried because I'm older. Some folks say such a marriage would work, some say the opposite. For me, I don't know. Yes, this man and I are very devoted, and I do need someone so badly.

What should I do?—WONDERING.

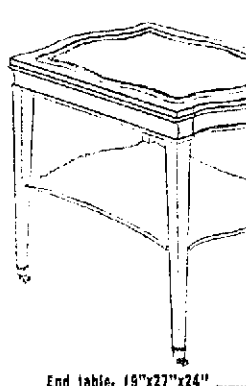

DEAR WONDERING:

Stop wondering, for one thing, and say yes at the next opportunity. What's four years' difference to worry about, as opposed to the load you carry, the help you need, and the devotion you want.

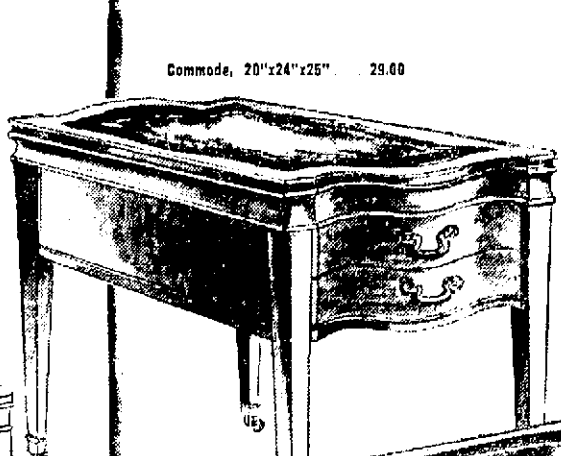

Devotion to give as well as to receive, I hope.—M. M.

SHE KNOWS HER TYPE

Publishing First Book Is a Pressing Business

By MARY NETH

Having a first book printed is no problem for do-it-yourself type Mrs. Carl Brown.

She is doing the job herself!

And by so doing, has added a new vocabulary to dinner conversation and a printing press to the den.

"Galley, type fonts, composing and imposing stones are all I talk about these days," says dark-haired Betty Brown. "But Carl doesn't object. He's all for it—in fact he gave me the press as an anniversary gift."

*****

WHEN this ambitious Mrs. Brown decided to write a history of her pioneer family—she didn't waste any time.

Three weeks at the typewriter and the manuscript was completed. Two weeks of telephone calls to supply companies and her home at 3114 Volk Ave. was transformed into a publishing house.

"I thought I'd save money by 'going to press' myself," explains Betty. "Now I know better."

*****

THOUGH she's sidestepped snippy literary agents and procrastinating publishers, which frustrate most writers, vivacious Betty still has problems.

The biggest, how to keep two Siamese cats and one 19-month-old daughter out of type and ink and how to tighten an already too-tight time schedule.

Betty planned to give the finished book, bound and illustrated with her own lithographed drawings, to 30 members of her close-knit family this Christmas.

But with six months still to go, she's already wondering if she'll make deadline.

*****

HOUSEWORK plus care of little Maria Elizabeth in addition to a part-time, at-home, bookkeeping job, leave Betty pressed for time.

"But once I start on the book," says she, "it's hard to stop."

"Handsetting type is like eating peanuts. After each line I want to set just one more—it goes on and on."

*****

THE WORK is slow and must be done with painstaking care but Betty says she finds it lots of fun.

"I was in too deep to quit when I got the word from the professional printers."

They told her that they wouldn't do what she was doing for any kind of an astronomical sum. "A professor out at State has helped me a lot," Betty continues. "But even he couldn't resist dampening my enthusiasm."

"He told me that they use printing as mental therapy in hospitals," she explains. "I think I know what he was getting at."

*****

A NATIVE of California, Betty was graduated from Wilson High and Ventura Junior College; attended

USC and Long Beach Academy of Art.

Interest in printing and publishing runs in her family. Many of her relatives have been members of the fourth estate and her uncle, Russ Quisenberry, was former owner and publisher of a Valley paper.

*****

THOUGH Betty really pounded the typewriter when it came to writing the book—she'd thought about the story for many years.

"I've other books in mind I'd like to write, too. When I do the Pigeon will come in might handy."

"Pigeon" is the name the Browns have given the used Golding press (it prints a 6x9 size page on which Betty is using 14 pt Garamond typeface with Burnhardt Tango for headings).

"Other than having to buy an extra font—she ran out of n's on the last line of the first page—Betty has had no problems handsetting."

"But I certainly had cold feet when it came to locking in the first page," says she.

"I'd read literally hundreds of library books on how to do it before I did—but I was still sure something would go wrong."

"You can't imagine how I felt when I pulled my first page proof. It looked wonderful."

As to binding—Betty has decided not to get bound up in that. She'll have it done.

"I'll save money and pay a professional," she said.

BUSY MRS. CARL (BETTY) BROWN, 3114 Volk Ave., is pressed for time what with small daughter, bookkeeping job, and housework to do—but she still manages to find hour or so a day to work on her book. Betty not only wrote manuscript but is printing it, too. Here she gets ready to 'go-to-press' after pulling proof on first page of first chapter. She'll give bound volume to members of her family as Christmas gift.—(Photos by Joe Risinger.)

DEAR ABBY

'Gramps' Does a Slow Burn

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Ten years ago, when I was 22, I married a handsome, graying "older" man of 45. Today he is fat, bald and 55. We have two adorable little daughters, 3 and 5. I dress them like two little dolls. Lately, whenever my husband takes the girls shopping, to the park or among strangers, someone stops him and says, "My what darling GRANDCHILDREN you have!"

He gets mad and blows his top. His disposition is ruined for the entire day. It is getting so that he doesn't want to take the girls out any more. How can I get him to realize that this is a natural mistake, and he shouldn't take it so hard?—YOUNG WIFE.

DEAR YOUNG WIFE: Explain to your age-conscious husband that a man of 55 has more reason to boast about having daughters in the kindergarten set than granddaughters. They are proof of his youth—and in living color!

*****

DEAR ABBY: I have a very personal problem I need help with. I can't talk to my parents about it as they aren't the kind of parents you can talk to. If I write you about my problem, how can I be sure my letter won't appear in the paper? This is a small town, and everybody would recognize me—MY SECRET.

DEAR MY: Write your problem to me and state that you do not want your letter printed in the newspaper. Be sure to enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and my reply will come to you in your own envelope.

*****

DEAR ABBY: Our son has reached the age where he can legally drive a car, but neither my husband nor I have been able to teach him. My husband has tried several times, but he comes back so aggravated and overheated I worry about his heart and blood pressure. He has patience with everyone else but his own son. I have also tried to teach the boy, but I am worse than my husband. I get nervous and can't keep quiet. I warn him about every stop sign, every curve in the road, and when I see another car I get panicky.

We can't afford those driving schools. Do you think it is safe to let him learn from his friends?—RICKY'S FOLKS.

DEAR FOLKS: Driving lessons from a professional instructor with a dual control automobile is the safest way to learn. You can't afford NOT to give your son proper instruction.

*****

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ENGAGED FOR 14 YEARS TO A MERCHANT MARINE": You are not "engaged," sister. You are permanently in drydock.

Prefers Pancakes to Peanuts

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L. F. FOOT EDITOR

He came from Fresno complete with wife and a business which had been established by his grandfather in 1897, Edward M. Twining is today's candidate for Chef of the Week, and president of Twining Laboratories of Southern California. He's a second "generationer" of this state.

After attending Fresno State College for a time, he continued on to Oregon State College from which he was graduated with a degree in chemical engineering. He "made it" just in time to enlist in the infantry in 1944.

To let you-all in on the "know" . . . Twining Laboratories conduct soil foundation engineering products, determining chemical properties of the land. This in turn assists architects in building foundations. They also are working with the Centaur Missiles program and doing specialty work with both the Edwards and Vandenberg Air Force bases. The sites of the Atomic Energy Commission at Mercury Nev. and of many Long Beach schools and hospitals have come under their scrutiny.

A MEMBER of the Long Beach Rotary Club, he's active in Belmont Masonic Lodge 716, and in the American Association of Engineers.

Flying is his first choice of things-to-do, and he's just recently received his "having soloed" trophy. He'll settle anytime, though, for a bout at either golfing or fishing.

Our "chef" is one of these "up-and-at-ems" who really enjoys fixing breakfast, but his real reputation has to do with his desserts. They're all originals . . . and he's forever trying them out on his bridge buddies. Otherwise . . . he's the host-with-the-most.

Twining has one idiosyncrasy—one with which his wife, daughter, five, and son, four, don't agree—he's one of those rare persons who believes that salted nuts add absolutely nothing to a dish or a menu . . . especially if they're "cooked-up" in something.

He does, however, dote on his Sour Milk Griddle

Cakes. You will, too, after you've tried them.

SOUR MILK GRIDDLE CAKES
(Makes 18 to 20)
3 eggs
2 cups butter milk or sour milk
1 scant tsp. soda
2 1/2 to 2 3/4 cups bread flour (depending upon the thinness of batter desired)
1 tsp. salt
2 to 3 tsp. sifted brown sugar
2 tsp. double acting baking powder

Beat eggs with a rotary beater until fluffy. Then beat buttermilk and soda into the eggs.

Sift together the flour, salt and brown sugar. Add flour mixture gradually to the egg-milk mixture, alternating with 4 tablespoons melted shortening. Beat well after each addition. Transfer batter to a pitcher, cover with cheesecloth, and let it stand for at least 3 hours, and preferably overnight. When ready to fry the griddlecakes, blend into the batter 2 teaspoons double acting baking powder.

Fry cakes on a lightly greased and very hot griddle. When bubbles appear on the surface of the cakes, turn them before bubbles burst, to keep cakes light and fluffy.

Turn cakes only once and serve as they come off the griddle.

If Shoe Fits Wear Again--and Again!

By MARY NETH

When a thrifty Miss decides to add to her wardrobe she often stops short when it comes to adding new shoes.

Being in style means having a pair to wear with every colorful summer outfit—and that can add up to a big outlay wallet-wise.

But that's a problem of the past these days. Now one pair can go everywhere—and never be the same.

The solution: a revolutionary new make-up for shoes. Just as the name infers, it can be applied like a cosmetic and removed when new shade is desired.

THE MAKE-UP comes in 26 colors—a dollar a bottle—it's easy to apply and goes over about every type of material—including straw, suede and leather.

Changing one pair of shoes—color-wise—costs less than 40 cents and that includes price of cleaner, too.

Under normal drying conditions, the make-up dries in 20 to 30 minutes. It washes off with water while wet but won't rub off once it has set.

Best of all, scuff marks may be touched up without re-doing the entire shoe. It's possible, too, to make two-tone shoes or even work out a tapestry effect on cloth slippers.

The luscious fashion tones of the new product, makes the color of her shoes often. And it is easy! First a quick once over with the special cleaner and then two coats of color. Black or dark shoes may even be changed to pastel or light tones.

NOT TO BE overlooked, the make-up also is ideal for accessories. With its use any woman can have a complete set of matching accessories for her wardrobe and change the color any time she wishes.

So, if the shoe fits, is of fashionable styling, wear it summer or winter with any color gown, dress or ensemble.

The product is terrific also, for vacation bound travelers who have too little room to pack all the shoes they'll need. They can be well-shod with one pair—that can double as many more.

For additional information about the item mentioned and the stores where it may be purchased telephone The Independent, Press-Telegram, HE 5-1161, Ext. 348.

Oswald Jacoby How to Bid This Slam

There is no problem in getting to six clubs if you can look at the North and South hands at the same time. When the hand cropped up in a California duplicate there were considerable problems involved.

South always opened one club and North jumped to three clubs. At a couple of tables South went right to four no-trump and when North showed his two aces South bid the club slam. If North had shown up with only one ace, South would have bid the club slam but he would not have made it.

passed and North went down one against either a heart or a diamond lead.

Other South players went on to four spades whereupon North would bid five clubs only.

Only one pair found what I think is the right way to bid the hand. That bidding is shown in the box. South's jump to four spades shows a big two suiter. North can count on his red aces to take care of any losers in those suits.

Thus, he is willing to play six clubs if South has one ace and hence can afford to use Blackwood without any worries.

OUR COVER

The umpire on today's cover, Loren Proctor, has been in the Little League baseball program for 27 years and can remember no ill effects on the youngsters. Proctor is manager of the team on which Mike Mumm, the catcher, and Gene Dockins play in an East Long Beach Little League. To all charges that the pressure is too severe on the boys who lose, he laughs and produces a Yale University professor's report which proves, as Proctor puts it: "The ones who win show more emotional reaction than the ones who lose, so the critics are backward." More about Little League baseball on Page 7.

NEXT WEEK

With Independence Day just around the corner, Southland takes the opportunity next week to re-tell a strange incident in the history of the West that occurred more than 100 years ago in which camels—of all things—played a principal role. Watch for "Independence Day and the Camel Brigade" and be entertained.

Kid baseball has stood up under attacks from outsiders for years, but today there's a new threat . .

Little League Revolution

By Jerome Hall

THERE IS LITTLE LEAGUE and middle league and, if things keep going in the drive to recruit young baseball players there's bound to be a piddle league. In the kid set, everybody's playing baseball. Kid baseball is burgeoning in all directions with only the shortage of places to play girdling its growth. "We are working for the day when every boy is included in an organized program," says a veteran Little League organizer. "We see it as the solution to our juvenile problems." To see the caravans of uniformed lads bicycling through any neighborhood on any day would lead one to believe the organizers are fast approaching their goal. "It's so obvious that this is the answer," say the organizers, "that it's exasperating to find opposition."

BUT ORGANIZED JUNIOR baseball has its opposition. A recent edition of Parade Magazine, Sunday supplement to The Independent, Press-Telegram, kindled a nationwide controversy and appealed for cities across the country to examine their own programs.

Result: There is a revolution brewing within the ranks in Long Beach. "I think we've overdone it," says a high-ranked official in Long Beach "middle leagues."

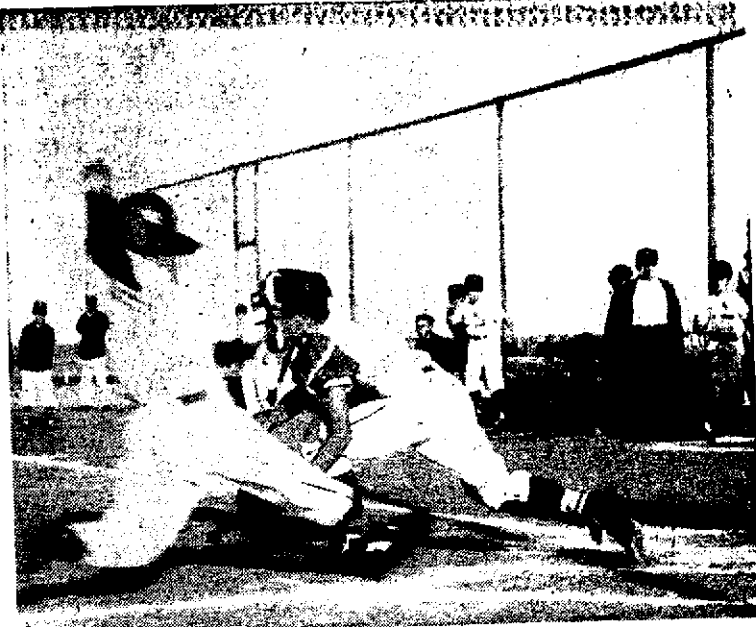

"I used to be as rabid about this kid baseball stuff as anyone could be," confided the kid baseball leader, "but you know what my son said to me last year? He took his uniform off after a game and threw it on the floor and said 'only three more games to go and the season is over. I'm never going to play another baseball game as long as I live.' Imagine, this from a 15-year-old. He was just fed up with the regimentation. He was 'over-organized'."

THE DISENCHANTED official also is concerned what organized junior baseball is doing to other sports. "Where are the young golfers and the tennis players? I know some kids who got sick of baseball a couple of years ago and quit. They started swimming and I see now they're among the best on their high school teams. How good would they be if they'd concentrated on swimming earlier?"

The controversy which hit a high point a few years ago with magazine articles and wide public debate shows signs of blossoming again.

Caught in the middle of the question on the local scene is Long Beach Recreation Department director Rod Ballard, whose office is general overseer for the entire kid baseball program here.

Ballard gets caught in the door swinging in both directions. The parents who are irate because emotional stresses on their boys cause prolonged crying spells come knocking on Ballard's door. And the mother who has a 6-year-old son who can throw "as straight as an arrow and shows sure signs of turning into a great baseball player" wants to know why there isn't a team her offspring can star on.

ASK BALLARD WHICH side he's on and he furrows a brow and replies, "I just don't know."

"We have been investigating the effects of this pressure business for years. I've heard all the arguments, I think. Why, I went to a meeting one night and a UCLA professor showed movies to prove through X-rays that the competition is harmful to a boy's bone structure."

On the other side, baseball great Ted Williams recently scored a big hit for the "for 'ems" by commenting, "I can't think of anything better for a boy than to find out early he has to play by the rules, learn to respect the ability of others, try to do his very best at all times and listen to direction by his elders."

But both sides of the question agree on one thing: The worst part of the entire program is the parents who get out of control. "This is a big problem," says Ballard, who in addition to his recreation post is on the executive committee of the Kid Baseball Assn., the largest group in Long Beach's junior program.

"IN THE KID BASEBALL ASSN. we have sort of a 'spring training' for the parents. We get them to simmer down before they can cause trouble. We have pretty good control of them in Long Beach," but Ballard has seen angry dads and moms jump down from the bleachers, hurdle the railing and cuss the umpire who called out little Billie. Sometimes it goes as far as a mid-field scuffle.

Long Beach has produced one national champion: The city's Pony League all-star team two seasons ago won the "world series" for the 13-14-age group and was tendered a hero welcome upon its return home.

High-pressure playoff competition is frowned on by the Kid Baseball Assn., which encompasses about one-third of the total Long Beach junior program and includes all of the age groups (Little League goes up to 12 years only).

THE KBA PROGRAM does not include trips across country to "world series" or, indeed, even local playoffs. Its low-gear, high-participation approach has been lauded by Parade Magazine. The KBA is strictly a Long Beach group, but its philosophy is spreading.

Small leagues get 'em younger and young. Challenge of batter vs. pitcher is the same whether it's in the major, minor or little leagues. Long Beach recreation officials have not many strikes of youthful leagues with manner of handling the game's Charm of a bygone era is to be found in Mariposa, Mother Lode country town. This is Mariposa county courthouse, in constant use since 1854.

MARIPOSA:

Mother Lode Gateway

By Dale Koby

THOUSANDS of vacationists on their way to Yosemite National Park are discovering the little Gold Rush town of Mariposa—located about half way between Merced and the valley floor, on Highway 140—a convenient stopping place. And those who linger find Mariposa has the charm of a bygone day.

Mariposa is located in a narrow valley that tends northwestward, with bare brown hills to the east and west. Vegetation through the region is sparse.

The rancho on which Mariposa was founded was granted to Juan Bautista Alvarado, a former governor and holder of extensive tracts of land in Alameda County and other parts of the state, in 1844 by the governor of Alta California, Manuel Micheltona. Three years later the rancho, called Las Mariposas (the butterflies), was purchased by John Charles Fremont. Its boundaries, so the story goes, were not too precisely fixed either by the original grant or by the sale documents negotiated by Fremont.

AS A RESULT, the rancho was "floated" to include those areas that had water or pasturage as the need arose. When gold was discovered in the foothills, the 44,000-acre rancho floated up to include the new discoveries.

The first gold strike on the land that became known as Las Mariposas was made by Kit Carson in August, 1849. His discovery resulted in the development of the Mariposa Mine, the earliest quartz diggings on the Mother Lode. This mine, total production of which is said to have exceeded $2 million, was thus developed only 18 months after Marshall's world-shaking strike at Coloma. Only a few tumbledown buildings and a large tailing pile, accumulated as the 1,500-foot tunnel was dug, show any evidence of the previous activity at this mine.

OF INTEREST to the historically minded traveler is the tiny, classically designed county courthouse, built in 1854 of lumber whipsawed from timber stands in the area. The timbers were mortised and tenoned, held together by wooden pegs. The courtroom is unchanged, appearing today just as it did in earlier, more exciting times. This building is the oldest courthouse in continuous use in the state. The clock that surmounts the tower has been continuously marking the hours since the 1860s. Within the building are files of documents and newspapers of great importance to historical research.

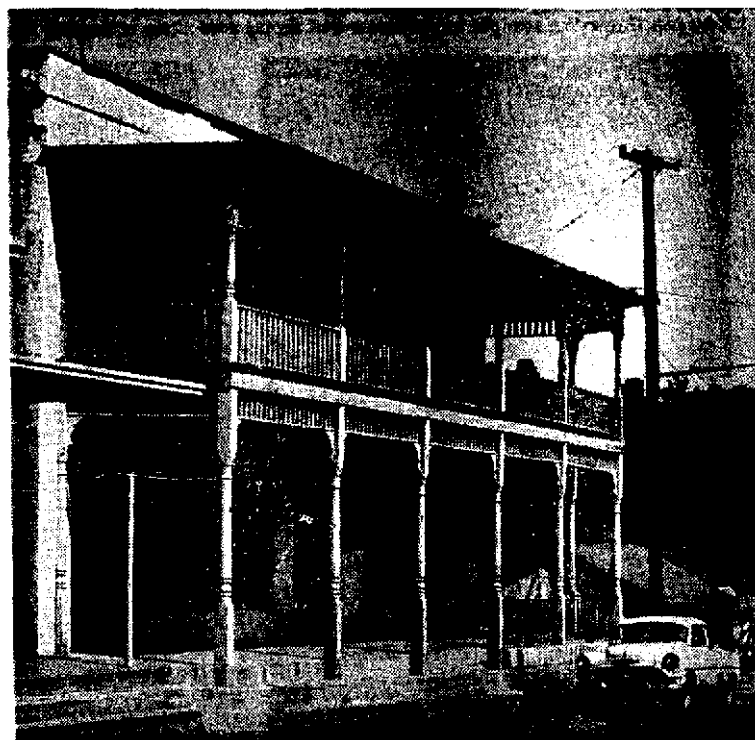

Other buildings in the little town that lend the flavor of the 1850s include the Schlageter Hotel, a brick structure with wooden balconies; the Trabucco Warehouse with its iron doors that are typical of Mother Lode architecture, and the IOOF Hall, now housing a modern drug store on its lower floor but retaining the architectural characteristics of its period in its upper stories.

THE STONE JAIL, at the south end of town, is of dressed granite blocks taken from the geologic formation that marks the southern termination of the Mother Lode quartz vein.

Mariposa is a convenient spot to start a trip through the Mother Lode, for Highway 49 turns north here and passes through the entire gold region, including Sonora, Angels Camp, San Andreas, Jackson, and many more, each offering something for the traveler who takes the time to find it.

Although its lower floor has been modernized to house a drug store, the upper portion of IOOF Hall retains characteristics of gold era building.

Located, on Mariposa's main street, is the Schlageter Hotel, constructed of brick and fitted with large wooden balconies in the manner of 1850s.

Battle of Bergs: Removing iceberg menace in North Atlantic is mission of the Ice Patrol. Here, a Coast Guardsman watches R5D reconnaissance.

Aerial radar operator aboard ice observation plane determines position of icebergs. Some bergs are of giant size, some of lesser proportions.

They Battle Ice Monsters

By Frank L. Remington

IN THE CROW'S-NEST, high above the huge British luxury liner, lookout Frederick Fleet strained his eyes probing the darkness of the ocean ahead. It was 11:30 on the night of April 14, 1912.

Suddenly Fleet gasped incredulously. A vast, white monstrous shape loomed directly in the ship's course. Fleet struck three bells—something dead ahead. "Iceberg!" he shouted. "Iceberg! Right ahead."

The great ship groaned as her keel scraped and grated. Reeling and rocking, the big liner began to list to port. Slabs and chunks of ice fell on deck. The huge engines below deck came to a halt. Slowly but surely the supposedly unsinkable Titanic began to sink to a watery grave at the bottom of the Atlantic. Only 711 of the 2,224 people aboard survived the dreadful catastrophe.

UP TO THAT TIME there was no organized system to guard against the menace of icebergs along the transatlantic steamship lanes between North America and Europe. The Titanic disaster brought an almost universal demand for a patrol of the ice zone that could warn passing vessels of imminent iceberg danger.

The upshot of these demands was an Inter-Sea. It met in London in 1913 and called Seat. It met in London in 1913 and called upon the 16 countries using the hazardous shipping lanes to support an international ice observation and patrol service. The United States was asked to organize and maintain this service.

Today the International Ice Patrol consists of a force of planes and ships of the United States Coast Guard. This Ice Patrol maintains a surveillance of the shipping tracks across the Grand Banks and Newfoundland waters and advises mariners of the hazards of icebergs which visit these waters between March and July each year.

HEADQUARTERED at Argentia, Newfoundland, the Ice Patrol scouts a water area about the size of Pennsylvania. It collects information on icebergs from patrol vessels, from aerial surveys, and from sightings reported by ships and planes crossing the area of ice hazard.

This information is summarized in radio dispatches which are broadcast to all shipping twice daily.

Each year the International Ice Patrol

Who Killed Tamara Lees?

By Eugene Levin
Associated Press Writer

A CAT MAY have nine lives, but Tamara Lees has already lost hers 30 times.

And she is now in the process of dying a violent death for the 31st time.

"It's made me quite an expert on dying," says the comely British actress on location in Rome. "Poison, shooting, strangling, beating—you name it, I've had it."

The dark-haired actress rose to stardom with the J. Arthur Rank Organization and then moved to Italy about 10 years ago.

SINCE THEN she has made 47 films, dying violently in 30.

Now she is completing "Una Spada Nell'ombra" (A Sword in the Shadow)—in which she dies her first movie death with a knife in the back.

"Oh, it was bloody but not as bloody as some of my other deaths," Tamara says, her eyes lighting up at the thought of past dramatic moments.

"In 'Il Cavalier Nero' (The Black Cavalier) I was thrown from a balcony onto a mass of spikes," she adds. "A follow-up shot showed my body pierced like a sieve, with rivers of blood pouring out. But it was really just a dummy."

TAMARA LIVED to go on to more deaths.

One was a suicide, in "Vita da Cane" (Dog's Life).

"Having married the ugliest but richest man in Italy, I meet my ex-fiance at my wedding reception. Without a word, I walk through the crowded reception room into another room and throw myself out of the window."

"I think I liked that death the most because of the non-hysterical treatment," she says.

HER DEATH requiring the most work?

"For the film 'La Cortigiana di Babilonia' (Courtesan of Babylon) my death demanded a quick costume change. I'm hit by a lance. I had to make a quick change from my regular costume to a trick costume with the shaft of a lance fixed to one side. Then I had to fall down with that shaft sticking out. It was extremely uncomfortable."

Her most unusual death?

"It was in 'Citta Senza Gloria' (City Without Glory), when someone shoots me from a distance of three feet, and I have to go on talking on the phone for almost two minutes. I had to convince myself and the public that it was possible—my combination of Russian, Irish and English blood is pretty tough."

Looking very lively for one who has died violently 31 times (in movies), Tamara Lees enjoys the Italian sun.

Stabbed in back for scene in "A Sword in the Shadow," film being made in Italy, Tamara dies for 31st time. Stabber is Germano Lungo. At right, Livio Lorisenson.

Glass doors in this living room open to garden and swimming pool. Antiques have been employed with decorative skill by the owners, Dr. and Mrs. Milton Van Dyke.

WITH an excellent knowledge of antiques and how to use them in a modern home, Dr. and Mrs. Milton Van Dyke, 1455 La Perla Ave., have created a distinctive decor in their home. They did their own interior decorating, and the result is perfection in every room of the house.

In the entry hall, attention is directed to a Venetian glass lamp in wisteria design, one of many prized antiques in her home. A matching chandelier and two matching wall lamps above a couch are in the living room. They retain the original beauty that was theirs at the turn of the century when they were made.

Architects Power and Daniel designed the house so that as many rooms as possible might have access to the garden in the rear. Thus the living room, dining room, library and master bedroom all command a picture view of the rock pool and garden.

THERE SEEMS to be a special art in decorating with antiques in order to preserve space and avoid clutter. Gifted with this knack, Mrs. Van Dyke has managed to achieve a feeling of great space in her living room even though two furniture pieces are tables 60 inches in diameter!

Terrace, pool and professionally arranged landscaping give Van Dykes' garden semblance of mountain retreat.

lamps, and facing a low table of rich mahogany, formerly a dining table. Nearby is a Victorian chair, and along one wall a handsome break-front displaying small treasured pieces.

The stone fireplace is across the room from the couch. Above the fireplace is an heirloom painting of Mrs. Van Dyke's father as a baby, done in Scotland 112 years ago.

TO THE RIGHT of the fireplace is full height round table with the wisteria chandelier adding a pastel color accent. Glass lines the wall facing the garden. Rugs are luxurious antique Bakara, a century old yet in perfect condition.

In the dining room an antique French chandelier of Baccarat crystal and gold leaf dominates the scene because of its sheer beauty. It might have come from a palace, but it definitely belongs in its present setting.

Center of interest on the sideboard is a Venetian glass hand-blown bouquet of tulips. Background for the tulips is a hand-painted mural on grass cloth. The dining room table is polished cherry. This is a gracious-living type of dining room—candlelight and wine—where visitors long remember the antique Imari vases, the sparkling wall sconces, the fine silver pieces in the china cabinet, and, of course, the matchless chandelier.

THE LIBRARY is a cozy room with a green leather chair, couch, built-in television set and hi-fi. A large and

The master bedroom is tailored and attractive. One wall is a picture gallery of children and grandchildren. Off the bedroom is a long dressing room with ample closets and drawers built in for efficiency.

In each of the three bathrooms of the home colorful marble is used: Norwegian, Italian, and Swedish. The towel racks are worthy of particular mention: Mrs. Van Dyke made them out of old brass electric light fixtures with the latter serving as holders for a shiny brass rod.

IN THIS HOME grandchildren are always on the invited list. One of the guest bedrooms has, in addition to twin beds and other bedroom necessities, but a crib and toys ready for service. Another guest bedroom is a small suite, ready for instant occupancy.

In direct contrast to the other rooms of the home, the large, sunny pink kitchen is streamlined and modern. There are countless square feet of pink tile working areas; a wall refrigerator and freezer; and every up-to-date convenience at hand. A large walk-in china closet is an innovation seldom seen in modern homes.

THE DINETTE is not a makeshift corner, but a perfectly appointed area at the far end of the kitchen. The "chandelier" in the dinette was an antique Pullman lamp. A walk-in pantry, extra large laundry area, and cleaning closet are all model of efficiency.

Clue to a Long-Lost Ship

By Betty Hardesty

Bob Retherford's family gathers around the mystery anchor which Retherford found, salvaged from sea.

WRESTED from the bottom of the ocean off Catalina Island, a huge shell encrusted anchor now displayed at Pierpoint Landing on Long Beach Harbor's Pier A is mute evidence of a drama of the sea and of the skill and tenacity of Bob Retherford, underwater photographer, who brought it from the depths.

The anchor is 12 feet long, of hand-wrought iron and is the heaviest such equipment ever retrieved by skin divers. It weighs 3,000 pounds, conforming to Retherford's estimate when he set about raising it.

Retherford came upon the anchor unexpectedly as he was testing an underwater camera housing at 110 foot depth. He was awed by its size which loomed uncannily one-third larger below water.

HISTORY and folklore are filled with tales of tragedy which stalk adventurers spell-driven to seek out treasure. Retherford's anchor story follows this age-old pattern. Two years of unsuccessful attempts to release the anchor, did not discourage him nor his skin diving wife, Shari, in spite of the jinx which haunted the project.

The worst occurred when they were caught by a sudden offshore storm which disabled their 14-foot outboard and tossed them seven miles off course for 5½ hours. A Coast Guard plane luckily sighted their flares. Though the "spell" was cheated that time, it lured one diver to his death by "rapture of the depths" (nitrogen narcosis) as he traced his way down the sloping ocean floor along the 18-inch links of chain. In memorium to Joe McCabe, an experienced diver who gave his life in trying to solve its mystery, the anchor now waits in the sunlight where it may later be reunited with salvage from its foundered ship.

"THE ANCHOR might be from a Russian trawler, a Yankee clipper or even the San Sebastian, a Spanish ship lost with $2 million in gold," says Bob. His research has failed to identify the name or nature of the sunken ship but the anchor metal places the time of forging, probably in the early 1700s. Conjecture puts the time of the wreck in mid 1860s, according to Mac McClintock of Pierpoint Landing. This was a period of much shipping activity following the California gold rush. The ship may have been hiding from pirates who sought her treasure. Today, others may seek her, too, but only Retherford is believed to know her exact location.

Inventor of the underwater safety signal system for skin divers, Retherford, who lives at 10471 Brookhurst Ave., Anaheim, also teaches skin diving. His extensive knowledge of shipwrecks off the Southland coast adds interest to cruises for skin divers which he conducts from the Aquatic Center in Newport.

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Here's one solution to need for added work space and storage in a sewing room.

READER'S PROBLEM: The storage facilities in our bedroom are impossible. Although the bedroom is fairly large, there is only one closet and it is too small. Because of the comfortable size of the room, I would like to make something more of it than simply a sleeping room. For instance, what little sewing I now do is on a card table set up in the bedroom.

ARCHITECT Champ Nesbitt answers:

Your problem is greatly simplified by the fact there is space in the bedroom now going to waste. The solution is merely a matter of designing a closet which will add to the attractiveness of the room, thus concealing the fact its main purpose is to overcome a deficiency in the original design of the house.

The sketch shows a suggested treatment for the exterior wall which places a storage unit between the two windows. It extends two feet from the wall, enough to comfortably accommodate garments hung on a rod parallel to the front. To achieve a modern look, the bottom of the closet is held 16 inches off the floor. The valance over the two windows turns out and crosses the front of the closet to give a feeling of unity to the entire wall.

FROM SIDE to side, the unit as shown measures five feet. A partition divides it into two compartments, the one on the right for hanging clothes and the one on the left a combination of shelf storage and work center. A hinged door folds down to provide a convenient surface for sewing or writing and when not in use folds up to conceal working equipment and unfinished chores.

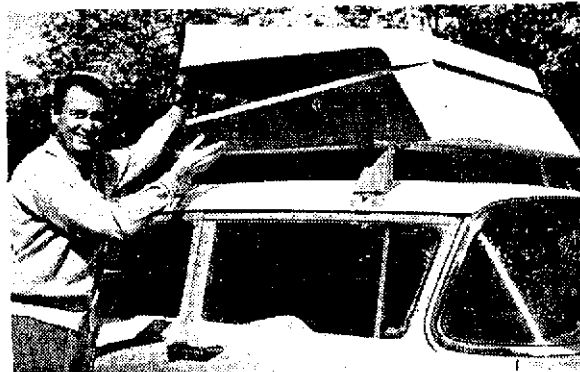

The louvered doors on the front of the unit give an air of elegance to the entire room.

To build this combination unit, send 50 cents and name and address to Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th & Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., and request Sketchbook Closet-Sewing Center Plan S-5.

Car-Top Compartment for Vacationing

FINDING ROOM for family and baggage is one of the big problems of a motoring vacation. Some people just pile their gear atop the car, lash it down and take off—all well and good, if it doesn't rain or blow up a dust storm.

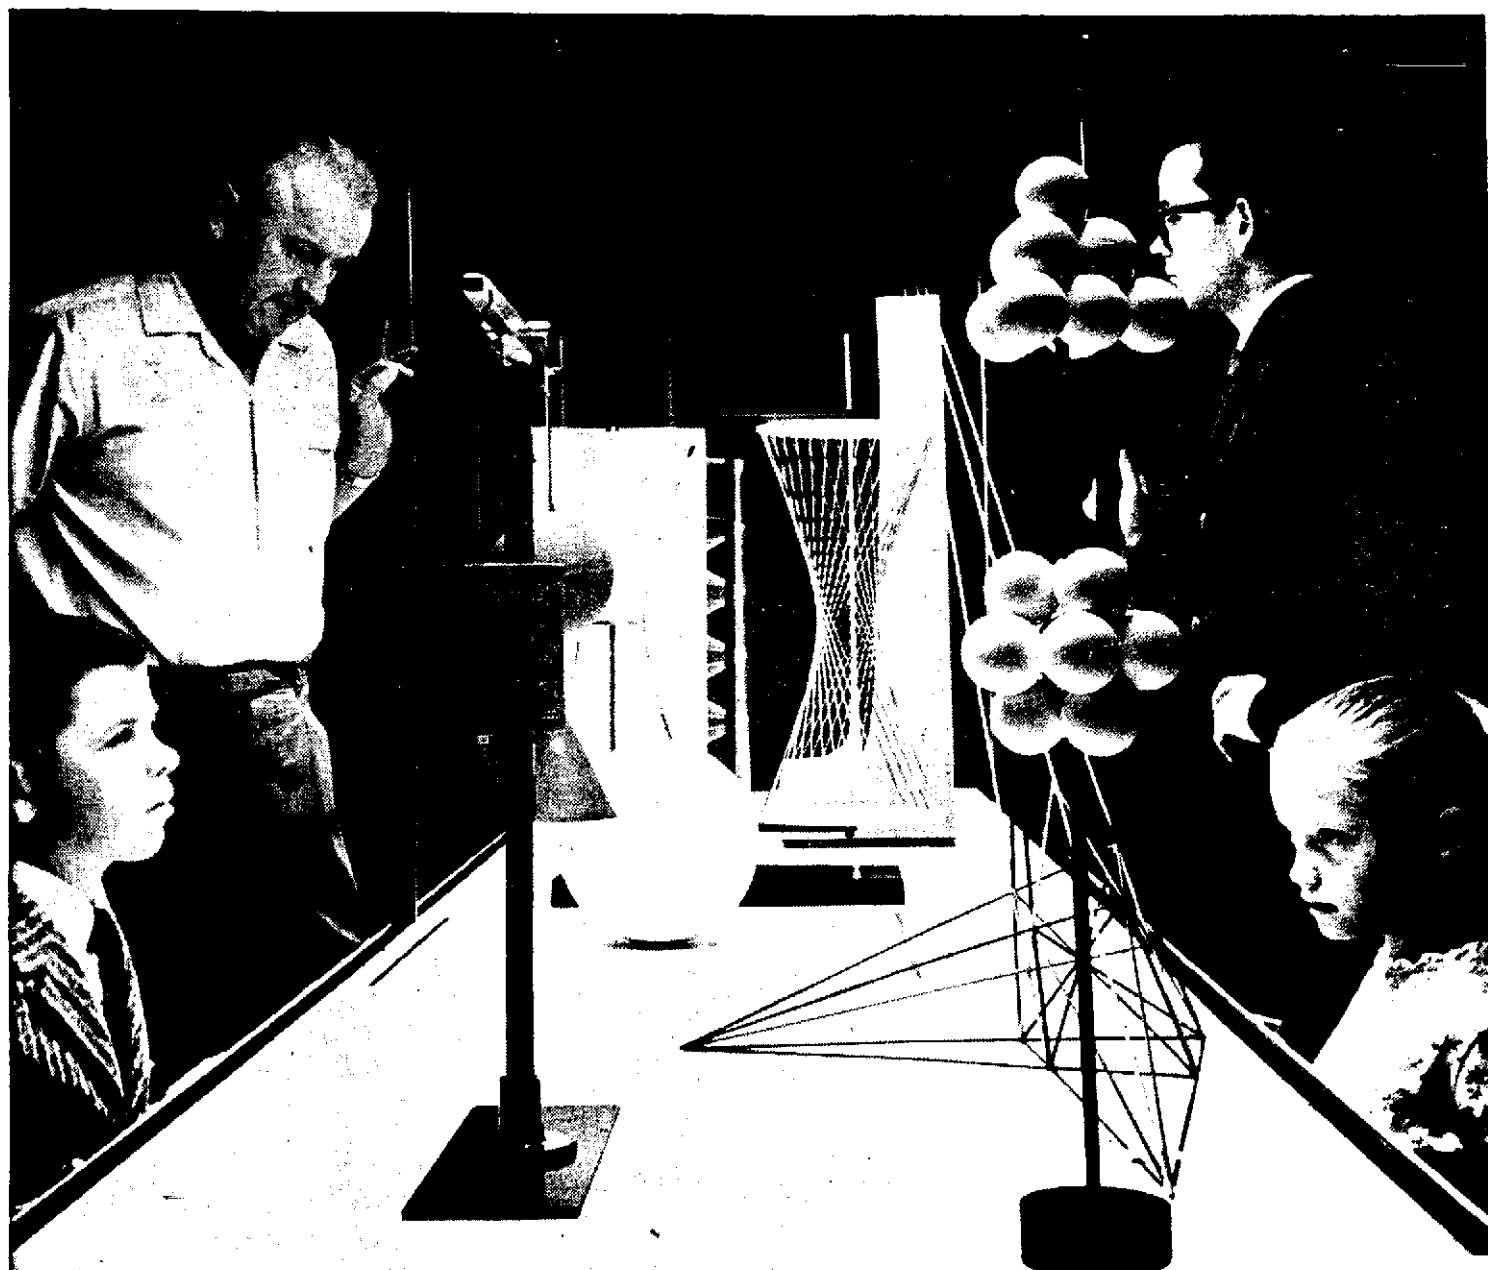

Car-top unit that's weatherproof and easily made is shown by Bob Barker of NBC's "Truth or Consequences."

The best solution is a weatherproof, hinged and locked unit that rides securely atop the car.

WITH A full-sized pattern, a list of materials and lots of helpful illustrations and easy-to-read directions, even an amateur can make such a compartment but of inexpensive, exterior-type plywood.

To obtain car luggage compartment pattern No. 228 send $1 in currency, check or money order payable to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., 15155 Salicoy St., Van Nuys, Calif. Another car item is a Driver's Carry-All Arm Rest—Pattern No. 201—for 50 cents.

Mathematical models displayed at the California Museum of Science and Industry.

Mathematics . . . a world of numbers and beyond

Mathematics is an exciting world . . . a world of perfect symmetry and infinite variety . . . a world revealed through man's highest imagining.

But above all, it is a world that is becoming more and more a vital part of our daily lives. For today, mathematical concepts are being used to release the power of the atom, to probe into the secrets of the living cell, to scout the reaches of space in advance of man himself.

At IBM we have a very special interest in mathematics. Mathematical principles govern the operation of our computers, and even many of the problems these computers are designed to solve.

A tangible expression of this interest is a new permanent educational exhibit which IBM has developed for the California Museum of Science and Industry in Los Angeles. Through the use of three-dimensional models and mobile displays, the exhibit affords a new insight into mathematics and the role that it plays in the lives of all of us. You are invited to visit the exhibit, which is open to the public without charge every day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. IBM and threw it ashore saying, "My flesh and my blood are ashore ahead of you." The land won by this means was the Hebrides, islands comprising 2,900 square miles off the west Scotch coast. MacDonald and the name-variation McDANNALD means "Sons of World Ruler." Somerled, meaning "the mariner" died in 1164 while battling to expel the Vikings from the Hebrides. His grandson Donald of the Isles bequeathed his first name, Donald, to the clan for their surname. The ancient MacDonald coat-of-arms has a double-headed red eagle on a gold shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like data on MAZZELLA and MAZZOCCA.—M. M., San Pedro; A. M., Long Beach.
M. M., A. M.: MAZZELLA and MAZZOCCA, Italian surnames, are both from the Biblical-origin baptismal name Giacomazzo (James or Jacob in English, meaning "Supplanter"). Giacomazzo was shortened by removing the first five letters, producing Mazzo, which was augmented with nickname endings, becoming "Mazz-ella" and "Mazz-occa." No coat-of-arms is recorded for either family.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze SMITH.—E. J., B. A., L. D., Long Beach.
SMITH is of English origin, shortened from a common medieval trade name such as blacksmith, spearsmith, nailsmith or arrowsmith. Smith has been a popular surname since the 100s. The famous Capt. John Smith, founder of Virginia, was born in Lincolnshire, England, in 1580. The Rev. Ralph Smith of the same lineage arrived in Massachusetts on the ship Talbot in 1629 and became the first regular pastor of Plymouth Church. The Smith shield from Leicester has a gold chevron between three gold coins and three black crosses on a red background.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the origin of GAZDA.—E.G., Long Beach.
E.G.: GAZDA is a Slavic surname from Yugoslavia. "Gazda" meant "head of the family and master of the house," and was indicative of a stern father who fulfilled his duties in every way to his family.

Send your name to La Reina Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

Emotional pitch runs high in Little Leagues, as this tense youngster, tongue in mouth, shows in base dash.

jokes as the one about the fellow in the grandstand who shouted "We're playing this game under protest—there's an illegal spectator in the stands!"

ACTUALLY, LITTLE LEAGUE is a most misused term. Little League (capital "L") is just a part of the over-all junior baseball program. It encompasses some of the boys 12 and under.

There are also the Boys'

Club League, Patrick Henry League, Mighty Midget League, Kiwanis T-Shirt League, Pony League, Colt League and Catholic League among others.

"We figure there are more than 400 kid teams in Long Beach of one kind or another," explains Ballard. And more teams are added every year. Mothers who have those little prides who can throw straight as an arrow recently forced the start of the T-Shirt League, which takes lads as young as 7 years.

With 15 to 20 on a team, that's some 7,000 "little leaguers" in Long Beach alone and another 3,000 in Lakewood, plus another 2,000 in the Artesia-Norwalk area and about the same in Bellflower and so on across the greater Long Beach region.

TO GET AN IDEA of the monetary magnitude of these sandlot shenanigans, it costs about $400 to equip a team (and sponsors are getting harder to find). If all the teams in Long Beach had to buy new equipment in the same season (uniforms last three years) the cost would be $160,000.

If the "organizers" are right, it's a small price to pay for the solution to the delinquency problem. If the other side is right, it's a high price for a good cry after a strike-out or a dropped fly.

But whichever side is right, it remains a truth that all those boys SEEM to be having a whale of a lot of fun.

FOR THE BUSY housewife who has a minimum of time to spend in the kitchen, frankfurters help with quick and easy meals—and they have appetite appeal. Franks, cooked and smoked over hardwood fires, need only be reheated to be ready to eat.

When you buy franks, insist on branded frankfurters with the open-fire flavor, finely ground beef and pork, seasoned with selected imported spices.

Frankfurters are easy on the budget, for there is no bone, no waste and no shrink. They're a nutritional bargain, too, high in protein, vitamins and minerals.

You may roast franks over the open fire, grill them, broil them, bake them or heat them in water.

If you heat franks in water, drop them into boiling water, remove the pan from the heat, cover and let stand for seven to eight minutes. The franks will be steaming hot and at the peak of their flavor goodness. Do not boil and do not prick the franks.

For a variation, serve Frankfurter-Corn Bake. Round out the meal with French bread and fresh fruit salad with sour cream dressing.

Frankfurter-Corn Bake

- 1 pound frankfurters
- 1 (16 to 17-ounce) can whole kernel corn (2 cups)
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 2 tbslp. butter or margarine, melted and cooled
- 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/4 cup minced onion
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper

Combine all ingredients except franks and place in oiled shallow casserole. Bake in 350 degree F. oven for 10 minutes. Add franks, return to oven and bake 10 minutes longer or until franks are heated through. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

CONTRACTOR OFFERS SPECIAL SERVICES TO CUSTOMERS

Emery Gorne, Stanton contractor, has sold his shares of stock in the firm bearing his name. He wishes to thank everyone for their past patronage and his suppliers for helping him make it a successful business.

Mr. Gorne wishes to announce that he is now the owner of Hi-Lo Contractors, Inc., a smaller firm. Mr. Gorne says that by reducing overhead he promises to give high quality standards in any additions or remodeling ... with lower prices.

Hi-Lo Contractors will furnish completion bonds on each contract, because completion bonds assure the customer that he will not have to pay for bills, incurred by the construction, more than once! They strongly urge all customers to obtain a completion bond to "confidently" and "safely" protect their investment. You're out of this type of contracting.

... Remember ... this is the one safe way to know your contractor.

Hi-Lo Contractors, Inc., will specialize in Adding-on Family Rooms, Bedrooms, Baths, remodeling kitchens, new stone or brick fronts with aluminum or asbestos siding as well as a very unique patio family room easily converted into an extra bedroom or den.

Hi-Lo believes remodeling is a business of its own ... very special type of craftsmanship is needed to add-on to any existing structure. Because of this, the firm does not wish to do any new residential or commercial buildings.

In addition to high quality craftsmanship and low prices, Hi-Lo will offer complete planning services and designing. Hi-Lo Contractors Inc., may be reached by calling either JA 7-2171 or TW 8-8716, day or evening. You're not in the toll free area.

DEPLANE

"So many people have given us advice on how to carry money on a trip to Europe, it is confusing. Travelers' checks? Letters of credit? Buy foreign money here? What do you say?"

I CARRY most of my money in travelers' checks—$10, $20 and $50 checks. If I'm staying in the country for a few days, I cash a $50. Just passing through, a $10 or $20.

Letters of credit are for deals where you are on business—where you need large money, not just spending cash. It takes time at the bank. And banks aren't open sometimes when you need pocket cash.

But any restaurant or hotel will cash the travelers' check.

The cost of these checks $1 per $100, no matter how you split it up or the number of checks. It is worth it for convenience and protection.

There is no advantage in buying foreign money for Europe here that I can see. European money (this side of the Iron Curtain) is stabilized.

You can buy Russian rubles at 25 to $1 instead of the Russian internal tourist price of 10 to $1. (Any legitimate exchange house in New York.) But it is against Russian law to bring them in.

It is better to exchange money at banks and exchange houses. European hotels take a cut—some enough to pay the help. Exceptions to this (Continued on Page 23.)

Going Places

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

THIS WEEK we introduce our Q.N.Q. — Queer Notions Quotient—test for novice travelers to Europe. The best part of this quiz is that to pass all you've got to do is change your wrong idea to the right one and you'll be in shape to appreciate your trip without misconceptions.

Queer Notion 1: You can't go to Europe without buying a whole new wardrobe.

Right Idea: If you can afford it, fine. But if it means cutting into your hard-saved trip money, no. Buy just what you need, take along the basic and durable clothes you would to travel at home, dress up in the cities and dress comfortably in the country.

Q.N. 2: You'll go crazy trying to shift gears into foreign money.

R.I.: No you won't. You'll become used to each country's currency so quickly you'll start thinking in it. If you need help, send a stamped addressed envelope for one of our free converters.

There's a rule of thumb for each country, (divide by five in France, by four in Germany, etc.) but shop owners can translate to dollars quicker than you can do the mental gymnastics of long division. For tipping, the basic coins—100 lira in Italy, one new franc or 100 old francs in France, one shilling in Britain, one mark in Germany, one kroner in Scandinavia—

Q.N. 3: Traveling in Europe is cheap.

R.I.: It's not cheap, but it can be cheaper than at home.

Q.N. 4: European hotels are as comfortable as ours.

R.I.: Only the very best of them are; you'd best be prepared for limited facilities in the other. But the service is better.

Q.N. 5: All Europeans speak English.

R.I.: It just isn't true. You'll get great dividends from your trip by studying some of the handy phrase booklets put out by such as the Berlitz people, available in all book stores.

Q.N. 6: Europeans don't like North Americans and show it.

R.I.: Collectively, there is always some resentment. But individually, now that the day of the brash loud-mouth tourist is past, you'll find that the courteous Europeans respond as warmly as any one else to gentility and consideration. Mutual respect is the key.

Q.N. 7: Europeans are always out to cheat foreigners.

R.I.: There are parts of this hemisphere where even natives will be cheated a lot quicker. Nearly everywhere, you can put your fortune in your hand and tell a cab driver, waiter or cashier to take what's coming to him, and he won't take a mark more.

Q.N. 8: You don't need a travel agent; you can plan your own trip.

R.I.: You can also defend yourself in court or take out your own appendix—once. Group tours cost you less than the same trip on an individual basis because the agent literally gets all those rooms and sightseeing arrangements wholesale.

Ghost Towns and Cattle Domains

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Independent, Press-Telegram Travel Editor

A DAY'S drive from Long Beach and you're in the Mingus Mountain area of central Arizona, a land of impressively beautiful cattle domains, fresh-air recreation in pine forest mountain retreats, breath-taking scenic vistas, one of the world's most bizarre ghost towns — and a wonderful retreat called Oak Creek Canyon.

To get there, you can drive U. S. Hwy 80 to Phoenix and then north on Hwy. 69 to Prescott; or you may take Hwys. 60-70 to Wickenburg and then switch to Hwy. 89.

Once in Prescott, you're in business. This mile-high old Territorial capital is a treat in itself. The air is thin and crisp, the view is superb, and there is an abundance of ultramodern motels. Plenty to see, and the food and drinks are good on the west side of the town square, once known as Whiskey Row.

AFTER LEAVING Prescott on Hwy. 89A, which heads for Land of scenic vistas

Flagstaff, and passing the interesting rock wonderland of Granite Dells, the road winds through the grassy expanses of Lonesome Valley. Distant mountains serrate the horizon and huge herds of cattle roam the unfenced domain. It's the Old West of storybook come true.

All too soon the road twists up through the narrow cleft in the Black Mountains known as Jaeger Canyon in a wonderland of scenery. Then at the summit—7,029 feet—comes the Mingus Mountain Recreation Area replete with picnic sites, trails camp grounds and views of the Verde Valley, distant Monogollon Rim and the San Francisco Peaks.

But don't forget the other side of the mountain in your satisfaction for, clinging to mountainside is the semi-ghost town of Jerome.

ONCE A THRIVING copper mining town, Jerome — with its stilted, tilted buildings arranged terraced-fashion one above the other—now is all but deserted. And, what's more, it's gradually slipping down the hill thanks to an old-time mining blast. But everyone says it's perfectly safe, even to get out and browse.

Down the hill is Clarkdale, a thriving little city; and before you know it you're in Oak Creek Canyon. With its spectacular red cliffs rising above a wooded, rippling stream, here is one of the prettiest places you ever saw —with a delightful climate (many well-to-do from Phoenix have summer homes here).

Hwy. 89A continues up hairpin turns to Flagstaff for more delights, but you won't rush it: You'll want to linger here for longer than you have the time to stay!

CONTINUING at a rate of growth well above the average among international air carriers, Alitalia, the national airline of Italy, registered an impressive 93 per cent increase in North Atlantic passenger traffic for May. Total passengers carried was 7,117. Alitalia's 18 DC-8 jet flights per week to Europe during the summer season include three weekend nonstop hops between New York and Rome, five from New York to London, and four from New York to Milan.

WHAT'S FOR SHOW at Las Vegas? Sahara, Connie Francis; Desert Inn, McGuire Sisters; Dunes, "Tenderloin"; Flamingo, Milton Berle; New Frontier, "Holiday in Rio"; Riviera, "Gypsy"; Sands, Frank Sinatra; Stardust, "Le Lido de Paris"; Thunderbird, Kirby Stone 4; Tropicana, "Folies Bergere."

WEEKEND GADABOUTS:

July 1-2: Antelope Valley Rodeo and Antlers Roundup at Palmdale, 8 p.m. both days, Western Parade at 5 p.m. July 2.

July 1-4: 25th annual Summer Sports Festival, Santa Barbara. Forty-three events on land and sea including swimming, sailing, cricket, lawn bowling, motor riding and kite and model plane flying.

July 1-4: Dam-A-Rama at Lake Isabella, opened by a morning parade. Water rodeo (barrels used for animals), kiteman water skier, and various water events.

July 1-9: Tennis Championships at La Jolla, with 1,350 entries in 36 events for all ages.

Around the World With Delaplane

rule: Switzerland, England, Ireland, Austria.

"... and if you carry money, is it safe? Do you put it in a hotel strongbox?"

THE BIGGER the exchange, the more bulky your money. Cash $100 in Italy 62,500 lire.

When money gets into this and you've got a pocketful of Michigan roll size, I carry it inside my coat rather than in the pistol pocket.

I don't leave money lying loose in a hotel room—any more than I would here. But I seldom lock the suitcase. And I never have missed any money. (My associate, Kevin Keating, lost $50, though, in a Paris hotel room. I stay at the same hotel and never missed a cuff link.)

"... whether your things are safe in your car."

NEVER LOST anything. But I lock my cars. However, in a good neighborhood in San Francisco, I've had my car broken into three times now. All because I left things in sight on the seat. I never had a car opened anywhere else.

You might remember that a $50 camera on a car seat is not as tempting in a well-to-do country as it is where $50 is five months' pay for a laborer.

However, in the poor country of Spain, you can leave your watch on the street and pick it up two weeks later. A policeman might be guarding it. But it will be against other tourists.

The Case of the Wayward Child

By Vera Williams
Independent Press Telegram Book Editor

DELINQUENCY and crime cost American taxpayers $20 billion a year.

A million U. S. youngsters get into serious trouble with the law each year.

What can be done? Detect waywardness early in children and straighten them out before they become delinquent, advocate Kenyon Scudder and Kenneth Beam in "THE TWENTY BILLION DOLLAR CHALLENGE: A National Program for Delinquency Prevention" (Putnam, $4.50).

Kenyon's name is practically synonymous with delinquency prevention in California, and giving convicts a second chance. For nine years he was Los Angeles County's chief probation officer, he served as superintendent of two California state schools for boys, for 12 years he was superintendent of the honor farm prison, the California Institute for Men at Chino. He wrote "Prisoners Are People" about Chino, its revolutionary ideas about confining men without bars or fences, and the men who have succeeded and failed at Chino. Beam, his collaborator in the new book, a Congregational minister, was the first director of Coordinating Councils in Los Angeles County and served in the same capacity 15 years in San Diego County.

Responsibility for juvenile delinquency the writers place first on the homes — disastrously low income homes, homes where the parents are too busy or too indifferent to guide their children, homes where there is alcoholism and flouting of the law. They have a good deal to say about alcoholism and put it fourth on the list of national diseases, immediately after heart disease, cancer, mental disease.

EDWIN O'CONNOR

The author of "The Last Hurrah" has done a major new work, "THE EDGE OF SADNESS" (Little, Brown, $5), a sympathetic portrait of a middle-aged priest. Several generations of an Irish American family and the social and cultural changes within it are portrayed.

In their very early years children who are slated to become delinquents show latent tendencies towards delinquency, they say. If parents, teachers, counsellors, group leaders have the wisdom to note these tendencies and act quickly, a life of crime can be averted. Such children they believe need guidance, correction, possibly psychiatric help, at once.

Scudder and Beam plead for close cooperation of parents, schools, churches, youth groups, and law enforcement agencies dealing with youth problems. The crux of their program is "Make decency popular."

The authors point out comfortingly that juvenile delinquency is not new in America. A flagrant case of it developed on the Mayflower.

The Road Back

Less than two centuries after the humble and austere Pilgrim Fathers hurried out of Europe to America their grandchildren, notably the daughters, were racing back to the continent to hook the now impoverished, and suddenly desirable royalty.

Biographer Hesketh Pearson, a Londoner, has compiled a witty collection of tales of title-conscious American families and their restless pursuit and fierce competition for "banns across the seas" in "THE MARRYING AMERICANS" (Coward-McCann, $5).

The deals were simple. The gentry needed hard cash to live in the manner they were accustomed to and the American lassies and their papas had the lucre and were newly arrived status seekers.

Some of the matches, from Betsy Patterson's marriage to Prince Jerome Bonaparte in 1807 to the wedding of Bessie Wallace Simpson and Edward VIII, who gave up an empire in 1937 to wed the Baltimore divorcee, were the result of true love.

And not always did the families approve of the mating, such as the marriage of Jenny Jerome to Lord Randolph Churchill.

Jenny's pa was a speculator and what was distastefully known in court circles as the "nouveau riche." The Churchills were the Marlboroughs of Blenheim and were certain that blue blood did not mix with greenbacks under any circumstances.

When Lord Randolph persisted, his father wrote scathingly, ". . . the uncontrolled state of your feelings completely paralyzes your judgment."

Love willed out and a good thing for both England and America it was. The match

The Stormy Career of Casey Stengel

CASEY STENGEL was not always the omnipotent sorcerer behind the mighty New York Yankees.

At Brooklyn, where he managed for three years, he was paid for not managing a fourth because of his poor record. In Boston his managerial record was fifth, seventh, seventh, seventh, seventh, seventh and sixth.

Owner Bill Veeck, just before Casey went to the Yanks, didn't even want him hosing a minor league club and wrote:

"In my humble opinion, he is a poor manager

—I have no confidence in him and rather than be continuously worried, I'd rather dispose of the whole damn thing . . ."

But Case learned the secret and became baseball's winningest manager. That witty, wacky and wonderful story is told in "CASEY STENGEL'S SECRET" by Clay Felker (Walker, $3.95).

In addition to being a human and revealing biography of a pro who as both a player and manager saw baseball struggle from infancy to a golden maturity as the national pastime, Felker's book is a baseball buff's must for the photographs it contains. Many are collector's items.

The photos show Casey at critical stages of his career such as (1) His greatest moment as a player as he slides across home plate with a game-winning inside-the-park homerun in the ninth inning of the first game of the 1923 World Series, (2) Casey, the cantankerous "perfeesser," verbally lacerating an umpire and (3) the poignant day Case, the man who won 10 pennants and seven World Series, is fired by the Yankee high command.

produced a great World War II leader, the indomitable Winston Churchill.

POLITICAL NOVELS are often pretty superficial, and political war novels are almost unerringly so. But not so in the case of "THE BEST SHALL DIE" by Hungarian-born Eric Roman (Prentice-Hall, $4), a story of Budapest before, during and after the uprising of 1956. The hero is Andras, a newspaperman and pampered member of the Communist Party elite torn between his political upbringing and a drive to speak and write the truth. Roman's work is not a Western-inclined political attack on Communism per se. His heroes seek to overthrow the dictatorship of the Kremlin and the native-raised Kremlin stooges. The most remarkable aspect of the novel is the description of the bloody street fighting as children grapple with tanks and the might of the Russian army. These are passages of grim terror and moving heroism that compel the reader to admiration despite the political undertones.

LONG BEACH has many little theater enthusiasts, and all will be interested in three new books: "HOW TO BREAK INTO THE THEATER" by Charlotte Harmon (Dial, $3.50), a guidebook for theater hopefuls; "AMATEUR THEATER" by Van H. Cartmell (Van Nostrand, $3.95), a guide for actor and director with the working script of the one-act play "George," and "YOUR CAREER IN THE THEATER" by Bruce Savan (Doubleday, $3.95), with information on auditions, making the rounds of booking agents, participating in summer stock, and touring.

FASCINATING TALES make up "PAWNEE, BLACK-FOOT AND CHEYENNE," history and folklore of the plains from the writings of George Bird Grinnell, selected by Dee Brown (Scribner, $4.95). Grinnell, founder of the Audubon Society, naturalist, explorer, respected and thoroughly liked the plains Indians, and they accepted him as a friend. He described personal experiences with each of the three tribes, tribal history, and folktales. An excellent book to keep or present as a gift.

Guide to Reflexes

By Irving Desfor

THE EYE-LEVEL single-lens reflex is the simplest, most logical, accurate and exciting type of 35mm camera today. Light from the subject enters the lens, is reflected upwards by a 45-degree mirror through a glass prism and directed to your eye. What you see is an image which in area and perspective is precisely what the film will record. No matter what lens you fit to the camera you can witness the result immediately, since the image projected by the lens itself is your viewfinder. The eye level reflex has removed all obstacles between you and your subject. Its lens sees as your eye sees; it views the world as you do."

That's the beginning of Herbert Keppler's new knock-down, drag-out, no-holds-barred book, "... on the Eye-Level Reflex" (Amphoto Publ., N.Y.). It is opinionated, frank, critical—and extremely instructive. It is by far the best guide available today for the bewildered camera fan lost in the woods of eye-level reflex cameras.

AND WHAT makes 36-year-old Bert Keppler a top seeing-eye dog in this field? As the son of illustrious photo illustrator Victor Keppler, he was born and developed with hypo in the blond and a camera for a plaything. As he grew up and matured, photography became a way of life for him, too, but as a personal practitioner, writer and editor.

His preference for the eye-level reflex camera started about 10 years ago and has led him to try out just about every design on the market since then; to explore the technical engineering and theories behind the designs and to evaluate candidly the results from personal experience and practical application.

They Battle Ice Monsters

faces varying conditions. Of the 15,000 to 20,000 huge chunks of ice that break off Greenland glaciers annually to become icebergs, only an average of 400 survive the 3-year drift into the shipping lanes. The remainder run aground, are trapped in coves and bays, or melt in the sun. The number of icebergs in the shipping lanes varies from year to year. In 1958, only one berg was sighted; in 1959 the count was 69. But in 1912, the year of the Titanic disaster, there were 1,019, and in 1957 nearly 1,200 icebergs were sighted.

NORTH ATLANTIC icebergs vary considerably in size. One may be as large as a city block and be sculptured into fantastic shapes. The next may be only as large as a house and be shaped no more spectacularly than a big cake of ice.

Over the years the Ice Patrol hasn't solved the problem of how to destroy an iceberg. Torpedoes and dynamite have about as much effect upon the ice monsters as a wet firecracker. Recently the patrol decided to demolish a berg with thousand-pound incendiary bombs. These bombs were designed to burn for 20 minutes at 4,300 degrees F.—half as hot as the sun's surface—but they merely melted a few comparatively small holes on the icy surface.

PET PARADE

The Dog Game Is Changing

WITH THE blue ocean and the azure sky as a backdrop, terriers, sporting and working dogs will be judged today at the Harbor Cities Kennel Club finals on the lawn west of Long Beach Municipal Auditorium. At sunset, the six group winners from the two-day event will parade before Chris Shuttleworth of Sun Valley who will select best in show.

Dog events have changed greatly since their inception. In the early 1900s, about 15,000 canines annually were exhibited in this country. Today well over 200,000 purebreds each year compete for top honors. In the "old days" points toward championship were given on the basis of total number of dogs in a show; now points are awarded according to the number of dogs of the corresponding sex competing in each breed.

OBEDIENCE trials were non-existent even 30 years ago. And when they were in their infancy they were clumsy and funny. One was held in a dance hall. When the floor proved too slippery for the dogs, mattresses were rented and placed about. The dogs skittered them all over the place, so they were anchored to the floor with large nails.

Sled dog racing originated years ago in the snow country, with teams having grueling ordeals covering hundreds of miles in below zero weather. But the stakes seemed worth it. Inevitably sled racing came to the Southern California mountains. If the weatherman doesn't deliver snow, races are held anyway, with wheels attached to the sleds. If mud is the order of the day, all the dogs look more or less alike at the end of the races—bedraggled but gallant. It takes more than mud to daunt the spirit of a happy sled dogs such as the Alaskan Malemutes pictured with this article. Ch. Tigara's Dortie Shag-Luck, owned by Mrs. Dorothy Dillingham of Orange, a Malemute authority and breeder.

THE YEARS have physically changed some dogs, too, particularly among sporting breeds. It is difficult to picture, for example, the present-day heavy-coated show cocker bringing in a pheasant. Breeders of many sporting dogs, however, are now striving for dual dogs, ideal for both show bench and field trials.

The future undoubtedly holds many more changes. Some dog clubs wish to eliminate group judging and best in show and are giving this a try. And surely it would be good to see less clutter made by exhibitors at dog shows; less complaints among anti-obedience people and losing exhibitors; all show dogs loved as pets; more humane treatment of birds used in some field trials.

TRAVELING with pets poses extra problems for vacationists. Here are a few hints:

1. Take along your pet's favorite canned and dry foods.

2. Keep pet's belongings together—pans for water and food, thermos, can opener, measuring and mixing spoons, first aid kit (including tweezers, antiseptic, snake kit, creolin, ammonia), bucket, bedding, towels. In extreme heat, damp towels can be placed on pet's head, or pet may recline on damp towel or blanket to cool by evaporation.

3. Put an identification tag on pet and take his health certificate attesting he has had necessary inoculations.

4. Consult your veterinarian about car-sick pills and tranquilizers.

5. Exercise pet on leash when possible but keep him off hot pavement. Keep him secure in the moving car.

6. Never leave pet in car parked in sun.

7. Keep pet near you when camping in bear area. Retarder, sold by building material companies, sprinkled about will discourage wildlife. Do not let pet chase squirrels, etc. If a skunk backs, wash pet with one cup ammonia to one bucket water. Rinse salt-water off dog. If mites in water cause itching, use a bath of three teaspoons creolin to one gallon water.

If dog nearly drowns, resuscitate him by holding him by hind legs to let water drain from his lungs, then place him on his side and press with an in-and-out motion.

YOUR GARDEN

Here's Beauty for Problem Plots

By Bob Gilmore

Areas separating homes often referred to as set backs, always present landscaping problems. These narrow alleys have a width of just a few feet—too small for a major beautification program, yet too large to be ignored.

Two alternatives are possible. The strip that lies between adjoining pieces of property may be landscaped in one or two ways: certain plantings may be established, or the entire area may be screened from view. The former requires a little ingenuity, as the area to be treated is relatively small. On the other hand, the screening procedure is more economical but, in the long run, will perhaps prove less attractive.

One solution to this problem consists of planting a trio of white birches. The trees should be set so they form a triangle.

TREE FERNS, too, will prove useful, for they have an extensive lateral spread and height which will accent your garden, they also detract from the eyesore usually existing in the setback between homes. The fronds are light in tone and these ornamentals will perform beautifully as specimen subjects. Where the space between homes is large, a living fence may be utilized by planting dense-growing subjects such as privet or myrtle. For narrower openings, the podocarpus will be both ornamental and utilitarian.

Low growing ivy may be planted to beautify areas hard to cultivate—the setbacks required between houses.

One of the simplest and most economical procedures for solving this problem is to plant a ground cover such as mesembryanthemum. Many local home owners have taken advantage of this easy-to-grow perennial. The plant requires practically no care, and is often referred to as the camel of the plant world, since it goes for long periods without water. The quickest way to obtain a stand is to set out the plants. These will grow rapidly in warm weather.

LOW-GROWING lantana also will tie together adjoining pieces of property, thus breaking any harsh cleavage that ordinarily exists. These plants, like mesembryanthemum, are sun lovers, require very little care and are perennial in growing habit. Although lantana is extremely robust, and thus tends to outgrow its normal bounds, you will find that a little pruning every few months will maintain this ornamental's appearance.

DOROTHY DIGS
in the garden

By Dorothy Jonson

Thrips are an enemy we think of particularly in regard to roses and gladioli, but actually, they infest just about everything in the garden. On roses, they prevent the bud from opening. They're so small you can scarcely see them and yet they're large enough to suck the vitality from the petals and to leave a sticky residue which causes the edges to cling together so that the rose cannot open. On gladioli sheaths, you can often see the scars or blotches caused by thrip injury and, of course, they destroy the appearance of the blossoms, too.

One of the finest of the newer controls is the combination of Malathion and Dieldrin which is as near to being an all-purpose insecticide as I have found. Malathion acts quickly and Dieldrin more slowly but lasts for a longer time.

Glads should be sprayed from the time they're only a few inches high and the spray should be applied deep down into the heart of the plant.

Tips on African Violet Culture

Growing African violets successfully requires following certain rules of culture but is not difficult art.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . It is amazing how quickly the garden soil dries out. Adding sizeable quantities of peat moss or leaf mold will increase the porosity of the soil, as well as its ability to retain moisture.

Most evergreens are now growing rapidly, and there will soon be a need to trim them back. You should trim the plants by selecting the bud from which growth will emerge in the desired direction. Thus, with a rose for example, by cutting to the outside bud you will increase the lateral spread of the plant.

The best time for sowing dichondra seed is during the warmer months of the year.

Seed germinates most rapidly as the temperature rises.

Pruning should be practiced often enough to prevent plants from becoming top-heavy and therefore a good target for winds. Keep vines securely attached to a suitable support. Trees that become heavy towards the center of the plant should be thinned out. This allows the wind to pass on through and minimizes possibility of uprooting.

One of the easiest ways to feed pot plants is by using liquid fertilizers. Several brands are available at most garden supply stores, all of them carrying a relatively high content of the essential factors . . . nitrogen, phosphorous and potash.

By Joe Littlefield

AFRICAN VIOLETS are among the showiest of house plants from a blooming standpoint, but they require certain care for successful culture. Here are some hints from a prizewinning grower:

Regulate light. Too much light causes edges of leaves to turn and hang down around the pot. Flower buds don't form. Too little light causes petioles (leaf stalks) to grow long and straggly, and blooming stops. Be sure light does not come from underneath the plants, under a glass shelf or white rock in a pan or saucer and pot is setting on it.

Set plant pot about four inches below window sill on dark lava rock that is kept damp in a pan, to provide humidity for the plant. There should be about 12 hours of light for the plant.

EARLY MORNING sun is good through sheer material curtains. Soon as sun gets hot, shut off the light with bamboo blinds, venetian blinds, or paper doilies. Remove these extra shading materials soon as sun has past the window, then let indirect light in rest of the day.

Water should always be warm when you water the plants. A car battery water filler is best to water with, because you can measure exact amount of water for the plant. Never wait till leaves are limp before you water African violet plant. Wick pots with special watering system are good. Never let small plants dry out. Clay pots dry on outside means not enough frequent waterings.

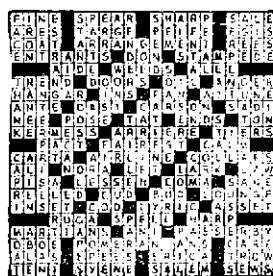

Temperature should range between 60 to 80 degrees. If plants get too cold, it stunts growth. Never set plants in a draft.

Be consistent in fertilizing. Cut down amount of fertilizer and feed oftener about every two weeks or so. Liquid fertilizer is easiest to use.

HUMIDITY SHOULD be constant, and the best way to provide that is to set pot in pan of dark color lava rock kept damp.

Groom African violets by picking off old, faded blooms and leaves. Remove sucker growths to keep plant single crowned. Warm water bathe foliage, keeping the water off the crown. Sponge off the water with a paper towel or sponge, keep in a dark corner of room out of draft until dry.

DR. RAYMOND HAS BEEN ADVISED BY THE CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT OF SOCIAL WELFARE THAT THE FOLLOWING PROGRAM IS NOW IN EFFECT FOR PENSIONERS.

"Effective Nov. 1, 1960, as a result of additional federal funds available for medical care, all necessary services for Old Age Security recipients will be provided through the Medical Care Trust Fund to cover the entire caseload."

Modern Dental Plates

Aided by "modern" dental plate materials and "improved" techniques, used in the construction of dental plates, Dental Science has followed a "progressive" path that resulted in dental plates more natural in "appearance," better fitting and more "comfortable" to wear than thought possible a few short years ago. Ask to see samples of modern dental plates, uppers, lowers and partials. GOOD dental plates need not be expensive. THE COST IS SMALL.

MILES ARNOLD
Salads by the Score

HAWAIIAN fruit salad, Waldorf salad, beef antipasto, Oriental salad, shrimp salad, tossed green salad, kidney bean salad, cole slaw, German slaw, ham salad, tomato and cucumber salad, fresh pineapple salad, stuffed cantaloupe salad, marinated herring salad, frosted grape salad and mixed fruit salad.

Quite an impressive list, isn't it?

And yet it contains only part of the 20 salad varieties offered daily at the long, immaculate glass counter at Arnold's Farm House, a spacious intelligently-planned restaurant at 6601 Manchester Blvd., Buena Park, near the Santa Ana Freeway.

The Farm House, owned by veteran restaurateur Miles Arnold, employs two salad chefs who work fulltime every day turning out garden-fresh salads. They have recipes for nearly 100 salads and as a result are able to provide vastly different combinations among the 20 offered each day.

Farm House guests can order a la carte or complete dinners as they pass along the self-service counters. The complete dinners, priced from $1.70, include the following:
three salad selections, entree, potato vegetable, beverage, roll and butter.

A broad variety of excellent entrees is always on display, each fresh and skillfully prepared. Among them are Arnold's famed round of roast beef, baked ham, fillet of northern halibut and fried chicken. Each day additional entrees are offered, such as beef Stroganoff, shrimp Newburg or roast turkey. On Sundays, for example, the additional entrees include baked breast of chicken Hawaiian, leg of lamb, Swiss steak and several others.

Closed Mondays, the Farm House serves luncheon from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.; dinner from 4 to 8 p.m.

THE SIX FACES OF CAROL BURNETT

Sunday, June 25, 1961

"YOU MEAN ME?" "WELL, NATURALLY." "IT'LL BE A JOB." "IT'LL MAKE IT OK." "SHOULD BE FUN." "RELAX"

COMEDienne CAROL BURNETT displays many-faced reaction to her invitation to appear on "Person to Person" at 10:30 p.m. Friday, channel 2. The expressive actress, a regular on "The Garry Moore Show," recently was named "Favorite Female Star" in a "TV Guide" poll.

WESTERN HERO LOOKS EAST

Bob Fuller Prefers Oriental Girls

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — If actor Bob Fuller has his way, viewers may be in for a show titled "Hopalong Yamamoto" or perhaps "Samurai Fight at the Osaka Corral."

For that matter, Fuller may exchange his "Laramie" series for an eastern western titled "Nagasaki."

Westerns are the rage in Japan and so is Fuller, whose show currently is No. 1 in that island country. Japanese affection for the muscular actor is returned a hundred fold.

Bob has visited there three times and plans to return again this fall. But it isn't so much the beauty of Japan that has mesmerized our hero so much as the Japanese beauties.

Fuller digs Oriental girls.

"THEY ARE among the most beautiful women in the world," he said with a faraway look in his eyes. "But the rumor isn't true that I have plans to marry a certain girl over there. It could happen, though."

"I've dated a lot of Japanese girls and they're just great. They sure are different from American women."

"Japanese girls defer more to men. Whatever you decide to do or wherever you decide to go is fine with them. No arguments. They're more 'with' you, if you know what I mean."

"The man is the center of

their world when they are on a date and that's as it should be."

FULLER IS SO enamored of Japanese cuties, he has been dating local members of the sorority here in Hollywood.

Last April Fuller was greeted by more than 10,000 Japanese when he landed in Tokyo. Whenever he left his hotel a crowd was waiting to shout his name and ask for his autograph.

"It's all because of the show," he explained. "Horse operas are as big as baseball over there. And the role I play is something like the outlaw Samurai of their traditional theater."

"While I was there I was offered three movie roles and I will make them as soon as possible."

"Did you know they produce many more pictures in Japan than we do in Hollywood? One studio alone turns out 100 movies a year."

The first picture Bob plans to do in Tokyo involves a story of two feuding villages during the last century. Because the people can't settle their differences, they hire an American cowboy to come over and straighten out the mess.

And who rides to the rescue?

Old Movies Popular on TV

By DICK KLEINER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA)—Whether it's a major film or "Charlie Chan in Addis Ababa," the ratings of old movies on TV are consistently good.

The movies are chopped up with commercials. The sound track is often bad. The costumes are funny. Since these were made to be shown on a large screen, the TV viewer frequently misses details—like people's heads.

Yet viewers frequently seem to elect these middle-aged marvels over current programs produced expressly for the TV screen.

It would seem to be a puzzler, but the answer is simple. The key is a branch of lower mathematics known as Hollywood arithmetic.

If Jack took seven days to build a kite, and Jim took one day to build a kite, which would be the better kite? Well, presumably Jack's kite would be better, assuming that both were equally good with a hammer.

That's how Hollywood arithmetic works.

In the feature film days, the average Hollywood movie took two months to make. There were quickies turned out in a few weeks, and epics which were six months in the production. But 60 days was about average for feature films that ran about 60 minutes.

Today's Hollywood TV studios produce a half-hour show in five days, an hour show in anywhere from seven to 14 days.

In other words, TV films are genuine quickies compared to feature films. They're not even done with the care lavished on B pictures in the '30s.

Admittedly, there are some extenuating circumstances. The crews have perfected methods of speeding production. Time isn't wasted quite as lavishly as it once was. Sets, in the case of shows using the same set from week to week, are already built. These things cut the time figure down some—but not that much.

If you give the TV film boys the benefit of the doubt, and say they're producing 60 minute TV films in 14 days, that's still a long way from the 60 days of feature film making. Today's grind-'em-out experts produce more than four hour-long shows in the time it took feature film makers to produce one.

Is it any wonder the old movies, even with their faults, shine by comparison?

Is it any wonder that the public, no fools, can tell the good from the bad and love old movies?

TV film producers insist their tight schedule is dictated by expenses and time. They grind them out because they have to, they say, otherwise they wouldn't make any money. And many times they are shooting "under the gun." If they don't finish one by Friday, the home screen will be dark next Tuesday.

But the explanations are flimsy. Maybe they wouldn't make as much money if they took more time, but they would make enough. How many swimming pools does a man need?

ALLISON HAYES has lead role on "Tombstone Territory" at 7 p.m. Friday, channel 7.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

The excited child ran down the church steps to her waiting mother and shouted:
"Mommy! Mommy! Marilyn Monroe is teaching Sunday School."

Marilyn Monroe was not teaching Sunday School, but TV actress Maureen Arthur was. The excited little girl was one of her students.

For Maureen, who overheard the youngster's shouts, it was another understandable case of mistaken identity. There had been others who had thought she was Marilyn.

Blonde Maureen, at 5 feet, 4 inches tall, weighs 115 pounds distributed in 38-23-34 proportions.

And the distribution creates a sexy impression—an impression Maureen hates to convey.

And not only at church.

THE BUXOM BLONDE, a San Jose native who spent her childhood vacations with her grandparents in Long Beach, claims:

"My biggest career problem is that I'm rather well-built.

"As soon as I walk into a casting office, I'm typed as a dumb blonde or the other woman.

"I'm never considered for really sensitive roles."

She'd like to portray "really sensitive roles."

Any very dramatic part would do but, if she had her choice, she'd prefer to star in a movie or TV special on the life of Carole Lombard or Judy Garland.

There are other disadvantages to being rather well-built.

"I have to be very careful about what I wear on TV," Maureen revealed.

And one of TV's doors is shut to her, a door opening to a lucrative field.

"I can't do commercials," said Maureen. "I can't because it's principally women who buy products. The men who handle the commercials say I look too sexy and other women would resent me. They wouldn't buy the product I was advertising."

THE "TOO SEXY" LOOK almost shut another lucrative TV door.

"I heard they were looking for a girl for the new 'Holiday Lodge' series," said Maureen. "I didn't know what kind of a part the girl would play, but I thought I'd like to try out for it.

"It's important, before you're interviewed, to know what type they're looking for. If you know it's a sweet, innocent girl, you don't come in like 'Gangbusters.'"

It was a "sweet, innocent girl" the show producers sought, Maureen learned.

Attempting to camouflage the "too sexy" look, Maureen put on a checked blouse, black skirt, polo coat and "combed my hair fluffy." Then she went to the interview.

When "Holiday House" debuts at 9:30 p. m. today on channel 2, the girl frequently mistaken for Marilyn Monroe will have a "sweet, innocent" lead.

She portrays Dorothy Jackson—"which, in itself, is very sweet"—a kind of trouble-shooting, straight-man—with curves—for comedians Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster.

She formerly was a Gracie Allen type comedienne straight-man for Jan Murray on his television show.

THE MURRAY SHOW, unlike the "Holiday Lodge" series, originated in New York. Maureen's husband, George Wilder, a night club entertainer and music publisher, has his business interests on the West Coast.

Marriage came first, so Maureen said goodbye to the New York show and returned to make her home in Westwood.

It was a return that meant she could once again frequently visit her Long Beach grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth McArdle, and her uncle, Milt Arthur.

It was a return that meant re-visiting the Long Beach places where she spent cherished summer vacations as a child. "Bixby Park," said Maureen, "my favorite in the whole wide world.

"I remember the swings. I remember walking hand-in-hand with my grandfather (John McArdle) and listening while he told me ghost stories with a Scotch brogue.

"He taught me to repeat nursery rhymes with that brogue and, when I was about three years old, I recited some on the stage at a union hall program in Long Beach."

"The beach near Rainbow Pier—I remember how it used to be our best swimming place.

ALTHOUGH THE SUNDAY SCHOOL teacher doesn't drink or smoke, she occasionally stops in at a Long Beach "piano-bar" in Victor Hugo's Restaurant, 730 E. Broadway.

Buddy Reed, one of Maureen's and her husband's favorite entertainers, mans the keyboard.

"We just sit there and sing until they throw us out," said Maureen. "Sometimes I do an impersonation."

An impersonation? Of whom?

MILLION-DOLLAR CHECKS BOUNCE

Bogus Philanthropy Brings Tragic Mail

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—

The most famous American millionaire, with the possible exception of J. Paul Getty, is a fraud named John Beresford Tipton, the philanthropist who hands out million-dollar checks—all of which bounce like basketballs.

Tipton is represented by an equally fictitious character named Michael Anthony on the defunct TV series, "The Millionaire."

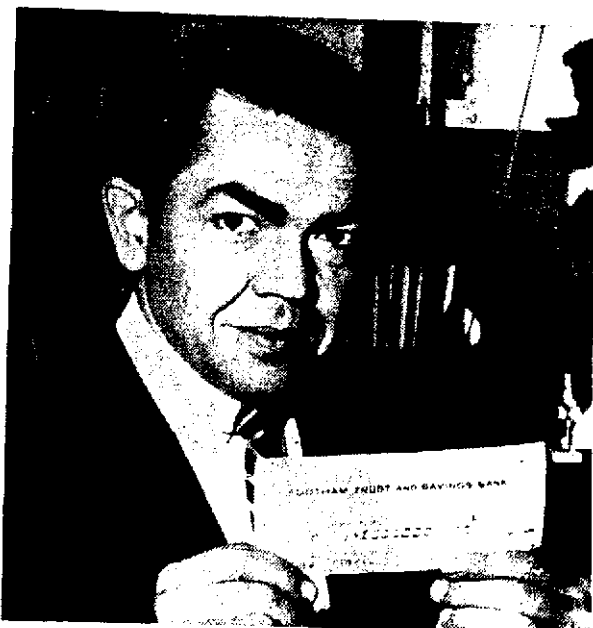

As portrayed by actor Marvin Miller, Anthony provided a million bucks a week to various actors on the show. So believable is the program that thousands of people wanted a cut of the swag.

When the series expired this year, Miller thought the public would forget about his bogus give-away. But he figured without re-runs. Now he's getting more mail than ever.

*****

SOME LETTERS are funny, others tragic. But no matter how heartrending the request, Miller turns down everyone with a polite note.

One New Jersey family has written him for four years, interspersed with phone calls and telegrams. To placate the moochers, Marvin sent them one of his bogus checks for a million dollars. They quickly attempted to buy a new house and were outraged when the bank refused to cash the check.

Another man wanted $3 million to finance a lawsuit.

A woman asked Marvin to finance her car, enabling her to become a Bible salesman.

"The re-runs have perpetuated the idea that I'm loaded," Miller complained. "But I don't dare send a single dollar to anyone, no matter how pathetic the request. If I did, I'd really be in trouble."

Peggy's TV Mother of Chimps

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Comedienne Peggy Cass, a veteran of three years on the Jack Paar Show, moves up in class next season by starring with three chimpanzees in a new TV situation comedy series.

Fun-filled Peggy is unique. She is playing an average American housewife with the trio of chimps as her kids. How average can you get?

"Those chimps lead a good life," she said between takes at the Columbia Pictures ranch. "They live in an air-conditioned trailer right on the lot. I have to commute from the Sunset strip."

What's more, Peggy has to perform her own stunts in the new series which is titled "The Hathaways."

Not so the monkeys. They have a stand-in and stunt man all their own. Funny thing, he's a man and not a chimpanzee, which makes him unique among Hollywood's acting fraternity.

"The stand-in is a Mexican midget," Peggy said blandly. "His name is Cha Cha Cha Morales. A real nice guy. He always wanted to be in show business and now he is."

PEGGY ALREADY is vying with the chimps. She speaks of them fondly, but with reservations.

"They're named Enoch, Charlie and Candy," she explained. "Candy is the baby and very lovable. Enoch is kinda stupid, but sweet. Charlie is the brains of the outfit and bosses the others around. When one of them blows a scene he raises hell with them."

"The other day I was posing for pictures with them and we were all given bananas. The chimps polished their bananas off in a second and began moving in on me."

"I threw the banana in the middle of the floor and let them scramble for it. I ain't gonna get in no fight with three primates."

A Bostonian, Peggy has reddish-blond hair, a wacky outlook on life and a sense of humor. She's going to need it after the ABC show really gets moving. Working with three chimps can be taxing.

One of the little rascals reportedly is a closet drinker with a sweet tooth for bourbon, scotch, champagne or anything else he can get his hairy little hands on.

"THEY CAN BE very temperamental, too," she said thoughtfully.

"Just the other day somebody slipped Enoch a wax banana and the chimp almost went out of its mind. He screamed like a fiend until somebody gave him a handful of jelly beans."

"That's what they get as a reward if they behave themselves — jelly beans. No matter how good I am, I never get jelly beans."

"I can't complain about them, though. The chimps have better credits than I do. They've appeared with Jack Benny, made pictures in Germany and France. They even starred in a personal appearance act on the Riviera."

Actually, "The Hathaways" won't be too different from other family shows on the air today, say "My Three Sons" or "The Donna Reed Show."

Instead of kids blowing their lines, Peggy will have to contend with scene-stealing chimps.

"In the show I'm like their mother," she said proudly, as a normal little household, just like the other ones. Later in the series I try to get them jobs in show business.

"If you ask me, it all sounds pretty wholesome."

COMEDIAN Jerry Lewis struggles not to give any hint as panelist Betsy Palmer tries to figure out what kind of secret he's concealing. The pair appear on "I've Got A Secret" at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, channel 2.

Should doctors prolong dying?

LOS ANGELES.

SEVERAL MONTHS AGO one of California's leading cancer specialists came down with the dread disease he had spent a lifetime studying, fighting, treating. He developed cancer, which, despite surgery, became gradually invasive, spread to other organs of his body.

The doctor, in his 70s, confirmed the hopelessness of his illness with his son, also a physician.

He settled down at home rather than run up a large hospital bill, dosed himself from time to time with laudanum to control the pain, arranged his final affairs, then peacefully took his life with an overdose of morphine.

A few weeks after this physician passed away, the news was made public that screen star Gary Cooper was dying of cancer.

Although Cooper's cancer condition was recognized as hopeless after its rapid spread and subsequent multiple pathology, doctors kept him alive as long as they could, prolonged the process of his dying with sedation.

Gary Cooper was a millionaire many times over. The medical expenses he incurred were negligible compared to the over-all estate he left behind. But how about the average terminal patient? Should doctors still try to prolong his life, however hopeless?

The True Story

They do, of course. They subject him to expensive hospitalization, to X-ray therapy, to surgery, chemotherapy, to every possible medical treatment. And in the end they frequently send him home to die, emotionally, physically and financially bankrupt. But only after they have exhausted every possible medical means for saving him.

To find out how doctors feel about the treatment of terminal patients when nothing is in view but suffering, to find out whether doctors have one answer for themselves and a different one for their patients, PARADE recently polled a cross section of physicians attending this year's meeting of the California Medical Association.

These doctors were asked the following question: If you believed yourself incurably ill with only pain to look forward to, would you take your own life quickly or would you prolong the dying process as long as possible?

Approximately 90 per cent of the doctors polled said they would prolong the dying process.

Here are some of their statements:

DR. ARTHUR E. VARDEN, San Bernardino, Calif.: "It all depends on what the so-called incurable illness is. I myself have lived with cancer of the bladder for 10 years. One time they thought I had cancer of the brain. My feeling is that no one has the right to take his own life. I would be tempted to do it, however, if I felt I was becoming an intolerable burden to my family."

DR. KIEFFER E. FRANTZ, Los Angeles: "I can't answer that question. Offhand, I'd say it would be a real soul-searching conflict."

DR. MARION S. JOHNSON, Los Angeles: "I think I would probably let nature take its course. Not even in great pain would I take my life."

DR. RALPH GANCHER, Oakland, Calif.: "I suppose I would linger on out of sheer cowardice."

DR. OSMAN HELL, Monterey, Calif.: "I don't believe in taking lives—mine or anybody else's. I say that now but I might very well change my mind."

DR. RAYMOND CONN, Los Angeles: "It would depend on how helpless and painful I was."

—LLOYD SHEARER

Gary Cooper made last film with Deborah Kerr (above). A hopeless victim of cancer, he was kept alive with intravenous feedings.

Dr. C. L. Scott, Inyo-Mono, Calif.

"I think I'd hang on as long as I possibly could. I wouldn't treat myself. I'd take exactly what the doctor ordered for me, do exactly as he suggested."

Dr. Arthur A. Kirchner, Los Angeles, Calif.

"I am a religious man. When the Lord says my time has come, that's when I'm going to go, and not before. If I have to suffer to get there, I will suffer."

Dr. Wilbur G. Rogers, Glendale, Calif.

"I would prolong the dying process. I have patients I have carried along for 10 years, which means they've had 10 years of life they wouldn't have had."

summer tips for tots

bringing up baby<sup>2</sup>

Hints collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber, Mother of 5

A backyard can be a real blessing in the summertime. If you have one, why not move baby's playpen outdoors these fine June days? With all of nature's sights to see, your cherub will probably be content to stay put for reasonable periods of time. A few reminders:

- ▶ If you park the pen in a shaded, sheltered spot, baby won't get burned or chilled. A shirt will protect baby, should breezes blow.
- ▶ This is a good time for you to catch up on "lap jobs", such as mending, reading or knitting, while you sit outdoors with baby.

June or January, cereal is usually on baby's daily mealtime agenda. Gerber Cereals are especially popular with babies because the flavors are ever so delicate . . . the texture ever so smooth to the tongue. As for baby's nutritional well-being, all 5 are enriched with iron*, important B-vitamins and calcium. Rotate Rice Cereal, Barley, Oatmeal, Mixed Cereal and High Protein Cereal for continued meal appeal.

*6 tablespoons of any Gerber Cereal provide baby with over 100% of the Recommended Daily Dietary Allowance for iron.

Of routine interest. Regular mealtime and sandman hours are important the year around. (Somehow routines have a way of getting relaxed in summer with haphazard bedtimes and meals.) It's wise to remember that a well-regulated (but not strictly tied-down) baby is usually a happy, healthy baby.

Sunny summer menu suggestion. Gerber Strained Egg Yolks have an appealing, sunny color, a delicate, fresh-egg flavor and a creamy, custard-like texture. Nutritionally, they're rich in iron and vitamin A . . . offer a good source of protein.

P. S. Gerber Egg Yolks make a fine topping for Gerber Cereals. When mixed with milk and Gerber Orange Juice, they form the base for a perfect toddler nog.

Here at Gerber we carefully prepare over 100 cereals, strained and junior foods to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

"Babies are our business . . . our only business!"

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jack Carson, one of the nation's most versatile comedians, was born in Manitoba, Canada, on October 27, 1910. The family moved to Milwaukee when John Elmer Carson (Jack's full name) was a child, and he's always called Milwaukee his home town. Carson, 6 feet 2, 215 pounds, majored in football at Carleton College. He came to Hollywood in 1936 after a vaudeville stint with an old college chum and caught on at RKO as a bit player, later broke into radio as an M.C. and eventually migrated to television. Jack has been married twice, has a son 20 and a daughter 15, lives now on a ranch in Calabasas, Calif., where he rehearses such jokes as these.

My favorite jokes

by JACK CARSON

- ▶ THIS COUPLE had been married just two weeks, and the husband was going through a batch of mail that had arrived that very morning.
"Honey," he asked casually, "aren't these bills for the clothes you bought before we were married?"
"Yes, darling," she replied. "You're not upset about it, are you?"
"Well," the husband replied. "Don't you think it's unfair to ask a fish to pay for the bait he was caught with?"
- ▶ A HYPOCHONDRIAC ordered this inscription for his gravestone: "NOW WILL YOU BELIEVE I'M SICK?"
- ▶ ONE ACTOR said to another: "Say, how'd you get that scar across the bridge of your nose?"
"From glasses."
"Well, why don't you get contact lenses?"
"Simple—they don't hold enough beer."
- ▶ A LITTLE OLD LADY was going through customs at San Francisco. An inspector asked her what she had inside a bottle in her valise. "Holy water," she replied in a thick Irish brogue.
The inspector uncorked the bottle and took a swig. "For Pete's sake," he exclaimed. "This is Irish whiskey."
"Saints be praised!" exclaimed the old lady. "It's a miracle!"
- ▶ A FEW WEEKS AGO a farmer friend of mine drove his team of mules into town and was late returning.
"What took you so long?" asked his wife.
"Well," the farmer explained, "on the way back I had to pick up the preacher, and from there on, them mules of ours didn't understand one thing I said."
- ▶ A LAS VEGAS GAMBLER died. The funeral was well attended by his professional friends. In the eulogy the minister intoned: "Here lies Moe. Moe is not dead. Moe only sleeps."
From the rear of the chapel came the interrupting voice: "I got a hundred says he's dead."
- ▶ A 5-YEAR-OLD came home every evening complaining that the kids in the neighborhood were picking on him. Finally, his father got hold of the lad one night and showed him a few boxing tricks—how to stand, jab, feint, how to throw his right hand.
"Next time anyone picks on you," he advised, "you let him have it."
Two days later the little boy raced home, ran into the living room, his eyes ablaze with triumph, his lips parted in a wide smile. "Dad," he shouted. "I did it. Yes, I did it. I did it. I hit her." ■

POLYGAMY

The startling inside story of plural marriages in the U.S.—and of the men, women, children entangled in them

SALT LAKE CITY.

IN A DOZEN COMMUNITIES from New York to San Francisco, American males are keeping harems and getting away with it. They aren't millionaire playboys with a taste for the ladies, nor sex cultists who stage exotic orgies. For the most part they are sober, frugal, hardworking men who would be outraged if you called their practice of polygamy immoral.

These present-day polygamists are religious fanatics, ostracized and excommunicated by other churches, hounded and harassed by government investigators. But persecution doesn't deter them; it only strengthens their view of themselves as modern martyrs.

Upon my solemn word never to reveal names, however, I was able to win the confidence of a few polygamists, even to attend their meetings and socials.

The polygamists base their belief on God's great commandment to the human race: "Be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth." They cite the lives of Old Testament prophets who had extra wives. They denounce the "immorality" of the modern, one-wife world with its divorcees and mistresses, its unmarried mothers and bachelor fathers.

Nobody knows exactly how many men and women are practicing polygamy today. They are centered in Utah, where the Attorney General, Walter Budge, estimates there are 20,000 in the state. This is probably an exaggeration, based upon the propaganda of the polygamists themselves who like to boast of their numbers and claim colonies as far away as New York City, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

That they are growing in number seems certain—but less by conversion than by breeding. They admit that half the children of polygamous unions stray from the fold under the pressures of a monogamous world. But so great is the birth-rate among the polygamists that their expansion seems a mathematical certainty.

Though many polygamists have been arrested, few have gone to prison. Judges usually release the women to look after the children. The men are set free, too. For without menfolk to provide for them, the families must be supported by the taxpayers.

Polygamy was introduced to the United States by the Mormons. But even in the days of Brigham Young, less than three per cent of the membership indulged. The practice was banned altogether in 1890 after it had been outlawed by Congress.

Thereafter, little was heard of polygamy for over 30 years. Then, in the late 1920s, a group calling itself the Fundamentalists appeared in the West. Their senior leader was a bland, Buddha-like farmer named John Y. Barlow. But the real spiritual leader was Joseph Musser, a crafty, white-haired old man who performed plural marriages and gave them the sanction of "the priesthood." Even after a number broke away from the original group, they still came back to Musser to have their plural marriages blessed.

Doctrinal quarrels and failures at communal living caused the Fundamentalists to split up. Today Barlow and Musser are dead. Their flock is divided into splinter groups, which go by such titles as The Mighty and the Strong, The Sons of Aaron, The Church of the First Born in the Fullness of Time, the Church of Freedom of Latter-Day Saints, The Co-op and others.

Inside a Polygamy Colony

The Church of the First Born in the Fullness of Time is the most aggressive, sending out full-time missionaries to seek converts. The Co-op appears to be the wealthiest with a co-operative store in Bountiful, Utah, a motel and two beauty shops in Salt Lake City, a coal mine in Dragerton, Utah. The members work in these enterprises for a bare subsistence; all profits go into the common till.

From the wives, I learned that polygamy produces a greater emotional problem for women than it does for men. A new bride must stand inspection by the other wives before she is accepted into the family circle. But once the women become adjusted to the idea, they seem more fanatic about the virtues of polygamy than do the men. Overcoming jealousy, for instance, is regarded as a sign of spiritual strength.

A slender, soulful woman insisted: "I love my sister-wives as much as my husband does. If ever I have the slightest feeling of jealousy, I must put it aside for the sake of my religion. It would be very selfish of me not to be willing for other worthy women to have an equally worthy husband." This woman wrote poetry; her most sentimental verses were written about her three sister-wives.

"The True Way of Life"

Another wife, who shares her husband with two others, said: "I entered into polygamy to please the Lord, but now I would do the same thing over again because I believe it is the sensible way to live."

The second wife of a man 20 years her senior confessed that she had been ostracized by her family and friends after they discovered she had joined the polygamists. Tearfully, she said: "They think I am a bad woman. But this is my religious conviction."

Added a kindly, work-worn matron, one of two wives, with fervor: "Don't think for a minute that it is easy to live in polygamy. It is sometimes very hard. But I believe it is the true way of life."

There is an adage, usually applied to brides and mothers-in-law, that you can't have two women in one kitchen. How do the polygamists manage? As a rule, each wife has her own section of the house where she receives her husband and brings up her brood. Only a few men can afford to keep their wives in separate houses. I visited one home where two huge rooms were curtained off for four wives. Each had a cook stove, table and chairs. Two of the compartments had a portable radio. I was not permitted to inspect the sleeping quarters upstairs. But a male polygamist confessed that his house was so small his two wives had to share a bedroom. He assured me they were quite content with the arrangement.

A typical polygamous household, I found, consists of three or four wives and upwards of 20 children. A polygamist takes his first wife, who appears to occupy a senior position in the household, when he is about 18. He adds additional wives as he can afford to support them. Some men in their 60s and 70s are still taking new wives. Each marriage is solemnized in a formal ceremony, conducted by an elder member of the community. Sometimes the elder picks the partners, explaining the choice has been directed by God.

Polygamous brood was fathered by John Barlow (l.) of Short Creek, Ariz. Above, one of his wives and children are questioned by police after 1953 raid.

Clusters of polygamists live in Bountiful, a Salt Lake City suburb, and around Dragerton. But surprisingly, many are sprinkled through the community, living side by side with monogamous families. Their neighbors take at face value the explanations that the additional wives are visiting aunts and sisters and that the children are all cousins.

In theory, the polygamists hold land jointly and some still live communally and till the soil. Most, however, hold everyday jobs as mechanics, machinists and factory workers. Frequently during my visit I asked how they could manage to bring up such huge families on such ordinary salaries. The answer seems to be that they live frugally. Their clothes are simple and their diet runs heavily to starches. Yet the children are all healthy. And some families even have such luxuries as automobiles. One home I visited had a huge TV set, running full blast, with perhaps 15 children seated in front of it.

Polygamists and Nudists

The polygamists consider adultery a sin second only to murder, punishable by the loss of all wives in Heaven. They preach solemnly against kissing before marriage, inveigh against physical contact while courting and admonish their young people to keep literally at arm's length. Because modern dancing is awkward under this restriction, only folk dancing is permitted.

The polygamists follow their faith with as much discretion as devotion. Sunday meetings are held in different homes each week to avoid suspicion. On Tuesdays, the sexes worship separately.

At the bull sessions, the men usually spend their time justifying polygamy to one another. I attended a Tuesday bull session in an old, red-brick home in a respectable neighborhood. The front parlor was lined with half-a-dozen rows of folding chairs.

A brother jumped up to argue that wars take a heavy toll of men, women outlive men even in peacetime, men are less likely than women to be virtuous. Some men were so morally corrupt, he declared, that they refrained from marrying at all. "Every bachelor," he declaimed, "is committing a sin against some woman by denying her children."

A rotund Romeo, husband of four wives, had perhaps the most ingenious defense of polygamy. He argued that it was against the law to walk around in the nude. Yet nudists were tolerated if they kept to themselves in colonies. "Then why," he asked, "should the law interfere with us if we keep to ourselves?"

Not all these fanatics are sincere. They have their black sheep who "use religion as a cloak to marry under-age girls." But most are less interested in collecting wives than in accumulating children! children! children! This is the whole motive force of these strange, austere, zealous people.

Some years ago, the governor of Arizona staged a raid on an isolated polygamous community called Short Creek near the Utah border. The state troopers roared into the shabby, sun-scorched village.

They arrested the men, carried off some 200 women and children to Phoenix. Trials were started. But one after another, they fizzled out with trivial sentences as the cost of keeping the families soared (over $1,000 a day). Most of the raided polygamists returned to till the parched earth. The only change: they have renamed their hamlet Colorado City.

The last legal action against polygamists was taken in 1959 by a grand jury in Davis County, Utah. Henri Frederiksen, foreman of the jury, told PARADE: "Most of the polygamists live quietly, work hard and bother no one. It was hard to get anybody to testify against them. We didn't hear of a single instance of juvenile delinquency among their children. During our investigation, the polygamists wouldn't tell each other where they were going or what they were doing. In this way, they could honestly tell the grand jury that they didn't know about the activities of their own family members. Yet these people were clearly violating the law. It was a frustrating experience."

Of 16 indictments brought by the grand jury, not a single polygamist went to prison.

What to do about the polygamists? They are law breakers, but they are causing no trouble. The wives join in willingly; their children are not neglected.

Perhaps the answer is that existing families should be recognized and accepted. Then every effort should be made to ensure that the new generations obey the laws of monogamy.

DIARY of a POLYGAMIST

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lawmen recently seized the diary of a young polygamist named Arnold Pratt. PARADE is permitted to publish for the first time excerpts which give a rare insight into polygamous practices and Pratt's own strange romance. Significantly, he was careful not to identify other polygamists even in his secret diary.

DECEMBER 11—After meeting, Brother 5 came to me and told me that he had had inspiration that Eleanor J. was to be my future wife. He also told me that the inspiration wasn't very strong and that I should bide my time and see what course the Lord would open up for me.

I have often stated that if I could find a girl I could talk to seriously, so that we could help each other and influence each other for good, and she would not place a false value on things of this world, but would seek the kingdom of God, that then I would have a girl friend. Maybe that will be fulfilled in Eleanor.

JANUARY 5—After Clarence J. died, Daddy had hopes that the Lord would be willing to give him Sister Merlin J. to wife, that he might raise up seed to Clarence. However, the Lord directed Brother 39 to take his former wife's sister and to provide for her and raise up seed to her husband. Now the name of this woman is Jennie M.

When Jennie heard about the direction concerning her and 39, she fought it bitterly for a while and then conditions led her to believe that Daddy might marry Sister Merlin. In the light of new competition, she suddenly started pushing the marriage between her and No. 39. She was afraid that if she didn't push it, she would have to be a second wife.

Daddy and Sister Merlin prayed and received direction that Merlin was to marry Brother 5. Daddy then received direction that he was to take Bessie O. as his first wife. The whole thing is in the hands of the Lord and His will be done.

SEPTEMBER 3—Today I learned a lot about love, life and advancement in the kingdom of God. I think a lot about Eleanor, and I have visited her quite a bit so she has a small idea how I feel. Yet she seems to feel more attraction to her brother-in-law, and to Don and Paul O., than she does to me.

I thought quite a bit about it today and did some worrying before the truth hit me. Eleanor is young, in fact too young even to date. Yet it is essential to her growth and maturity that she have the companionship of some of the other boys. After she starts dating and before she starts going steady, it is my responsibility to encourage her in such associations with the other boys until such a time that she is supposed to start getting serious about choosing a companion.

DECEMBER 25—Oh Lord, what is Thy will toward me concerning Eleanor. I know that I haven't received definite direction that she will be mine, also I know that both she and I are too young to get serious. Her parents are encouraging her towards me, yet they both know conditions. Shall I continue to see her and fulfill any purpose you might have in mind, or shall I stop seeing her and let her think about other things?

JULY 19 (YEAR LATER)—When my father was here for the Fourth of July, he told me I was being foolish for being so serious with Eleanor and advised me to give her up at least as my first wife, and he told me who he thought would make a good first wife. I have never contradicted him, but in my heart I thought: "Well, you just don't know Eleanor as I do." Daddy advised me to start fasting to find out whether or not I was supposed to get her, and I told him I hadn't had the feeling that it was time to.

Later the feeling came to me real strong that Daddy was right and that I should start fasting, which I did right that minute. I told Eleanor the feeling that had come to me and that I had started to fast, and that I expected the fast might last for a month or two, but I would go through with it regardless of time.

I had only missed five meals when the direction came that Eleanor was to be mine, and I was so surprised that it would come so soon that I almost decided to keep fasting. But I had received the direction and needed my strength to work, so I went down and ate. Then later I called Eleanor to one side and told her the direction and asked her to marry me. The date was July 16, just one day before her 17th birthday. She accepted and I had her name the date which she set at some time after her 18th birthday. Also we agreed not to kiss until after we were married. I don't know what the plans of the Lord are on this subject, but I do know his plans will be fulfilled if Eleanor and I keep our hearts right. ■

Which one is not the wig?

WOMEN'S WIGS

by NANCY HAGEN

FIVE YEARS AGO, two groups of American women in the main wore wigs—actresses who were playing a role and women who were losing their hair.

Today, wigs are rapidly becoming colorful fashion accessories for women everywhere—New York, Hollywood, Montreal, Paris, Miami, Chicago, you name it.

Any woman who can afford $150 to $500 for a wig is buying one or three (or nine, like Linda Christian) or strongly considering its purchase.

Max Factor, Elizabeth Arden, Grace Spedding—all the leading hairpiece-sellers report that the current demand for women's wigs exceeds the supply.

Listen, for example, to Fred Fredericks, hair chief at Max Factor's in Hollywood.

"It's absolutely incredible," he points out, "the way our flatter wigs have caught on. We're doing a landslide business, both mail order and off-the-street.

"In 1960 when we started our wig line," Fredericks reveals, "we sold $600 worth of flatter wigs in the month of April. This year we're selling $50,000 worth a month which is all we can produce."

Factor's wigs, which go to such film colony names as Marlene Dietrich, Lucille Ball, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Ginger Rogers, Loretta Young, Ann Sothern, plus dozens of models and starlets, sell for $150 each. At Grace Spedding's Wig Shoppe, the price is $250. Elizabeth Arden's wigs start from there. Other wig manufacturers offer hair covering for my lady for as little as $100 a throw. These wigs are made of fine quality human hair. They're not to be confused with synthetic wigs which range in price from $5 to $75 and consist of nylon, dynel, Acrilan or other synthetics which cannot be parted or hold a curl for any length of time.

Because Max Factor was prudent enough to stockpile $1 million worth of human hair several years ago, management, to fill the vast mail-order demand, is contemplating the sale of women's wigs on time: $15 down and $15 a month. Right now, Factor's is filling mail orders in any style and color of the customer's choosing for a $50 down payment, the balance C.O.D.

Why have women's wigs caught on so rapidly? There are three major reasons: They fill a need; their price has been reduced to a point where many women can afford them; they are well-made, good-looking and designed to be worn over a woman's own hair.

Today's wigs, in contrast to yesterday's mops, stay dressed for weeks, are simple to restyle, and adjustable to fit any head-size. In addition they are feather-light, weighing less than three ounces.

Women like Tina Onassis, Ginger Rogers and even the average Hollywood model find the greatest value of a wig lies in its convenience.

A Model's Delight

For occasions when her hair must look its best, the woman who owns a wig can save herself the time and trouble of running to the beauty parlor or rolling up her hair the night before. When dark roots are beginning to show on her bleach job and she has no time for an emergency bleaching, a wig becomes a deliverance. It's equally heaven-sent for the large army of women everywhere who perennially insist, "I can't do a thing with my hair." All they need do is to slip on their wigs—and presto! Panic disappears.

Hollywood models I've interviewed such as Maggi Brown (see cover) now under contract to 20th Century-Fox and starring in Bachelor Flat, declare two or three wigs "are absolute necessities for the busy model. By having a supply of wigs," Maggi explains, "I can go swimming, get my hair damp, slip on my wig and report to the job still looking well-coiffured. Lots of models I know have each bought a different wig and formed a wig pool. They borrow each other's wigs."

But how about the woman who doesn't need a wig for professional work? What motivates her to spend $150 of her husband's hard-earned money?

Basically, a wig provides the fun and fancy of having a different hair color, which almost every woman has wanted to try at one time or another. A wig offers her the chance of seeing how alluring she looks as a redhead or a blonde or someone whom she is naturally not, without having first to bleach, tint and then restore her hair to its natural shade if she doesn't approve of what she's turned out to look like.

The Raw Hair Shortage

A wig in a new hair style offers a woman the same life as a new hat, and the hair-style can be changed any time by a mere resetting.

Most of the hair used for wigs comes from the Balkan countries, Czechoslovakia, Germany and the northern section of Italy. A small quantity of red hair with a good natural wave is purchased from the Irish, and the Scandinavians have fine blonde hair, but very little of this reaches the market.

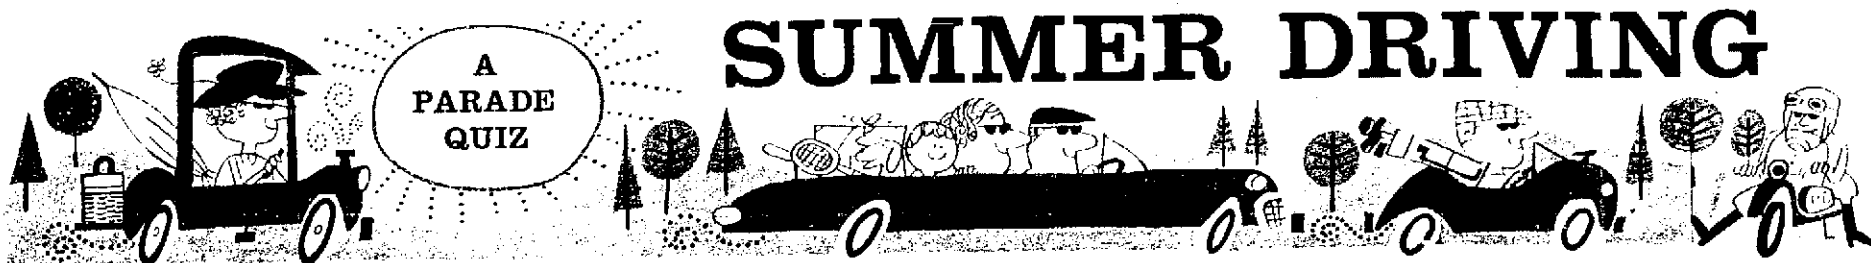

In order to be useful to the wig-maker, hair must be in its natural state—never permanented, bleached or dyed. It must be free of the chemical sprays and fixatives so commonly used in this country, and protected by wrapping from the drying effects of sun and wind. The number of European peasant women who will care for their hair in this manner and then sell it is rapidly diminishing, which is why the price of raw hair is reaching a new high every day.

The life of a wig, regularly worn and given reasonable care, is approximately two years. It should be treated much the same as a woman treats her own hair, with the following exception: wigs must be dry-cleaned, not washed. After it's cleaned, a wig can be rolled or pinned up at home although many women prefer to leave their wigs at the beauty salon to be "done" while they are shopping.

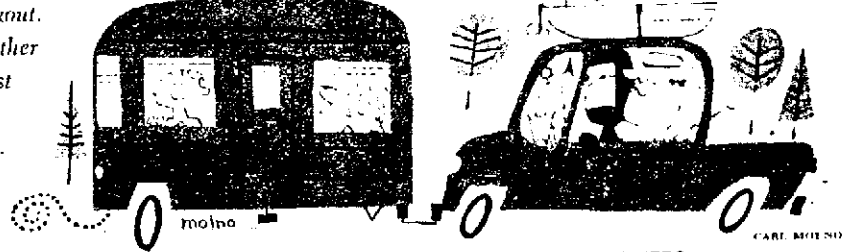

Women who wear wigs claim that the men in their lives approve of them.

Says Maggi Brown, "A girl with a wig or a new hair-do makes a man feel that he's getting what he likes most in life—a little variety." Fittingly enough, it's what we women like, too. ■

- 11 You need a second car for summer, but can afford only an inexpensive used one. Your best bet is: a) a car operated by a salesman for inter-city runs; b) one driven only occasionally by a "little old lady"; c) a car left idle by its owner for six months or more.
- 12 Auto license examiners mainly look to see if you: a) react quickly to emergencies; b) use common sense; c) accept the examiner's direction with good humor.

ANSWERS

- 1 c) According to the American Automobile Association, ignition system failure (battery, distributor trouble, etc.) was the chief reason for emergency calls among 55 million motorists last year.
- 2 a) Open highway, inter-city travel, according to the American Petroleum Institute. Under such conditions, says API, the engine operates at efficient temperatures and with top fuel combustion.
- 3 b) Peak traffic fatality rates are in the early morning hours, says the U.S. Bureau of Roads. Main causes: drunken driving, speeding, a mistaken notion that roads are deserted.
- 4 c) Many drivers derive some security from having a "new spare" in the trunk. Meanwhile the life of the four tires in use is being shortened prematurely.
- 5 a) National Safety Council figures show you are only 8 per cent safer driving on non-holiday weekends.
- 6 c) Any of the four answers might be correct—depending on the kind of driving you do. The American Petroleum Institute makes the following recommendations: In summer, do not exceed 2,000 miles between changes, or do not let it go more than 60 days; in winter, change oil at least every 30 days.
- 7 a) and b) Very often a dirty cooling system causes overheating. In addition, a faulty fan belt can be to blame.
- 8 Each of these three is equally important. A car can check out as perfect after days of stop-and-go driving, but after 50 to 100 miles on a superhighway all three levels may be down dangerously.
- 9 All three. In winter you might add a shovel, a bag of sand, chains and an extra set of windshield wipers.
- 10 b) In general, you need 50 per cent more distance to stop at 40-50 m.p.h. on a wet road than you do at 10 m.p.h.
- 11 a) Automotive engineers believe that your best investment is the salesman's car with sustained, day-in-day-out driving. The little old lady's car and the idle vehicle may have accumulated a number of contaminants that cause unduly rapid engine wear.
- 12 All three. Says the Safety Council: Examiners are also interested in the appearance and performance of the car in judging the eligibility of an applicant for a license. If all of these pass muster, the examiner is likely to overlook minor driving mistakes.

They keep it in the family

HOLLYWOOD.

IN TODAY'S TELEVISION, actors often own a large share of the programs they star in and rule the roost with wings of iron. They frequently decide on the hours and location of work, demand script, director and cast approval.

And they think nothing of occasionally casting their shows with relatives, few of whom have had any acting experience. They do this, they say, "just as a lark . . . to give the kids a thrill . . . to indulge my wife . . . to let the kids earn a few bucks."

Photos on this page show how some TV stars are keeping it in the family.

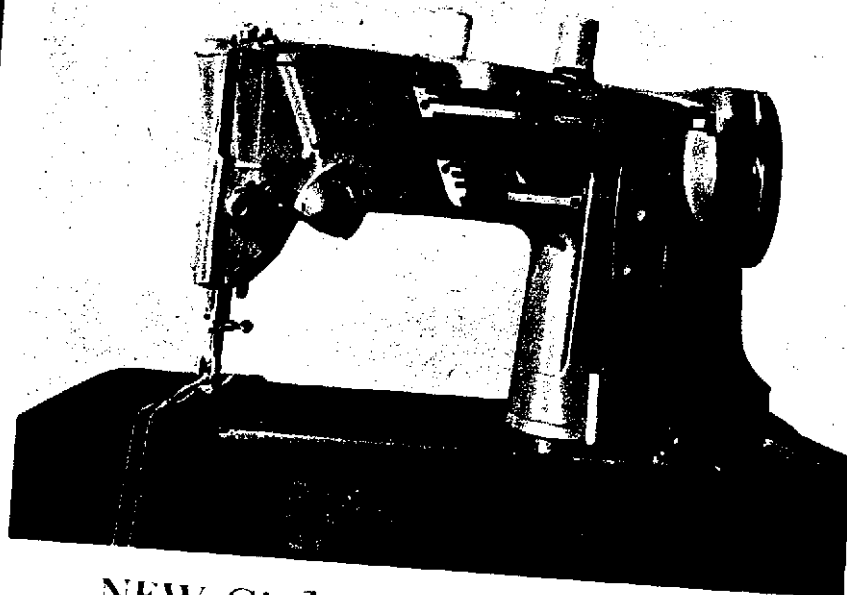

Danny Thomas found a part for his daughter Marla when he starred in The Zane Grey Theatre. Actors often also control director, script.

Nick Adams, who stars in a TV series called The Rebel, cast his wife Carol Nugent in a supporting role as a pretty young Indian maiden.

How to be a good opponent

by SENATOR BARRY GOLDWATER Republican, Arizona

IF YOU ARE LIKE everyone else, sooner or later you will be "agin" something. It's human to oppose—and thank Heaven we in America have the freedom to express our opposition if we wish.

In many years of business and political life, I have learned a few solid facts about this vital right we possess to stand up and say: "I object."

I have discovered that you can fight for your side in such a way that you can become personally unpopular in no time at all. That way lies almost certain defeat for your cause and perhaps even social exile as well. On the other hand, you can conduct yourself as a decent, honorable human being as well as opponent—and that way lies attention for what you have to say and respect for you as a person.

You see, the Constitution guarantees you freedom of speech and thus the right to object, but nobody guarantees you against hurting yourself and your side if you go about your opposition like a bull in a china shop!

Time and again I have seen causes lost and even careers wrecked because people did not realize this simple truth. In our family store in Phoenix, a young executive lost promotion after promotion because of his smart-aleck methods of expressing his objections. The fact that his points were well taken was unfortunately obscured by the unfavorable impression his attitude created with superiors.

I would like to pass along my own "secrets" of opposition. I believe deeply in these rules not only because they are useful in arguments but because living by them can also help tone you up spiritually and morally. Thus you win no matter how the battle comes out!

They are practical, too. At one time or another, you are going to rise up and object to something: Maybe you will disagree with the P.T.A. on a project, fight a neighborhood rezoning plan or oppose views expressed by neighbors and friends. You may even find yourself on the opposite side of an issue with members of your own family.

1. Oppose—but do not hate.

There seems to be a universal belief that you cannot wage a good fight unless you work up a hostility. As a result, many persons develop deep antagonisms. How often have lifelong enmities started because someone began hating a person instead of the issues?

The killer instinct may be essential in the boxing ring but it has no place in the arena of argument. Here are some personal examples of what I mean.

President Kennedy and I are poles apart on many issues but if you assume we must also be deadly personal enemies as well, you're entirely wrong. The fact is that while the President and I are fully aware of the gulf between us, neither has permitted these differences to develop into personal antagonisms.

For instance, the President personally telephoned Dr. Janet Travell immediately after her appointment as White House physician, requesting her to continue taking care of me for a back condition. His thoughtfulness is a clear illustration that one can oppose strongly and still maintain good personal relations.

I have teed off many times at Secretary of Labor

Keep your sense of humor.

Arthur J. Goldberg, yet telephoned him recently to say: "Arthur, a young newsman would like an interview with you. Would you see him?" "Sure, Barry," the Secretary replied, "send him right down."

Oppose a man's views if you wish, but respect him as an individual and a human being.

2. Keep your sense of humor.

Fight hard for what you think is right, but find time every so often for a quip and a laugh. Some lightness now and then to balance the seriousness of argument lessens your chances of losing your head and blurring out words you may want to eat later. I freely admit there are a number of my own words I would like to take back and chew up. But a sense of humor has kept these at a minimum.

Once last year Mr. Kennedy, then the Democratic nominee, was trying hard to get his secondary boycott bill out of committee in the Senate. The committee considering the measure met one morning but was one short of a quorum. I was a member but was standing outside the meeting room. As an opponent of the bill, and in line with accepted legislative procedure, I was absenting myself from the committee meeting to prevent the measure from being voted out.

Suddenly the then Senator Kennedy saw me. He insisted that since I was present at the committee session I could be counted to form the quorum. I quickly pointed out that I was outside, not inside, thus could not be counted. "You're here, aren't you?" Mr. Kennedy asked. "Yes," I said, "but not there!"

The discussion got faster and funnier, with remarks flying about the "visible invisible man" and "the little man who wasn't there but here." Soon the entire committee was rocking with laughter. It could have be-

3. Always oppose positively.

It's never enough just to be "agin" something—be for something at the same time. In other words, always be ready with an alternative or a solution as well as with criticism. If you don't like the new school site, present another and give reasons why yours is better.

This is constructive opposition. It is not only helpful but destroys your opponent's ability to say: "You're nothing but an obstructionist."

Remember that you oppose negatively if you are merely intent on tearing down the other fellow or side. This preoccupation with negative opposition can also lead you into the disastrous trap of mud-slinging, which never produces good results in the long run and can only serve to sully the slinger as much as the receiver. It's impossible to hurl a fistful of mud and still remain spotless yourself.

Point out the weaknesses in your opponent's points, rip them apart one by one—but never stop there. Tearing something down only leaves a gaping hole. Build something at the site.

4. Learn all the tricks.

Many people are convinced that debating tricks will give them the upper hand in an argument. I am often asked for "inside stunts" to whittle an opponent down. I always answer: "Know the tricks so that you can defend yourself but never use them yourself because they almost always boomerang."

A favorite trick of some politicians is the false comparison. For example, a candidate for governor in a Midwestern state once told a campaign rally: "How can my opponent hope to solve our farm problem when his own farm has been losing money for 10 years?" On the surface the argument was impressive but the comparison was unfair—mainly because his opponent owned a small vacation farm that he wasn't trying to make pay at all. Watch for these tricks.

Another stunt is a variation of "Have you stopped beating your wife?" A civic leader out West announced stiff opposition to the location of a new hospital in his community. At once his opponent issued the charge that he was against more medical care for the town. He wasn't at all. He was merely insisting that the hospital be built someplace else in the same community.

5. Applaud opponents, if right.

A fair-minded person hears out the opposition, weighs arguments justly and expresses approval if he agrees. Then, when he does rise to object, his opponents will know he isn't just popping off to hear his own voice but is genuinely convinced of the soundness of his stand.

These, then, are the fundamental rules of opposition I myself follow. They are simple but all-important rules of honest living. Whether you win or lose in an argument depends on the essential rightness of your point of view. But win or lose, these principles will help you become a respected opponent and a human being of conviction and dignity. ■

A. True. To date they have sold the world rights of their personal stories to Time-Life for an estimated $500,000. A lawyer is investing some of the money for them in real estate outside Washington.

Q. Did Princess Grace forfeit her American citizenship when she became the Princess of Monaco?—Mrs. M.B. Lee, Springfield, Virginia.

A. No.

Q. What happened to Mildred Gillars, the radio announcer who was known as "Axis Sally"?—George Morrow, Silverton, Oregon.

Q. Martin Bormann, Hitler's personal secretary, is he really alive somewhere in South America?—Ann Frutchie, Newark, N.J.

A. Dr. Fritz Bauer, Frankfurt State Prosecutor in West Germany, says definitely, "Bormann is hiding somewhere outside Germany." Best information is that Bormann is in South America, has had his face completely altered by a plastic surgeon.

Q. Now that Eisenhower has got his rank as General back, has he taken the pension that goes with it or has he refused it?—M.C., Harrisburg, Pa.
